Ministry of Housing

Ontario Housing Corporation

WANTED

We're looking for rental accommodation in your community. It's for lower income families who are spending more than they can really afford on rent. Families in need of rental assistance can be housed within the private sector.

The Rent Supplement Program for landlords will guarantee units will be occupied at the prevailing market rents for three years or more. Market rents mean just that. We'll review the rents annually to ensure they are consistent with rents in your muncipality.

For developers we'll provide second mortgage financing at below market interest rates — up to 35 per cent of capital cost — to bring mortgage financing up to 95 per cent of construction cost. In return we ask developers to take part in our rent supplement program.

We will consider apartments, detached or semi-detached houses and row houses. All we ask is that units are self-contained and meet residential standards.

After a landlord and the Ontario Housing Corporation agree on a market rent, the landlord participates in selecting a tenant or tenants from the local waiting list for assisted housing. The tenant then pays his rent to the landlord, just as other families in the building do, and OHC mails a monthly cheque to the landlord to cover the difference between that rent and the agreed market rent.

The new tenants are treated the same as any other family. They sign a lease and assume the normal responsibilities outlined in The Landlord and Tenant Act.

Applications should be submitted to:

Ellington's Music Survives Him

LONDON (Reuter) — Duke Ellington's music, far from having died with its creator, is alive, vibrant and still developing.

When Ellington died last year, a classic era in American music might have come to an end. The loss was compounded by the death the same year of several of his orchestra's key personnel, especially baritone saxophonist Harry Carney, a mainstay of the orchestra for more than 40 years.

But the Duke's son Mercer is determined that the legacy of his father will not be relegated to musical history.

Since his fathers death, he has put together an almost totally new orchestra, bolstered by the occasional old Ellingtonian—like trumpeter Cootie Williams who first joined the band in the 1930s—and set out on the road with a mixture of the classic Ellington compositions and new works which were unheard when the Duke died.

After initial successes in the United States, the band arrived in London in February to open its first extended European tour.

For Mercer Ellington, now in his 50s and a talented composer and musician in his own right, the continuation of the Ellington legacy is a driving force.

Like his father, he objects to attempts to pin labels on the Duke's style.

"He was erratic in so far as not adhering to the norm or form," he said. "And he did it so well that most people weren't aware that he'd revolted from what was acceptable. He wrote 20-bar tunes, 21-bar tunes, even some that were 11 with phrases that were in the construction.

"This is why he never wanted his music classified as jazz. He thought of it as just plain creation and he especially did not like the music that he wrote for the church to be classified as jazz."

Ellington said he has plans to perform his father's cathedral works more frequently in future. At the London concert, however, the emphasis was on the secular works and the band showed itself to be one of the best in the world already.

The mixture of youth and age—the youngest member is 18—is its greatest strength. It has a power and technique which the Duke's own orchestra seldom possessed in its last 10 years. Also some of the Ellington classics, which the Duke seldom featured in his later years, have been brought out again.

The young players breathed fire and life into rarely heard orchestral masterpieces like Koko and Harlem Air Shaft and performed the entire version of Mood Indigo which, in the later years of the old band, was usually relegated into medleys.

They performed the rarely heard Jump for Joy, the title number of the Duke's 1940s musical, at a stratospheric tempo.

If the band has any weakness compared with earlier versions, it is in its solo strength. But this is only comparative. The Duke wrote specifically for individual musicians and those men, most of them now dead, often stayed with him for decades.

With the exception of Williams, who at 66 is playing with the strength and invention of a man in his 20s, the present musicians do not quite replace the old stalwarts. But some of them, especially saxophonist Maurice Simon and trumpeter Barrie Lee Hall, are obviously of the same quality and simply need experience with the music. And in Freddie Waits the band has the best drummer ever to grace any Ellington orchestra.

A highlight of the London concert was the premiere of a new Ellington work. An extended three-part composition entitled Three Black Kings (the King of the Nativity, King Solomon and Martin Luther King). It shows the master had lost none of his ability in his later years and it has the power and lyricism associated with Ellington at his best.

Mercer Ellington said there still is a considerable amount of his father's work that has not been heard by the public.

For example, in the 1950s he composed the Queen Suite for Queen Elizabeth II. It was recorded but only two copies were pressed. Ellington kept one and the other was presentd to the Queen.

Now, Mercer said, he plans to release it to the public.

"I feel at this point that ample justification exists for the fact that, although he wrote this work particularly for the Queen and only the two of them shared it for most of his life, basically both of them are in the public domain and it's a work that should be heard now."

Filling Brando's Shoes Tall Order

LOS ANGELES (AP) — To recreate a role originally played by Marlon Brando is an awesome task for an actor.

Yet Robert De Niro pulled it off, augmenting his reputation as the most promising new actor in films.

De Niro is the electric performer who made strong impressions in two of 1973's most acclaimed—and least patronized—films, Mean Streets and Bang the Drum Slowly.

Francis Ford Coppola chose him to portray young Vito Corleone in The Godfather, Part II, an assignment that should have given De Niro pause on two counts:

1. He would be portraying the younger version of the character created unforgettably by Brando in The Godfather.

2. He would have to play nearly all of the role in Sicilian, a dialect he didn't know.

"It was an interesting problem and something of a challenge to me as an actor," said De Niro. "I guess I should have been more cautious about it, but I thought it was worth a try."

He was in New York for talks about future films, taking a breather from the film he is making in Parma, Italy, 1900, directed by Bernardo Bertolucci, who made Last Tango in Paris.

Another Brando connection, and there are more. De Niro's first acting teachers were Stella Adler and Erwin Piscator, who were also Brando's.

There is no physical resemblance. De Niro is skinny with a narrow face and floppy black hair parted in the middle.

His thoughtful approach to a role is Brandovian, as he proved in Godfather.

"I didn't want to do an imitation of Brando, yet wanted to make it believable that the man played could have developed into the older Don Corleone," he said.

"I met with Dick Smith (who created the Brando makeup). The slicked-down hair seemed natural; that was how they wore it in those days.

"We decided to do a little with the cheeks, suggesting the padding that Brando used.

I went to the same dentist and he fitted me with a dental piece to push the cheeks out a little.

"I also used a suggestion of the hoarseness that Don Corleone had later. These (Mafia) guys seem to get hoarse as they grow older."

Learning Sicilian was difficult. He had picked up some Italian while playing a Mafia lieutenant in the 1971 movie The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight.

"But Sicilian was something else," the actor said. "It is much more staccato, far less rhythmic than Neapolitan Italian.

"I took my tape-recorder and talked to Sicilians in California and New York, and then I went to Sicily.

"I even went to the town of Corleone. When I went into a bar, I was hesitant about mentioning the picture because I didn't know what the reaction would be.

"But they seemed to be proud of The Godfather and complained because it wasn't filmed there."

De Niro, 31, is a native New Yorker who passed up college in favor of acting school. Some years he spent as much time on unemployment compensation as he did on salary but he never thought of being anything but an actor.

Like Brando, he never would work in television or summer stock.

"I learned from friends what television is like. Making an hour movie in six days! I've never been under that kind of pressure. In summer stock you rehearse next week's show while you're playing this week's.

"You can't expect any quality. I did go on the road and play dinner theatres. At least you do the same play every night and you can learn something from it."

De Niro said he is at the crossroads of his career.

"I've got to decide what I want to do. People now tell me if I will consent to a project they can get the deal going. But what should I commit myself to? Godfather took a year of my life.

"This one (1900) will take another year. The years go by and what will be left?"

Your Horoscope

Saturday, March 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful with whom you associate today. Avoid those who act on the spur of the moment. One friend is a bit too wild.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) It's good to be competitive, but today your're apt to take things a little too seriously and try to steamroller the opposition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your impatience will be hard to rein in if things don't go your way on the first try. Shun tasks where you lack competence.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful. Don't become overly involved in another's complicated affairs, especially if his problems are of a material nature.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're going to be perturbed by a close companion you felt was in agreement with you when she changes her mind at the last minute.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extra careful today how you handle tools or sharp instruments. Also be sure those you're working with do likewise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's not a good day to try to draw to an inside straight. If you take any financial flyers, be sure they're penny ante stuff.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be careful how you handle fragile household items. Something you're fond of will get broken if you move things carelessly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Plan your moves well in advance today. Things you try to do in haste or as an afterthought are apt to get all fouled up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Possessions you prize will get lost or stolen if you leave them lying about or treat them with indifference.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're a better follower today than you are a leader. Have definite goals or you'll be going off in two directions at once.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It doesn't become you to contemplate tactics that aren't out in the open to spite one whom you feel has wronged you.

"Why did you win that third trick?" asked North.

"I guess it was for the same reason that people want to climb a mountain. The trick was there for the taking."

You can get killed climbing mountains. You can go broke taking the wrong trick.

The defence started with three rounds of diamonds. West stuck his rather useless nine of trumps on his partner's trick and South promptly overruffed with dummy's 10 spot. Then he went after trumps. The finesse worked nicely, but when it came down to trying to pick up the king, his majesty refused to fall. South wound up losing a trump, two diamonds and a spade.

South should have seen that there was no way to avoid the spade loser, but that there was a proper time to lose it. South should simply have discarded one of dummy's spades, instead of wasting a trump honor on West's nine.

Then when South went after trumps, he would have been able to pick up East's king and eventually use dummy's fourth trump to ruff his last space.

Indian Petroglyphs Found in Many Spots

Written for CP

By DINA SUDLOW

A casual hiker scrambling over the rocks at Point No Point on Vancouver Island's south coast might be startled to find the rock he's treading is covered with the carved outlines of fish and whales.

Similar figures pecked into stone at Thorsen Creek in the Bella Coola valley have become a favorite tourist attraction.

Obscure or well-known, these carving occur in numerous places in the Pacific Northwest. They are Indian petroglyphs, rock etchings depicting fish, birds, wildlife, men and spirit-figures.

In their book Indian Petroglyphs of the Pacific Northwest, Beth and Ray Hill have catalogued most of the known sites. Illustrated with photographs and reproductions of rubbings taken from the rocks, the book covers a territory from Alaska to the mouth of the Columbia River in Washington state.

Much of the significance of the petroglyphs has been lost in time, and no accurate method has yet been developed to give an age to many of the carvings. However, several are easy to date; for example, the simple etching of the steam-paddlewheeler Beaver, which appears at a site at Clo-oose on Vancouver Island's west coast. Also visible here are carvings of early sailing ships.

The Hills give some general conclusions about the function of the petroglyphs, gained from the Indians themselves, anthropologists and from applying modern psychoanalysis.

But it is the illustrations of the rock carvings, the simple yet exciting figures laboriously pecked in rock with a small stone that are compelling in this book.

Beer Will Not Break Salt Ban

By G. C THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In my last annual checkup there was an indication of hardening of the arteries, and I was put on a salt-free diet.

I am 70, and I enjoy beer, an average of about four bottles daily. It helps my appetite and allows me to get eight hours of sleep at night. I can't find from reading the label if there is anything added to beer that would make me a statistic in arterial hardening deaths.—B.

Beer contains about seven milligrams of sodium (salt) for each three ounces, or about 28 mgs. in each 12-ounce bottle. Your four bottles would contain about 112 mgs., about a 10th of a gram.

Eating a normal diet the average person would get about 10 grams a day, and even in the most restricted diet he would get a couple. No diet is entirely salt-free. Your 10th of a gram in the four bottles would not be considered by itself dangerous, and it would not normally be too high a price to pay for eight hours of sleep and a good appetite. That is if you adhere closely to the salt restriction in the balance of your diet.

So far good news. Now for the bad.

One of the reasons for the salt restriction is to reduce your liquid retention, which salt promotes. Four bottles of beer represents quite a bit of liquid. Your doctor would have to weigh his consideration along with the benefits represented by sleep and appetite in allowing this divergence from his advice.

You had best ask him about it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am fond of eating sunflower seeds and would like to know if they are good or bad for your health. Is it a protein food?—Mrs. O. E. K.

The seeds contain protein, minerals, and some vitamins. Roasted, they are tasty. They will not harm your health, neither will they be any more beneficial than any other good food.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor recently diagnosed a welt about a half inch from my left ankle as a tendon cyst. I have been referred to another doctor who is going to remove it.

I am curious as to just how serious the removal is. Is it an extensive operation, or incapacitating in any way? Could it be malignant? What effect would not having it removed have?—J. A. B.

Such a lump is called a ganglion (meaning a knot). It is an accumulation of a jelly-like substance with a thin fibrous coating, and it usually appears on the back of the wrist. Removal is for cosmetic purposes.

Surgical removal in your case may be best because of its location on the ankle where it will be exposed to accidental bumps. When that happens, the cyst bursts, the fluid spreads, and cysts reappear.

A ganglion is non-malignant. Removal is a simple operation, with no after effects beyond a tiny scar at the site of the operation.

Cast on Rodgers' Arm Causes Als Concern

MONTREAL (CP) — Johnny Rodgers is wearing a cast on his left arm that stretches from hand to elbow.

And while Montreal Alouettes are happy that corrective surgery has been done on their million-dollar super-star, the Canadian Football League club is less than enthusiastic about the fact Rodgers underwent the operation in his home town—Omaha, Neb.—wihtout prior knowledge of team officials and doctors.

Rodgers, who returned to Montreal earlier this week, said he "really didn't plan on having the operation."

"I was going heme to pick up some furniture and I called my doctor to make an appointment to look at the hand."

Rodgers had cut his left hand where the little finger joins the hand "working around my apartment."

"It healed all right but apparently a piece of glass stayed inside," the former Heisman Trophy winner said. "When they took x-rays of it, it showed that the tendons were almost severed."

During the operation, doctors repaired some legament and tendon damage Rodgers had in the same hand.

"I had two other fingers on the same hand that I always taped before a game and the doctors suggested they fix them too," Rodgers explained.

General manager Bob Geary learned of Rodgers' operation in a round-about manner and when the player returned here complete with cast, Geary advised Rodgers that in future he should advise the club before undergoing any surgery.

Rodgers said the the finger injuries were a handicap last season, despite the fact he was the second leading receiver in the Eastern Football Conference with 60 catches, one behind tight end Tony Gabriel of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

CANCELS FIGHT

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentine heavyweight Oscar Bonavena says he has cancelled a planned fight with American Ken Norton because promoters couldn't assure him he would eventually challenge champion Muhammad Ali. The bout, scheduled for March 24 in Landover, Md., was to be shown on closed-circuit television in Cleveland as a preliminary to the fight between challenger Chuck Wepner and Ali.

MAY START FACILITY

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Windsor Western Hospital Centre may become the first hospital in Ontario to establish a facility specializing in the treatment of athletic injures, Windsor surgeon Dr. Gary Leach said Wednesday. Dr. Leach, chairman of a committee studying the proposal, said he has met with leading sports figures to discuss the idea.

BOWA SIGNED

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP). — Larry Bowa has signed a three-year contract with Philadelphia Phillies that his agent says will make him the highest paid shortstop in the history of baseball. Contract signings by Bowa and second baseman Dave Cash were announced by the National League team Tuesday. No figures were released.

Sabres Deziel's Goal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Michel Deziel's four-year stint in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League was one of constant improvement.

The first year the left winger played for Sorel Black Hawks, he scored 25 goals in 60 games in the 1970-71 season.

In successive years, the Sorel native increased his goal production to 29 goals, 50, then 92 in the 1973-74 season during his last year in the league.

In the 1974 amateur draft, he was chosen in the third round by the then talent-lacking Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League.

This year, with the Sabres enjoying the best season of their short NHL career, Deziel has played with Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League, where he's obviously working hard to earn a spot on the parent team.

Thursday night, in one of three AHL games, Deziel scored all three Hershey goals as the Bears dropped a 5-3 decision to Syracuse Eagles.

In other games, Providence Reds downed Nova Scotia Voyageurs 6-3 and New Haven Nighthawks and Rochester Americans played to a 5-5 tie.

At Syracuse, N.Y., Deziel scored all his goals in the first period. The Eagles scored the winner with only 53 seconds left in the game.

Cressman scored the first goal of the night at 2:85 of the first period, but Rochester came back to score four consecutive goals to take a 4-1 lead into the second period.

Walt Ledingham scored on a New Haven power play with 12:35 gone in the second period to cut the lead to 4-2, and Cressman scored his second to make it 4-3 in the third period.

Barry Merrell picked up his second goal for Rochester to make it 5-3, but Alain Langlais and Richard Nantais scored within five minutes to send the game into what turned out to be a scoreless overtime.

Doug Gibson, Dave Hynes and Dune Rousseau scored Rochester's other goals.

The Providence win over Nova Scotia gave the Reds an almost unbeatable 12-point lead over Rochester in the AHL's Northern Division. Nova Scotia remains in third place, one point behind Rochester.

Providence opened the scoring when Joe Zanussi broke up a play at centre ice and passed to Bobby MacMillan, who skated over the blue line and scored the first of two goals.

Greg Cahoon scored Nova Scotia's first goal, a short-handed effort with only seven seconds left to play in the first period.

Nova Scotia tied the score midway through the second period with Gary Geldart's short-handed goal.

Whitby Wraps Up Third Spot

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Whitby McDonald's clinched third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series with a 5-3 victory Thursday over second-place Brantford Foresters in the only game scheduled.

The teams were tied 1-1 after the first period with the McDonald's taking a 3-1 lead into the final 29 minutes.

Gary Milroy, Greg Bodnar, Carl Ahlsten, Peter Vipond and Bob Munro scored for Whitby. John McMillan, Jim Cochrane and Doug Dunsmuir replied for the Foresters.

Bruce Durno blocked 19 shots in the Whitby goal, while Brantford netminder Stan Worosz handled 25 shots.

Brantford took 10 of 16 penalties.

Bulls Went Too Far

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago Bulls like to play low-scoring games, but they got a little carried away Thursday night against Phoenix Roadrunners in a National Basketball Association game.

The Bulls, the top defensive team in the NBA, gota taste of their own medicine from the Suns, who held Chicago to the lowest total of any team this season in embarrassing the Bulls 88-65.

The Suns, who allow an average of 103.3 poinst a game, had never given up less than 81 in the history of the franchise, while Chicago had never been held under 77.

Chicago coach Dick Motta, understandably less than happy, the Bulls dressing room for 15 minutes after the defeat, Chicago's fourth in a row.

When he finally allowed writers in, he said:

"I have no excuse—it was terrible basketball. We're lucky we got even that (65 points). I guess someone will say we can't stand the pressure of being in first place."

Kansas City-Omaha Kings, trying to add to that pressure, pulled to within two games of the Bulls in the NBA's Midwest Division by beating Buffalo Braves 111-110 on a last-second shot by Nate Archibald.

Elsewwhere in the NBA, Milwaukee Bucks beat Seattle SuperSonics 102-92 and Atlanta Hawks edged Golden State Warriors 110-106.

In Thursday's American Basketball Association games, Denver Nuggets topped the Spirits of St. Louis 119-107 and Indiana Pacers beat Utah Stars 115-101.

Rich Coggins Itching to Run

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (CP) — Rich Coggins, Montreal Expos' articulate outfielder, will not let his pursuit of a law degree deter him from developing stolen bases into a case of grand theft during the 1975 National League baseball season.

"I feel like I can steal many more than the 26 I had last year," said the left -handed hitting Coggins, acquired from the American League Baltimore Orioles in the deal that also saw the Expos acquire pitcher Dave McNally and give up Ken Singleton and Mike Torrez.

"Under the system that Earl Weaver ran in Baltimore there wasn't much room for the stolen base because he had all those guys with power to drive in runs. Out of seven games in a week, I got to try for a steal perhaps twice, and, being so far apart, that was bad for my timing.

"I've never had my full potential of stolen base attempts but I'll wait and see what develops here."

Expos manager Gene Mauch appears ready to see as well.

"If his on-base percentage is as good as it was in 1973, I'd say 50 stolen bases would be the minimum," Mauch said.

"He's not as schooled a base stealer as Larry Lintz, but because of his great speed he is safe most of the time. I think I can pick pitches for him and I think I can tell him something about the pitchers in the league that will help him," Mauch said.

"I know he can make contact with the ball. I know they can't throw a ball by him."

Coggins, who is taking a pre-law major at Towson State College in Towson, Md., batted .282 in 239 regular-season games over three years with the Orioles and his 237 hits included 36 doubles and 12 triples. His speed points him toward an early position in the Expos batting order.

"I'm thinking I'll be hitting first or second," said Coggins, who stands five feet, eight inches and weighs 165 pounds.

His major league experience, limited as it is, ranks him ahead of all except Bob Bailey and Larry Bittner among Expos outfielders.

Erb Free On Bail

QUEBEC (CP) — Captain Brian Erb of the runaway ship, Answer, was free on his own recognizance today awaiting a May 14 preliminary hearing on a charge of stealing the ship form its berth here Feb. 23.

Captain Erb, who drew international attention in a cat-and-mouse game with the RCMP while attempting to get the ship through the ice-clogged Gulf of St. Lawrence, pleaded not guilty to the charge Thursday.

Judge Gilles Lahaye of sessions court released Captain Erb on condition he does not board the Answer.

Captain Erb was arrested Wednesday after eluding pursuers for 11 days. RCMP officers from the icebreaker John A. Macdonald boarded the 1,959-ton Answer about 60 miles northeast of Magdalen Islands.

The captain and his young crew of 12 men and five women were taken by Canadian Forces helicopters to Gaspe, Que. No charges were laid against the crew.

Members of the crew left for Sept-Iles aboard a chartered flight Thursday afternoon. They said money for the flight came from Vitral Navire S.A., a Panama-registered company based in Boston which claims ownership of the Answer.

Meanwhile the federal government issued a statement to clarify what it says were conflicting reports about the legality of boarding the Answer.

"The waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence are considered . . . to be historic Canadian waters,' the external affairs department statement said.

Which of the three parties that claim ownership of the vessel—Paul-Emile Caron of Louiseville, Que., Charles Fournier of Montreal and Vitral—will be decided at a hearing which opened in Montreal on Wednesday.

Euromart Link Is Years Away

ROME (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has new Canadian-European links as he passes the mid-way point today of his 16-day trip to five Common Market capitals.

But Trudeau's proposed "contractual link" with the European Economic Community (EEC) perhaps is years away.

It is the still-evolving concept of a link that Dutch, West German and Italian leaders have endorsed in general during the last week, which means they agree some grounds for negotiation should be sought.

"The sort of agreement has yet to be negotiated so no one can say 'this is what we're supporting,' " said an external affairs spokesman travelling with the prime minister.

Trudeau has variously described the concept as "a foot in the door," "a consultative mechanism' and a package that consists 90 per cent of EEC recognition of Canada's separate identity from that of the United States.

The prime minister also has agreed with suggestions that if an agreement is reached it might be similar to a treaty for technical, scientific and economic co-operation.

Trudeau's trip to the Hague, Bonn, Rome, London and Dublin coincides with the early stages of talks on a link by both sides at EEC headquarters in Brussels. It is there that officials will begin to iron out the specifics of any agreement.

"The whole trick is to decide how far we can go down the road in quest of economic and technical co-operation," the external affairs spokesman said Thursday.

Canada is the first industrialized country to seek such a link with the EEC which has various agreements with former colonies and developing countries.

The consistent use of the "contractual link" phrase appears to have caused some confusion during Trudeau's trip.

Among those who appeared uncomfortable with the expression was Dutch Prime Minister Joop Den Uyl who said he would not try to specify possible forms of agreement other than to rule out what he called "a special relationship."

"I didn't invent it, it's not my word," said a West German government spokesman when asked how Bonn views a contractual link. "In my view we all should avoid clinging only to this contractual link."

Co-operation is the aim and this does not necessarily depend on any formal agreement, he said.

The EEC's signing of an agreement with Canada as an entity different from the U.S. was hailed by the prime minister in the Hague as "about nine-tenths of what we are trying to achieve."

Syncrude Study Results Doubted

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government still has doubts about the thoroughness of environmental impact studies by Syncrude Canada Ltd. on the Alberta oil sands development, says Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve.

For that reason, it has an agreement with Alberta to spend $40 million on an environmental study of the project over the next 10 years, she told a Commons fisheries and forestry committee Thursday.

She was replying to Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) who quoted a letter written in October, 1974, by Mrs. Sauve to Alberta Environment Minister Bill Yurko.

In the letter, the minister predicted the likelihood of major environmental damage from the project.

"It does appear . . . that Syncrude has failed to appreciate the real scope of environmental concerns and has also failed to address the question of environmental protection in either a realistic or an adequate manner," the minister said in the letter.

Mr. Leggatt asked whether the government had changed its mind since it became a shareholder in Syncrude last month. The federal government agreed to purchase 15 per cent of shares in the $2-billion project.

Mrs. Sauve said the Syncrude study was incomplete because it dealt only with one oil extraction plant rather than with the cumulative effects on the environment of several plants.

Among areas which might be studied were wildlife, soil, air, and ground water in the area. Another area of concern was the Athabaska delta.

The $40-million federal-provincial environmental study was announced last week.

Flora MacDonald Says Lowest Paid Not Aided

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has embarked on a major change of housing policy, moving away from assistance to the lowest income groups, Flora MacDonald, Progressive Conservative housing critic, said Thursday.

But Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson said new legislation to expand rental and assisted home ownership (AHOP) programs is designed to help low-income people.

Miss MacDonald said the government is building up the AHOP budget at the expense of public housing. In effect, the government was shifting aid towards higher income groups—persons who planned to buy their own homes.

But Mr. Danson replied that the expanded rental program would require developers to set aside 25 per cent of their units for low-income families. He said later the government is trying to move away from restricting low-income groups to certain public housing districts.

The government will continue to support public housing for people who cannot benefit from other housing programs, he said.

The exchange came as the Commons welfare committee began study of the government housing bill designed to attract private funds to the AHOP and limited-dividend rental programs.

Earlier, Mr. Danson suggested the opposition would be responsible for a drop in housing starts this year if the legislation is held up.

He was commenting on a proposal by John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) that the committee expand its list of witnesses on the new housing legislation.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) said Mr. Danson's statement was blackmail and Miss MacDonald said it was unwarranted.

Mr. Gilbert's proposal was defeated with Liberal members outvoting the Conservatives and the New Democratic MP.

With the new legislation, persons who acquire private mortgages for AHOP or rental housing could reduce their interest rate to about seven per cent from the market rate of about 10.25 per cent with government subsidies.

Storm — and Sudden Tragedy

A provincial constable walks toward the wreckage yesterday of an accident on Highway 14 north that killed an elderly Stirling couple, Walter and Mildred Stapley, 75 and 74. The accident occurred around 3 p.m. just north of Thurlow township's fourth concession. Road conditions were hazardous. Provincial police at Belleville reported 19 accidents in an eight-hour period Friday

Couple Dies In Blizzard

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

A snowstorm that blanketed the Quinte area Friday with from three to five inches of snow resulted in a rash of accidents, the most serious being the double fatality of an elderly Stirling couple.

Walter Stapley, 75, and his wife, Mildred, 74, of RR 2, Stirling, Rawdown Township were killed Friday afternoon when their vehicle driven by Mr. Stapley, was in collision with a pickup truck driven by Kenneth Hare of RR 1, Consecon.

The accident occurred about 3 p.m. on Highway 14 on the Fourth Concession of Thurlow near Foxboro. The Stapley vehicle was travelling north on Highway 14 while the pick-up truck was southbound on the same highway.

Mr. Hare was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

The double fatality, the first traffic deaths reported in Belleville this year, was one of 10 accidents investigated by Ontario Provincial Police here in a period from 1 p.m. Friday to midnight attributed to heavy snow conditions making driving hazardous.

City police report they investigated 11 collisions involving property damage, none exceeding $300 and no injuries from 11 a.m. Friday until early Saturday morning.

In an accident investigated by OPP here, a 57-year-old Frankford man, Leonard Fruney was taken to hospital with chest and shoulder injuries following a two-vehicle accident on Highway 2 near Bayside.

Mr. Furney is in satisfactory condition today in hospital. The driver of the other vehicle, John Donald, 44, of Belleville was not admitted. The accident occurred about 3.55 p.m. Friday.

In another accident, Montreal truck driver John Paul Riendeau was treated and released from hospital after his tractor-trailer, westbound on Highway 401 near Marysville, jackknifed. This occurred about 3.15 p.m.

Throughout Ontario, many other accidents occurred as a result of Friday's snowstorm. In Orillia, a car-transport truck accident killed one youth and injured six others. Provincial police there said high winds and icy highways accompanied the heavy snow.

In Toronto, the snow wasn't the only problem with travellers as walkouts by members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) closed Toronto International Airport Friday afternoon.

Meanwhile, drivers in the Quinte area can breathe a little easier this weekend as the weather office at CFB Trenton is forecasting sunny but cold weather for the next few days with the odd trace of snow.

Government, Union Still At Bargaining Table

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Talks were to continue today between representatives of the federal government and its 18,600 general labor and trades workers who have held selective strikes across Canada since mid-February.

A source close to the discussions, which resumed Friday in Ottawa for the first time since Feb. 21, said the talks continued well into Friday night.

Representatives for the federal treasury board and the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) said they will maintain a news blackout "until further notice."

PSAC representatives said members will continue selective strikes today which have stopped grain shipments and sporadically cancelled post office and airport services.

As negotiators entered the bargaining session, Bill Doherty, PSAC first vice-president, said that "we expect to continue negotiations until there is agreement."

The PSAC has demanded an average pay increase of 37 per cent over two years. The treasury board has offered slightly less than 26 per cent. The union initially proposed a 42.5-per-cent increase to bring workers up to 90 per cent of rates paid to comparable workers in the private sector.

Average hourly pay now is $4.42 for the workers including postal maintenance men, airport runway cleaners, grain weighers and samplers, and other laborers and tradesmen.

Fred Mills, a PSAC regional representative, said in London, Ont., Friday that workers would never sign a contract unless there is a clause giving illegal strikers immunity from prosecution. There are 1,600 illegal strikers—those providing essential services—and there may be 2,200, he said.

Treasury Board Chairman Jean Chretien has said the government will prosecute workers designated essential who go on strike.

As negotiations resumed, grain shipments stopped Friday when the Canadian wheat board cancelled all boxcar orders from grain elevators throughout Canada because of a backlog of unloaded rail cars at West Coast and mid-west ports.

A spokesman said 22,000 boxcars full of grain sat idle while samplers and weighers continued walkouts at government elevators and offices in Thunder Bay, Ont., Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Alta., and Vancouver.

Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney called Friday for immediate resumption of grain shipments from Vancouver through an exemption of grain from the labor disputes. He sent messages to Vancouver longshoremen who are on strike, the PSAC, Mr. Chretien and the Maritime Employers Association.

Donson Lea, president of Unifarm, a farm organization in Alberta, also asked farmers to "bombard" the federal government with demands for action to get grain shipments moving.

Air traffic was halted at various points Friday. Toronto International Airport closed Friday afternoon when runway cleaners, members of the PSAC, refused to plow three inches of snow covering runways.

Cancer Program Called a Sham

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The cancer program in the United States is a total sham, says Nobel Prize-winning biologist James Watson.

Despite millions of dollars being spent on development of cancer treatment centres, the result may be only a facade with little increase in understanding cancer or knowing how to treat it, he said.

Watson, a professor of molecular biology at Harvard, spoke Thursday at a symposium on cancer research at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"The American public is being sold a nasty bill of goods about cancer. While they're being told about cancer cures, the cure rate has improved only about one per cent," he said.

"The grim cancer statistics are about as bad as ever. Today, the press releases coming out of the National Cancer Institute have all the honesty of the Pentagon's."

Watson since 1968 has directed the independent Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory on Long Island. In 1962, he shared the Nobel Prize for medicine for his part in deciphering the molecular structure of DNA, the molecular key to genetics. That discovery is basic to much modern cancer and other research.

Dr. Frank Rauscher, National Cancer Institute director, rejected Watson's assessment of cancer cure rates, saying his contentions are based on data through 1969.

Rauscher cited recent improvements in survival rates for breast cancer, colon cancer, lung cancer, Hodgkin's disease and some other forms of cancer.

"It will be 1978 and later before we know, based on five-year survival rates, just how successful our efforts in the last two years have been," he said.

Hastings Students Off on Cruise

About 170 Grade 12 students leave Sunday for an eighteen-day cruise of the Mediterranean in which they will visit several middle east countries as well as Turkey and Greece

Lloyd Jones, cruise organizer for the Hastings county board of education, said the cruise is intended to be educational.

The students, supervised by 10 teachers, will leave Ottawa Sunday and fly to Amsterdam for four days. Mr. Jones said some of the students will be reunited with their Dutch relatives.

From Holland the students will fly to Yugoslavia for a two-day stay where they will begin the cruise.

During the Mediterranean section of the trip the students will visit Egypt, Lebanon and Israel. Mr. Jones said the cruise will avoid any conflict areas in the middle east.

The last leg of the cruise will take the students to several historical sights in Greece and Turkey. They will return to Holland before flying back to Canada.

Mr. Jones said director of education Eric Runacres will accompany the students on the trip and will prepare a cruise evaluation.

Each student pays $693 for the total package.

Mr. Jones said trustee Donald Williams, from Stirling, and his wife, will also go on the trip.

The Grade 12 students have been preparing for the cruise by studying the various countries they will visit.

Trudeau Resting

CORTINA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, saying he planned to "rest, ski and go over some papers with my advisers," was spending the weekend in this Italian alpine resort before continuing his tour of European Common Market capitals.

He arrived here Friday night after two days of talks with Italian officials and a 50-minute audience with Pope Paul, the first meeting the Canadian leader has had with His Holiness since Canada and the Vatican exchanged diplomatic missions in 1969.

Trudeau heads for London Monday and then on to the Irish republic, last stop in his tour that has included the Netherlands and West Germany.

At a news conference Friday before leaving Rome, the prime minister said a plan suggested by Pope Paul for solving the problem of the Holy Land will be discussed after his return to Ottawa.

The Popes plan involves putting holy places, but not all of Jerusalem, under international control.

Trudeau also said Canada is committed to continuing immigration but the rate will be determined after a current study is completed.

"I told the Italians we are expecting a continuing flow," he said, adding that because of the preference given to immigrants with relations already in Canada, it is likely that Italians will continue to form a significant part of this flow.

Mr. Trudeau also said that energy-hungry Italy is interested in Canada's Candu nuclear reactors and Canadian uranium.

Doctors Raid Paris Hospital For Abortions

PARIS (CP) — Militant doctors seized two Paris hospital consulting rooms Friday and performed seven abortions as part of a protest over the refusal by doctors to carry out legal abortions, Ageny France Presse reports.

Prof. Lucien Leger, head of the surgical department of Cochin Hospital refused to end the pregnancies of 30 women who wanted abortions.

Captain Brian Erb is shown in Quebec Provincial Police headquarters in Quebec City early Thursday after he was airlifted from the fugitive ship Answer Wednesday night. Captain Erb pleaded not guilty in court Thursday to a charge of stealing the ship. The ship had been chased around the ice-clogged Gulf of St. Lawrence by the government icebreaker John A. Macdonald for more than a week as Captain Erb tried to get the vessel to Boston.

Marchand Under Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean Marchand's reputation as a fighter goes back to the 1940s when he was a tough labor activist. His performance in the Commons Friday indicated that he hasn't lost his touch.

The transport minister fought back against Conservative charges that he is incompetent and has failed repeatedly to implement a long-term national transportation policy.

It was the latest in a series of attacks against the 56-year-old minister.

Earlier this week he faced tough rounds of questioning about the Hamilton harbor dredging scandal, but treated them with banter.

The humor was noticeably absent Friday. Instead, Mr. Marchand suggested that the opposition has mounted a full-scale campaign to get rid of him.

"You are just trying to kill me and you are not going to" he shouted at one point when there were jeers from the opposition that he was "finished."

He said the Conservatives would be better off directing their energies at useful suggestions for improving transportation rather than attacking him personally.

"I need this opposition contribution," he said. "The government needs it."

But he said the opposition is bankrupt of ideas. They were in a "complete intellectual blackout" and didn't even know "whats going on in their own ridings."

He excluded the New Democratic Party from this criticism, saying its members have tried to approach transportation problems rationally.

Trenton Day Nursery May Close Its Doors

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A tangled web of letters, misunderstandings and procrastination over the past four months could have doomed the Trenton Day Nursery and forced it to close its doors to 17 children or working parents.

The nursery's lease, already extended three months, ends at Grace United Church March 31. It had no place else to go since its intended new home, the now-unused North Trenton School, was caught fast in slow-turning bureaucratic wheels.

Trenton town council, the Hastings County Board of social services department were, and still are, in the midst of negotiations to secure the former school as the day-care centre's home. And all indications point to a failure in meeting the March 31 deadline.

Grace United chairman of the board of stewards, Ian Darling said Friday, the children will not be forced out of the church facilities, despite its need for the space. The church is celebrating its centennial and needs room for activities it has planned.

He said Grace United has "a soft spot" for the centre since it created it some three years ago in the face of people who claimed there was not a need for the service in Trenton.

The nursery was supported by two Local Initiative Program (LIP) grants, and for three months by the town, before it became the present responsibility of the county social services department.

To date, no official word has been received that the nursery will leave the church, said Mr. Darling. Viewed realistically, he says, he expects it not to meet the deadline, at which point, another will be set.

Mr. Darling places a share of the nursery's problem on town council's shoulders.

Ultimately, the decision to use the former Wooler Rd. school rests with council since it must pay 20 per cent of its capital and net operating costs. The provincial ministry of community and social services picks up nearly all the remaining costs through the county social services office.

He said council has been procrastinating. It's a "dumb and stupid" pretense when council says it does not have enough information upon which to base a decision to get the new building.

"They can't make up their minds," he concluded.

The precise reason for delays that will cause the expected missed deadline is buried in lengthy correspondence and misunderstandings between the three bodies. Only a portion of it follows:

On Oct. 28, 1974, Trenton council asked Reginald Tucker, social services director, to acquire North Trenton School as it is the town's preferred location for the nursery.

On Oct. 29, Mr. Tucker called town offices to ask what "acquire" means and was told "it is left open to me to get the best deal."

On Oct. 31, the director asked for further clarification of "acquire" and was instructed by his committee chairman, Trenton councillor Ron Price, to seek a five-year lease with an option to buy.

The following day, by letter, Mr. Tucker asked Eric Runacres, director of the Hastings County Board of Education, for a lease and option.

Nov. 28, the board of education offered the former school to Trenton at a "reasonable price" or under a lease arangement. opportunity on to county social services, which alone can make use of provincial grants for nurseries. The county would purchase on behalf of the town, the letter stated.

Feb. 24 this year, town council said it still thought the school was to be bought outright and registered shock at a lease arrangement and at the $880 monthly building rental. It asked for additional information on costs for a nursery at the school.

In an interview Friday, Mr. Tucker said that "at no time did they (board of education) say that they would sell it to us."

Director Runacres confirmed Mr. Tucker's statement in a different light Friday. He said that "it didn't matter which way we went" but that at first, no decision whether to lease or sell was made.

At some subsequent point, the board decided against selling now to protect the adjacent school from a possible undesirable new tenant if the building was sold after its use as a nursery ended.

As it now stands, town council will again discuss its course on the school and possible nursery Monday, but Mayor Bob Patrick said this week, he has no idea what council's action will be.

Councillor Ron Price, who has been pushing for a decision for several months, blames his colleagues for part of the months-long delay in getting use of the former school.

Mr. Price, who confirmed his instructions to Mr. Tucker Oct. 31, 1974, said Friday council asked the director to get the best deal for Trenton and then proceeded to meddle each time it heard from him.

It stalled twice on a decision, when its best action would have been to leave the matter to Mr. Tucker, he said.

Now, he urges council to get on with decision-making: "The facts are pretty well there."

Had the Grace United not indicated its "soft spot" for the nursery, Mr. Tucker would have been forced to meet the lease deadline and temporarily closed the centre. He said, "It's the last thing I want to see."

Speaking Friday and not knowing of Mr. Darlings statements, he said, "It may very well be that we'll have to close the nursery temporarily. Parents would have to make other arrangements, but that's no real answer."

CHIEF FLETCHER

Picton Chief Opposes Re-installation of Meters

PICTON — Town police Chief Charles Fletcher has informed town council he does not support re-installation of parking meters near the top of the Town Hill.

Council's traffic and parking committee recently recommended replacement of the meters as a step toward solving the town's traffic problems.

Chief Fletcher noted, "During the period that no parking was allowed in this area the movement of traffic was significantly increased with both ways of traffic."

"The four lanes at Paul Street were of the utmost importance allowing traffic to emerge without long delays and long, lines of traffic," he said.

He suggested council should reconsider replacement of the meters before taking action.

Prince Edward County engineer Donald Clark also opposed re-installation of the meters.

"It is with some astonishment I note in the local paper that the Council has now decreed the curb lanes are to be eliminated, with the re-installation of parking meters. This is being done with much less than a one-year test of the pattern," he remarked.

Mr. Clark said a parking ban during certain hours is impractical because of enforcement capability.

"Other inconveniences voiced from time to time are insignificant compared to the benefits provided for the general public," commented the engineer.

FUNERAL QUESTION
WE ARE OFTEN ASKED

JOHN R. BUSH

R. DOUGLAS RUSHNELL

Q. SHOULD CHILDREN GO TO THE FUNERAL HOME? SHOULD THEY ATTEND FUNERAL SERVICES?

A. In our opinion while a child should not be forced to go to view the body of a deceased relative or family friend, the conduct of his parents ought to be such that it is a natural thing for him to accompany his parents on such an occasion. Death is a natural part of the life cycle and should be treated as such with children as well as with adults.

Q. IS IT NECESSARY FOR THE FAMILY TO BE AT THE FUNERAL CHAPEL TO RECEIVE FRIENDS?

A. It is not absolutely necessary. However, people who do take time to call expect to be able to express their sympathy and respect personally. Most visiting occurs between 2 and 5:30 p.m. and 7 until 9:30 p.m.

Fears of Seed Shortage Brings Rush of Orders

Farmers in the Quinte area appear to have anticipated a seed corn shortage caused by last year's bad growing conditions. Area seed dealers report farmers have booked their requirements early, but those who haven't could find seed of the proper heat unit variety is not available.

Don Thrasher of Thrasher Feeds estimates availability of suitable heat unit varieties for the area is down about 10 per cent from last year.

Bruce Bishop, Bishop Seeds, noted that there are about 10 major suppliers of seed corn. "Some may be out of a particular variety, leading people to think there is a serious shortage, but if you shop around, you can find what you want." Mr. Bishop termed his available supply "ample".

Frank Forestell, sales representative with United Co-operatives, Foxboro, credits farmers with planning ahead. "We had a large early booking and there are still some varieties available," he said.

Fertilizers will be readily available "at a price", suppliers agree. The price this year will be $10 to $15 a ton higher than last year.

Thursday, in Ottawa, agriculture minister Eugene Whelan, speaking to the Canadian Fertilizer Institute, delivered a hard-line rebuke for prices being charged farmers for fertilizer, particularly in Eastern Canada.

Trenton Bureau

Open Meeting Only LIP Service

By AL ZABAS

Staff Reporter

It wasn't trumpeted in Trenton streets as a great step forward or as a move to give the public what it wants. But, nonetheless, one could sense town council's sense of self-congratulation over answering what it saw as the public desire to know what goes on in council chambers.

Our meetings are now open. Our talk can be heard by all. This can be heard unsaid in the chamber and halls in that grey-cement structure.

Having painted that picture quickly, I'll now jump in with both feet where before only one foot was used.

The public is being led down that ever lengthening garden path. It's being given the fat instead of the meat, the chaff instead of the wheat.

As difficult as it may sound, council is giving only lip service to those discussions that it so recently opened to the public in its change of council proceedings.

A portion of the meaty talks, and there is obviously no way to know how much, is being conducted behind the closed doors marked 'Caucus'. Matters other than those which are usually accepted as caucus items — salaries, personalities, land deals, and legal business — are being discussed.

Discussions are formulated whether correctly based or not, and only the result appears in open council.

But to those who have said to me some bitter words about the "rubber stamp" nature of open sessions: we shouldn't complain, we were warned. Several councillors said some of their number will hesitate to enter frank discussion when all can hear.

It is far too easy to slip during caucus into discussion that does not belong there. No guidelines for caucus were promised when council opted for this new procedural format, have been established, or if they have, they have not been made public.

But guidelines aside, it is doubtful that slip will not be made again. After all, the step of public reaction is damnably slippery and undependable. However, what council appears to have slipped up on is its treatment of one of its municipal neighbors. And that slip occurred during a caucus session.

Let us take as an example, and a juicy one at that, council's treatment of Murray township, a municipality that has been frequently termed "friendly" towards Trenton and one from which the town expects one day to receive further parcels of land.

In 1974, Murray paid $12,000 for its fire protection. This year, the township received a letter informing it that it will pay $30,000 for the same service.

With that letter, more to the point, bill, not a word of explanation was offered. That simple courtesy was not extended. Needless to say, that letter goes unanswered.

Murray has no basis upon which to even make a guess at the reason for the dramatic 150 per cent increase. The reasoning behind council's decision is locked behind those caucus doors.

The point here is that the increase may be warranted and perfectly justifiable in dollars and cents. But how can the township know that it wasn't simply a figure pulled out of thin air?

Justice must also seem to be done and that done in the public forum.

But the bill came out of caucus — an abominably behaved bull (i.e. bill).

How can the township not help but feel that it has been treated unfairly? Even the profit-motivated industry provides an explanation, whether truthful or not, for its price increases.

If this latest bit of tidy business causes any bad feelings towards Trenton, one shouldn't wonder why. If I haven't said it before, I'll say it again, (phraseology correct letter), it's doubtful that town council will learn anything from this caucus-caused nonsense. Whatever comes its way now will come deservedly.

Gardening Column

Plan Landscape Like Your Home

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

By now all you indoor light gardeners are busily at work, seeding, transplanting, watering and feeding and probably totally oblivious to what's going on outdoors.

Perhaps you haven't noticed some of the things the outdoor gardening fans have noticed. Such as the warmth in that sun as it pours though a house or car window. And the fact that the soil on the south side of the house is now almost diggable. And that patches of green are appearing on those parts of the lawn that receive full sun. And that spring is officially less than 2 weeks away. And that it's time to turn to the planning of this year's exterior decoration of your home. Because that's what landscaping is really all about — the exterior decoration of your home — the extension of your personal lifestyle to the outdoors.

It is not the "me too" gardening — the copying of whatever you like in your neighbor's yard and adapting to your own. Not any more than the copying of your neighbor's furniture, drapes or broadloom. Rather, exterior decoration should be a very personal thing, a living area devoted to the personal outdoor living needs of you and your family. So, begin by thinking of your garden as a group of outdoor living areas and look on its decoration as you would the interior, applying the same principles of color, form and texture.

Look upon your lawn as your broadloom, trees and shrubs as your walls.

Along with the walls of your house, perennials as your furnishings — and every year — you use annuals to paint and decorate.

Perhaps the most important point to remember in any exterior decorating scheme is a plan that — first and foremost — pleases the people who are going to inhabit it. So why not start with the inhabitants. Sit down with them and get some priorities on paper. And find out which of these activities are going to be most important:

First, recreation, which can mean such activities as badminton, croquet, a future swimming pool, play activities for the kids, or whatever else you consider to be recreation.

Second, entertainment — including cooking — which can necessitate a patio or deck. And easy access to the kitchen, the bar and washroom facilities So there's no point in sketching in an entertainment area at the back of the yard.

Third, privacy and relaxation. What about a little secret place where you can be screened away from the neighbor's yard and second storey windows. A private nook for intimate conversation, sun bathing or a snooze.

Fourth, a work and maintenance area. This will probably be in a back corner of the yard, that you can screen off with a fence or shrubs — containing a shed, a compost pile and even a vegetable garden.

And last but not least, the joy of gardening and growing how much do you want to do and how much will you be able to handle.

Then pick up a pad of legal sized paper ruled in ¼ inch squares with onion skin to match. On the onion skin sketch in to scale, your lot, locating the house and being sure to mark in all the doors, windows, walks, driveways plus structures such as the garage and shed and of course all trees and shrubs you want to retain.

Now before you start, walk around the inside of the house and look out every window and decide what you want to see out each one: a flowering tree in May, a rose garden in June, a fountain or pool on a hot July day, late blooming perennials in August, a flame colored Euonymus or burning bush in the fall and evergreens against the snow in winter.

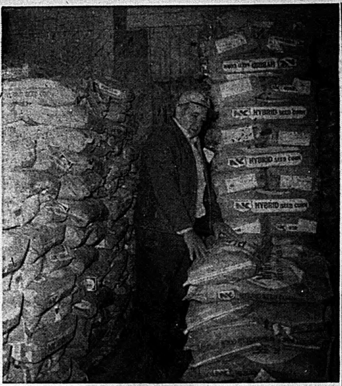
Jot all these thoughts down and then sit down with your family, your priority list, the drawing of your lot, and start sketching out your ideas on your onion skin overlay. And expect to make mistakes. Lots of them But don't worry about it. In gardening you can always move your mistakes — or bury them.

In any case, remember above all else, it's your plan, designed to suit you and your family's needs. Lay out lots of plans on your onion skin overlay. Try a dozen different ways of fitting your priority activities into your plan just as if you were laying out the rooms of a house.

And speaking of your house, don't forget its exterior walls, because they're part of your plan too. Take a walk outside and look at them from various locations. Are there any walls you want covered with ivy? Are there windows that should be shaded with trees? Are there any places for window boxes? Should the front be screened from the street with shrubs?

You can have a lot of fun laying out these plans now, and when the fine weather comes, you'll be ready for action.

Questions: All questions are welcome and will be answered. Please designate if free to use your letter in a future column. Simply address your queries to: Ross Hawthorne, The Intelligencer, Belleville.



All Sold

Bruce Thompson, proprietor of Thompson Farm Supplies, stands amid 60 tons of seed corn he has received for spring planting. It's all sold, as is an additional 40 tons that will be delivered later. As well as being in short supply, the seed is about $15 a bag more expensive this year than last, said Mr. Thompson.

Most farm supplies — seed, fertilizer, fencing etc. — are on quotas as shortages continue.

Picton Bureau

Council Needs Public Support

By MARG HAYLOCK

Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton town council usually plays to an empty house with the back-breaking bustle benches of Shire Hall apparently serving as a deterrent to most would-be spectators.

Regrettably, the town's affairs are conducted month after month, year after year, with almost no ratepayers in attendance.

Occasionally, a council issue, such as the Mary Street School debate, stirs public opinion and a delegation does address council.

Sometimes a project or a proposal such as a community swimming pool brings a group of enthusiastic organizers to Shire Hall for a presentation.

But most of the time the gallery is empty except for municipal employees and the press.

Since the majority of the electorate neglects to take time to observe councillors in action, election of the best man for the job becomes a shot in the dark instead of a careful choice.

Certainly, ratepayers can read all about it in the newspapers and discover what each councillor may have stated on a particular issue.

This may provide a guideline for casting a ballot but it cannot replace on the spot observation of council on the job.

Since a new council was elected in December, 1974, some spectators have attended its sessions.

In January the gallery was filled for the inaugural meeting and in February a Picton boy scout troop working toward citizenship badges attended the meeting.

This month several Picton ratepayers came to the regular monthly meeting of council to observe how town affairs are run.

This show of interest in municipal affairs during the past three months seems indicative of a new trend among the electorate.

Issues are not particularly hot at the moment but Picton residents seem to be concerned with what decisions are made and with who makes them.

This type of interest should be fostered, possibly through a ratepayers' group.

About seven years ago, a small group of Pictonians did band together in a ratepayers' organization. They met regularly and sent representatives to council meetings.

Unfortunately, the organization folded and since its disappearance no replacement group has been initiated.

Students as well as ratepayers probably could benefit from attendance at council sessions.

In this day and age of field trips why not permit pupils to see Picton first through a night at town council?

It's a safe bet that the majority of students, both elementary and secondary, are unfamiliar with council procedure.

Model parliament is a popular student activity at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute each year. Why not pursue this type of study through student visits to town and county council sessions?

The 1975 Picton town council is offering intelligent and often heated debate on questions of local importance. It's unfortunate that many of its electors are missing the opportunity of seeing the candidates in action.

2. Provision of facilities
3. Use of Automotive Equipment
4. The Casket Chosen

With the help of good advice, those arranging a funeral can readily determine the cost.

Animal Control

Some time ago, when the future of animal care in the Quinte region was being discussed, and Ontario Humane Society spokesman Tom Hughes was warning about increased costs, we suggested the time might be coming when the community itself would have to assume the responsibility.

That time has come. The city is ending its animal-control agreement with the Humane Society. It will build an animal pound and contract for pound and control services.

The decision has been made and it is in line with the times and with the circumstances. This is a job no municipality can shirk, whether it contracts for the service from the Humane Society, as Belleville has done hitherto, or proceeds to undertake the task itself.

It is a job we trust will be undertaken seriously, with the welfare of the animal population and the community in mind.

Poetry of Hockey

Al Purdy, as has been noted here before, is a poet of some eminence who lives in Ameliasburg, and his tall rangy figure may be seen around Belleville betimes. Purdy is also a writer who has ranged as far apart as the Canadian Arctic and Cuba for subject matter for his sensitive pen.

He also descends on occasions, from the clouds many folk believe poets inhabit, to write . . . about hockey.

Purdy can accurately be described as a hockey nut — like most Canadians of course — as witness his latest article for Weekend magazine, on the trials and tribulations of the latter-day puck artist, in this case one Brian Glennie. and on the playing of a rough tough game of skill that nevertheless is child's play.

As Purdy puts it: ". . . Of course, the men are playing a children's game, arrested in semi-permanent childhood until retirement and the beginnings of a potbelly. . ." A game too in which family life is not the ordinary run-of-the-mill husband home at 5 or 6 variety, not even one of matching interests, or being at the hospital at the wife's sickbed because hockey calls instead, but not necessarily a bad marriage either.

Sportswriter Dick Beddoes has quoted Purdy as saying hockey is "the Canadian specific." And there must be some mutual admiration here, because Purdy in his article speaks of watching a game with Beddoes and visiting the Leafs' dressing room with him and then talking with Glennie.

Purdy's observations on the game and its personalities are interesting, not only because of his local connections but because he seems to have a genuine feel for the game, even though his own experience was confined to what he calls pickup hockey at 17 and which he "quit shortly after that from shame at my own ineptitude."

But never mind, for here is a man who has made his mark in other and probably more lasting fashion, in the pages of Canadian literature.

Significant by the way in this context are some observations of Dr. Terry Orlick, a University of Ottawa psychologist. Purdy of course made reference to the body contact and injuries that occur in hockey. And Orlick believes violence in sport would be reduced sharply if children ran their own games. He says a recent study showed almost 100 per cent of 300 young hockey players interviewed do not like fighting and aggression in sport. More than 80 per cent rate fun as very important, and more than 70 per cent want to play in games that don't involve winning. He suggests the pressure to score goals and the tensions arising from being dropped from a team militate against the pleasure aspect of the game. Indeed Brian Glennie told Purdy there is no joy in the game when you're losing.

Well maybe, but take the competition out of sport and what's left really, for either players or fans? Perhaps one of our least well-developed sporting attributes is how to lose gracefully, "to meet triumph and disaster," as Kipling put it, "and to treat those two imposters just the same."

Local Events Color World Fortunes of Stock Market

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Stock prices tend to follow the same patterns on exchanges throughout the world—and yet in each financial centre, observers explain the market's rise and fall in terms of local events.

To some financial analysts, that's proof enough that the markets trends are not affected by those events of the day.

Rather (in their view) the market is reflecting the future prospects of world trade, which moves up and down in inexorable—and therefore measurable—cycles.

"Each country seems to regard itself—financially, at least—as the centre of the universe," says Australian-born Ian S. Notley.

"Financial journalists, commentators and analysts rationalize share-price movements by using their local scene for the cause of their market's price gyrations."

Notley, financial analyst with Toronto Stock Exchange member-firm Draper Dobie and Co. Ltd., occasionally collects examples of such diverse explanations of the same international trend.

Here are reasons he found, in the international press, for one world-wide upward movement in stock prices last fall:

—In Toronto and New York, the rise was attributed to the expectation of Arab investment in International Business Machines, Penn Central Railroad and U.S. gold, as well as to favorable views on Canadian and U.S. government economic policy moves.

—In London, the strength in Stocks was ascribed to budget hopes and to a trade-union leader's speech.

—In Australia, credit for the advance was given to rumors of dollar devaluation and prospects for the defeat of the socialist government at the polls.

—In Japan, the press discovered the bullish news that credit was about to be eased.

As one proof of his view that world trends and not local events are the determinant of stock-price changes, Notley shows a visitor a bar-chart plotting the two-year movement of shares of Yeo Hiang Seng Ltd. on the Kuala Lampur Stock Exchange, and another bar-chart of the TSE industrial index over the same period. They are almost interchangeable.

To show that this is not mere coincidence, a similar comparison is made between the share of Toohey's Brewery in Australia and Molson Cos. Class A shares in Canada. Again, the peaks and valleys of one stock coincides with those of the other.

So, what does that prove?

Nothing, if you are looking for positive verification. But it does help to indicate what the probabilities are.

Notley makes a comparison with a gambling house: The odds are in its favor because of the mathematics of the game. Success must depend on probabilities because there are no certainties.

"Likewise, there are no certainties in the stock market," says Notley.

"We attempt to time investment when the trend is suitable or the odds favor profitable trading from the existing condition.

"Knowledge of the trend is essential. Knowing the direction and speed of the trend is more important than knowing the cause of the trend."

One of the prime keys to spotting the trend, Notley believes, is the action on London's stock market.

London stock prices usually reach the peak of their cycle between one and six months before a similar down.

Buying signals are not as clearly foreshadowed. London and New York stock markets usually hit their low points at about the same time.

But if the cyclical theory is valid—and history does seem to confirm a repetitive four-year pattern—does the investor's choice of specific stocks make any difference?

In Notley's view, it is the difference in performance of the various industry groups that is significant. The long-term trends in Canada suggest that interest-sensitive issues are the first to advance in the initial phase of a bull cycle, followed by such consumer stocks as TV, radio, newspapers and breweries, followed later by trading and manufacturing stocks, and finally by the natural-resource and commodity areas.

As for the choice of an individual stock within the industry group, the cyclical theory holds that it doesn't make much difference.

Notley's advice is to buy the most marketable stock. "You can always buy it, and nearly always sell it in a hurry."

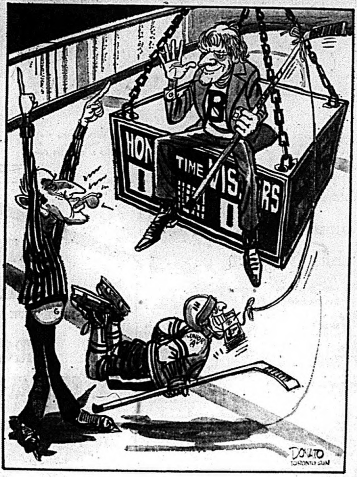
What is the current status of the Canadian market?

The cyclical charts suggest that Canadian stocks—as measured by the TSE industrial index — ended a 25 - month downturn in late 1974, some six months after London reached bottom.

(That preserved London's record of hitting a low every four years, dating back to 1970, 1966, 1962 and so on)

March and April could well see a "correction," or temporary decline.

Notley sees this as an opportunity to take advantage of good stock values in anticipation of a probable price uptrend, lasting possibly until early 1977.



Arabs Boycott Jewish Interests

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Arab countries are supporting and engaging in a practice which usually doesn't work, namely economic boycott, this time of companies and industries in the West controlled or owned by Jews.

A so-called Arab Boycott Office recently published an extensive and highly inaccurate list of American and European firms which have, it claims, Jewish managers and owners and therefore must be excluded from the Arab world's growing dealings with the West.

The list contains the names of companies with Jewish names but where the original Jewish owners are long-dead and present ownership has been diversified among many partners and public shareholders.

Such a firm is New York's famous investment and brokerage firm of Kuhn, Loeb and Company, founded in the 1880s by Jewish immigrants to New York, but whose present partners are highly diversified and clearly not overwhelmingly Jewish or "Zionist."

Another firm listed by the Arab Boycott Office is The First National City Bank of Chicago, a stupid listing, since there is no such bank.

There is a First National Bank of Chicago and a City Bank, one of the world's largest banks in New York.

Also included are firms which have branch operations in Israel but are more deeply involved in various Arab nations with financial and money markets, chiefly Lebanon and Egypt.

The Arab Boycott Office insists its underlying criteria in setting up such a list is to root out Zionists as the oil-rich Arab states start buying into Western companies, investing in Western and Japanese stock markets, using more and more the services of European and American financial communities.

Since the list they are using is so inaccurate and out-of-date, one can only suspect that someone in the Arab community of nations has reverted to the calumny of the infamous Protocols of Zion to prove that Jewish financial interests dominate banking and the money markets.

This new form of economic boycott, the latest of many we have seen in international affairs in the post-1945 world, is just as stupid as all the earlier ones, just as misconceived and just as incapable of working.

For all these reasons, plus the fact the innocent are always hurt in such political acts, this columnist is opposed to all economic boycotts, whether against Jews or Arabs, whites or blacks in Africa, Spanish or Greeks, (when the military junta still ruled there), in Europe.

After the Second World War it was Spain's time of troubles, shattered and broken by the civil war, to endure a United Nations diplomatic and trade blockade.

It suited the world's intellectuals and UN officials just fine because they didn't suffer. But the people of Spain did so, waiting yet another unnecessary decade before economic prosperity and the end of the UN boycott brought outside industry and funds to a country in desperate need.

The economic boycott against Rhodesia now in its tenth year has caused the Smith racist regime much hardship, but it hasn't brought that break-away nation to its knees.

Nor are the Israelis blameless. Their long military control of the east bank of the Suez Canal opened recently after being closed for seven disastrous years, has had devastating consequences on the Egyptian economy and hence added to Arab-Israeli emnity.

After the Egyptians took over the canal and managed it themselves between 1956 and 1967, they made more money out of its operations than its foreign owners ever did. Israeli intransigence denied Cairo about $350 million annual earnings from their canal.

Challenge to Police Act

The Day Fred Cass Resigned As Attorney-General of Province

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
of The Intelligencer.

One afternoon during the 1964 session I was at my desk when copies of the bills introduced that day were passed around.

The spotlight piece of the day was a new bill to control automobile dealers. A press conference had been called on it. But not being particularly interested I didn't intend to go.

Then I glanced at another bill, amendments to the Police Act. And after looking at it changed my mind.

On arriving at the conference, presided over by Attorney-General Fred Cass, they were discussing the auto dealers act.

"Fred, do you mind if I interrupt for a minute and turn to the Police Act?" I asked.

When he agreed I mentioned a certain section in the Act and asked: "Is this power in any other of our Ontario statutes?"

"No", he said, "it isn't". And then he added, "And it shouldn't be in this one."

The crowded press room immediately, of course, was shocked into attention. What was this all about? And they scanned the section.

What they found was that it would have empowered you or I or any of them to be apprehended, locked up and held without charge and without anybody being notified for an unspecified length of time.

It was blatant fascist law. And there was growing consternation in the room.

Bill Common the deputy attorney-general was sitting beside me.

"What are you so concerned about?" he asked.

"Where are the protections?" I replied.

He said, "they are in there" and I said "show them to me."

He looked through the bill and said "By God they aren't."

The press, of course immediately began throwing questions at Mr. Cass, who would say no more.

But the Police Act of "Bill 99" incident probably the most incredible in 30 years of Tory government history, was launched.

The next morning the Globe and Mail gave the incident its main line and a front page editorial. Some of the Robarts' government supporters freely gave interviews in which they said they would oppose the bill, in fact might resign from the party.

And after some 36 hours of fruitless defence, Premier Robarts finally announced that the section was being withdrawn and that Fred Cass was resigning as attorney-general.

This, of course, was sacrificing Mr. Cass, who took it without a whimper or a whisper.

But the question which was not pursued by the opposition at the time and which has never been actually answered was what happened that would make an attorney-general deny his own bill.

There were only two men who today could give a precise answer, Mr. Robarts or Mr. Cass, and neither has cracked. But on reconstruction and from what one has heard this, it appears, probably was the story.

Bruce J.S. Macdonald had been in the judge advocates branch of the army, crown attorney in Windsor and then had been named the first chairman of the Ontario Police Commission when it was formed in the late '50s.

One of the tasks assigned to Mr. Macdonald, as chairman, was to make a survey of the Police Commission's function and incidentally of policing in the province.

Subsequently he became a judge, which he still is, but he completed his report and submitted it.

In the report was a recommendation for the authority which was found so offensive in Bill 99. Also the report went directly to the premier.

From there on we have only supposition but this supposition is that Mr. Robarts, Judge Macdonald and Mr. Cass discussed the report.

And that though Mr. Cass protested Judge Macdonald insisted the authority was sided with him.

It is known that the legislation was not processed through the Attorney-General's department as it would ordinarily have been.

This is known not only from Mr. Common's reaction, but from further evidence gathered since then.

And Mr. Cass being loyal to his government and his party, although disagreeing, went ahead with putting the bill before the legislature.

And through doing this and subsequently becoming the goat without bleating earning the credit, though he will probably never get it, of being a man of political loyalty beyond peer.

Treatment for Mental Problems

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Would it interest anyone to know the services available in the Belleville area for a person with mental health problems?

We have two psychiatrists, a psychiatric ward and an outpatient's clinic.

There is treatment naturally on the psychiatric ward, but also a full day of therapy, exercises, group discussions and social activities so the patient is active. This is important as people need to be drawn out of themselves to become aware of their problems and learn how to handle them. A relaxed congenial atmosphere helps the patient recuperate.

The outpatient's clinic has personnel who will help bolster morale and help people understand their needs. The work also consists of administering tests to people having emotional and psychological problems to determine treatment.

Any person may be edgy, sleepless and at his wits end, but not know how to get help. Seeing the family doctor is the first step. Talking with him and receiving a little medication may be sufficient. If he feels that seeing a psychiatrist would help, he can make an appointment. It is quite normal for anyone to be overcome by stress under certain circumstances.

One safeguard after returning home from hospital is to share one's feelings with a trusted friend. See the psychiatrist as long as he feels it is necessary. Alone at home, it is very easy to become depressed, thus needing help again. Learning how to live serenely with one's shortcomings as well as one's good qualities, can help everyone retain good mental health.

Post Office Comes in for Praise

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

So many people today have nothing but complaints about the postmen in general, and I think it's about time they gave credit where it was due — and we have some very conscientious workers in our own Belleville Post Office.

Recently, my son, accidentally dropped an unmarked, unsealed envelope, containing a snapshot, into the mailbox with other letters. On inquiring at the post office as to the possibilities of my getting the envelope back, I was told they would see what they could do, but not to count on anything.

Two days later, I received the envelope in question, postage paid even, and not a wrinkle in the enclosed photo.

Now THAT'S what I call service, and I think it's about time folks started looking for the good in others instead of continuously criticizing them.

Canada's Weak Law Enforcement

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Justice Minister Otto Lang states: "Don't panic, we have a sound system and the laws to deal with the situation."

If your system is working, why is the law not standing up, Mr. Lang?

Why does your government not support the people in the front line of law enforcement?

These officers could be the thin line between Canadians and chaos; your spineless administration of Justice and Courts that permits dangerous criminals to move in and out of custody in a matter of minutes frustrates enforcement and hamstrings the law.

Why, Mr. Lang, does your government permit this? Panic never. But act now to protect human life, property and our national security. Otherwise it may be time for changes at the federal level.

We prefer votes to violence, and the great majority of Canadians are presently in no mood to accept more violence!

College Teaches Fishermen At Indian Village in B. C.

ALERT BAY, B.C. (CP) — Members of the Nimpkish Indian band have sent their fishing boats off into the waters of Queen Charlotte Straits for many generations.

Today, through a course offered by Malaspina College at Nanaimo, members of the band have a chance to instruct in and learn about the traditional livelihood of their forebears.

Last summer the Nimpkish band approached the vocational division of Malaspina with a proposal for a fishernmen's course to be run from the impressive Indian residence at this village near the northern end of Vancouver Island.

The proposal was enthusiastically received by college authorities, despite the problems posed by distance and locale. Alert Bay is about 250 miles north of Nanaimo.

Canada Manpower and the British Columbia department of education gave their approval and the course began last fall with an enrolment of 34 students. It is the first upgrading course for fishermen to be offered on Vancouver Island

Taking the course are 28 students from Alert Bay and six, two of them women, from nearby Sointula. All but nine of the class are Indians and three, Ben Alfred, Reg Cook and Bob Stadnyk, already run big salmon seiners, each worth more than $200,000.

The majority of students have previous experience of the salmon fishing industry having worked as deckhands for one or more seasons.

Although the two Sointula women have still to make their first fishing trips, both have experience with ships. Wendy Beattie spent two years working on a yacht in the Mediterranean while Charlene Sommers has worked as a ship's cook.

Students devote six hours a day, five days a week, to their studies. The time is evenly divided between studying navigation and net building and repairing. Part of the course also involves marine hydraulics.

The Indian residence at the village once served as a boarding school for Indian children but now provides the students with facilities for their classroom work.

Local fishermen Alvin and Pat Alfred teach traditional net-mending skills.

Until now women have had little to do with the net-making side of the B.C. fishing industry, particularly on the large seines. But when the course ends, Karen Cook and Christine Wadham, both of Alert Bay, will be fully qualified to work on the nets.

Chris Cook Jr., recently elected chief of the Nimpkish band and owner-skipper of the 35-ton salmon seiner Nimpkish Producer, is an enthusiastic participant in the course.

"If we could only have a few more courses like this nothing could stop Alert Bay boats from being the best in the province," he said.

Warren Ekness of Sointula, a former United States marine and experienced school teacher and college instructor, is responsible for day-to-day organization of the course and for the bulk of the teaching.

John Buckingham, a retired Canadian navy lieutenant-commander, and Andy Martin are the other specialist instructors, making occasional 500-mile round trips from Nanaimo to Alert Bay. Mr. Martin has had previous experience teaching native people in the Northwest Territories.

Recently three local seiners became floating classrooms. The students took the wheel, plotted courses, read bearings and became familiar with the vital routine and technicalities of accurate navigation.

Soon they will embark on another cruise, this time with the wheelhouse windows covered. They will be expected to complete the voyage guided only by their instruments.

Also planned for the final stages of the course is a series of workshops open to the public. These will include two-day seminars on the work of the department of fisheries, book-keeping for fishermen and a seminar about the Lummi Indian School of Aquaculture in Washington state.

Support for the course has been wide and generous. Students hear speakers from fishing unions, the Native Brotherhood of B.C. and the Pacific Biological Research Station at Nanaimo. They have talked to ferry skipper Captain Frank Brown and a member of the RCMP's are a boat patrol. And Alert Bay's mayor, Dr. Jack Pickup, has discussed marine medicine.

In addition, the Grade 6 class at Alert Bay School provided a selection of model ships for demonstration purposes and the John Redden Net Co. of Vancouver provided a supply of net-making materials including knives, needles and twine.

Physical Standards Decline

HAMILTON (CP) — The city's 60-year-old superintendent of secondary school education says the standard of physical fitness of today's high school students has deteriorated to such an extent that he could outrun 90 per cent of them.

For Ernie Hutton it is not an idle boast. He recently broke the 800-metre track record for his age group at the Ontario indoor championships in Toronto with a time of two minutes, 47 seconds.

Every student should have to jog at least a mile a day at his or her own pace, Mr. Hutton said.

He expressed concern about the great number of students who get no physical education because the province has made such instruction optional.

Mr. Hutton, who runs 'only 15 miles a week because of the lack of time," said he believes physical education, mathematics, reading and writing should all be on the compulsory list of subjects.

Although he is a strong supporter of high school team sports, Mr. Hutton said every child should have access to athletic facilities.

'Participation is more important than winning."

CUSO Offers Retired Chance to Help Others

TORONTO (CP) — Some men and women view retirement as bleak, while others head for a taste of adventure in foreign lands working with the Canadian University Service Overseas (CUSO).

In fact, so many workers in their 50s, 60s and 70s earned the respect of their foreign employers that CUSO is campaigning to attract more.

Margaret Sheehan, 64, described her five years in Kenya as good for her ego.

She said there is a special respect for age there. Elders are regarded as the wise ones in the family or community.

"I don't feel old even though I expect to pick up my old-age cheque in a couple of months," she said during a speaking tour. "I can pack a lot of work into a day."

CUSO volunteers do not need a university degree and age is no hindrance if a person is in reasonably good health.

"Trade skills are needed everywhere," Mrs. Sheehan said.

There is a need for farmers, mechanics, nurses and "of course," teachers in just about everything.

CUSO contracts are usually for two years and young volunteers are discouraged after the first term.

Mrs. Sheehan said CUSO encourages young people to regard the overseas experiences as only part of a life's work.

"We are paid on the same level as the indigenous person," she said. "It's enough to live on comfortably. And it's a good feeling to know the country pays us because it really wants us."

Mrs. Sheehan said she became interested in CUSO while taking a course in social leadership at Cody International Institute in Antigonish, N.S.

"I decided that the real estate work I had been doing wasn't enough to keep me busy after my husband died. I needed a change."

She met students from many lands at the institute and a group from Kenya urged her to spend some time in their country.

Mrs. Sheehan said her real estate experience was not needed in Kenya, but her earlier work of training secretaries was.

She said her decision to return to her home in Saint John, NN.B., was painful after five years in Kenya.

"I had made so many friends. Some called me mama and auntie—the highest compliment. They said I couldn't leave, that Nairobi was my home.

"But I have seven grandchildren and I was missing their growing-up years. And Kenya is a long way away."

Howeer,v Mrs. Sheehan is not dismissing the possibility of another CUSO term.

"I might take a look at what is needed in the Caribbean. That would be much closer to home."

Prices Review Board Reports On Nutrition

For the past few days we've spent a lot of time analyzing and condensing the findings of the Food Prices Review Board report, What Price Nutrition?

It's a mine of information and one of the best documents of its kind.

You can read most of its findings on these pages.

One of its assets is a listing of the recommended daily nutrient intake. We all know about the Canada Food Guide, of course, but it's so general that persons really interested in specifics aren't satisfied. And it doesn't allow for differences between ages. For example, infants, to three-year-olds need 10 micrograms of Vitamin D compared with 2.5 for everyone else. (Lactating and pregnant women need an additional 2.5 micrograms.)

The average adult woman requires 2100 calories a day (if she weighs 56 kilograms or about 123 pounds) and needs 41 grams of protein, 800 micrograms of Vitamin A and 2.5 micrograms of Vitamin D. She needs 6 milligrams of Vitamin E. Other requirements are 1.1 milligrams thiamin, 14 milligrams niacin and 1.3 milligrams riboflavin; Vitamin B6 requirements are 1.5 milligrams, folate, 200 micrograms and 3 micrograms Vitamin B12. The Vitamin C requirement is 30 milligrams.

The average adult male — weighing 70 kilograms — requires 3,000 calories a day. He needs 56 grams of protein; 1,000 micrograms Vitamin A; 2.5 micrograms Vitamin D; 9 milligrams Vitamin E; 1.5 milligrams of thiamin; 20 milligrams of niacin; 1.8 milligrams of riboflavin; 2 milligrams of Vitamin B6; 200 micrograms of folate; 3 micrograms of B 12 and 30 milligrams of ascorbic acid.

Besides these nutrients, everyone needs minerals. Women need 700 milligrams of calcium, 700 milligrams of phosphorous, 250 milligrams of magnesium, 110 micrograms of iodine, 14 milligrams of iron and 9 milligrams of zinc.

Men need 700 milligrams of calcium 800 milligrams of phosphorus, 300 milligrams of magnesium, 150 micrograms of iodine, 10 milligrams of iron and 10 milligrams of zinc.

Along with information about what you need to eat, the report lists substitutions you can make to save money and retain the nutrient quality of more expensive foods.

Within the milk group, for example, skim milk powder is your best buy and can be substituted for whole milk, cheese, process cheese and the like.

In the fruit group, vitaminized apple juice is the best buy along with oranges, or grapefruit, and strawberries and cantaloupe in season.

Best nutritional buy in the vegetable group is broccoli, cabbage, carrots, mixed vegetables, potatoes, spinach, squash and tomato juice.

In the bread and cereal group, buy whole wheat bread, converted or brown rice, enriched flour, enriched macaroni, rolled oats.

In the meat group, buy baked beans, eggs, hamburger, beef or pork liver, peanut butter and sardines.

What to Buy to Feed Your Family Well

Food prices are rising — can Canadians still afford a nutritious diet?

To answer that question, the Food Prices Review Board constructed a shopping list which includes foods necessary for a nutritious diet for a family of four persons — one teen-ager, one pre-teen and two adults — for one month.

The objective was to establish and price a nutritionally basic diet adequate for good health, familiar in terms of the food it contains and yet considerably below any level of living that could be considered luxurious.

The shopping list was chosen to reflect Canadian patterns of availability and consumption and to allow for individual tastes, variety and palatability within the long-term diet.

There are no vitamin supplements necessary with this diet and it reflects the recommended calorie intake at a level of light activity.

It's interesting that the shopping list includes a lower percentage of spending on meat and alternates and a considerably higher spending on fruit and vegetables than is the actual national average. The shopping list reflects Nutrition Canada's finding that Canadians eat too much protein and too few vitamin rich foods such as whole grain cereals, fruits and vegetables.

Here's the food list for one month for four persons:

Milk and Dairy Products — 36 quarts two-per cent milk; one lb. skim milk powder; one lb. cheddar cheese, one lb. processed cheese two 3-pint containers ice cream.

Fruit — 18 lbs. apples; 12 lbs. bananas; 2½ cans apple juice; one can tomato juice; 12 cans each applesauce and peaches; four cans frozen orange juice; 40 oz. prunes or raisins; four cans tomatoes; 1¾ lbs. fresh tomatoes.

Vegetables — 25 lbs. potatoes; four heads lettuce; four lbs. carrots; three lbs. onions; eight lbs. cabbage; 10 cans peas; eight cans corn, 4½ lbs. frozen vegetables, one can soup.

Breads and Cereals — 24 loaves white or 20 loaves whole wheat bread; 12 boxes ready to eat cereals; ½ lb. rolled oats; five lbs. flour; two lbs. rice; 40 oz. macaroni; 10 pkgs. peanut butter or oatmeal cookies.

Meat and alternates: four lbs. beef liver; four lbs. blade or chuck roast; two lbs. hamburger; 1¼ lbs. ham; five lbs. chicken; 3½ lbs. turkey; four lbs. fish; five cans tuna; four cans sardines; one lb. bologna; one lb. weiners; four cans pork and beans; 32 oz. peanut butter; five dozen eggs.

Fats and oil — eight lbs. butter; two lbs. shortening; 32 oz. cooking oil; 20 oz. salad dressing.

Other items — 10 lbs. sugar; 48 oz. jam; two lbs. coffee; 120 tea bags.

The food list also includes a two-per cent allowance for items like spices and ketchup.

How Much They Spend

The Food Prices Review Board notwithstanding, how much does it cost the average Belleville family to eat each week? These families have the same number of persons as the Board's typical Canadian family.

Joan McCulloch: I suppose I spend $25 to $30 a week on food. But we don't eat beef or roasts and no one in the family drinks milk. We use a lot of chicken and fish and I bake bread from frozen dough for 20 to 25 cents a loaf. I don't use prepackaged mixes to cook, either. In the summer we don't buy any vegetables because we have a garden.

Marion Andrews: I spend about $40 to $60 a week on food and cleaning supplies and the like. I have it worked out so that I buy staples one week of the month and have a smaller shopping list the rest of the time. At least once a month, it seems, there's a special on tissues and floor cleaners and things like that. But I don't pinch pennies on fresh vegetables and fruits.

Irene Sansome: I find it's more economical to buy groceries every two weeks. On a weekly basis I suppose I would spend about $40 but that includes everything. But then I do all my own baking and I don't buy dry cereals and convenience foods. I make my own soups, for example.

Here's Some Bad News And Some Good News

Sure, food prices are going up, but what isn't?

If that kind of thinking gives you some solace about food costs, that's nice.

But in fact, it isn't quite true.

In the five years since 1969, the food basket outlined as a nutritious diet by the Food Prices Review Board, has increased in price by 52 per cent. Housing has increased 35 per cent, transportation 27 per cent, clothing 24 per cent and recreation and health care 28 and 29 per cent.

Now for the good news: average weekly wages have increased 55 per cent.

SHINE SHOES

Shine patent leather shoes and handbags with a liquid glass cleaner. Apply the cleaner lightly and then polish dry with a soft, clean cloth.

What It Costs to Eat Here

The Food Prices Review Board shopping list of food required by a family of four for a nutritious diet establishes at least one fact: it's expensive to eat in Canada.

In St. John's Newfoundland that shopping basket would cost you $42.18 a week; in Vancouver, $43.05.

Ontarions are luckier: Toronto shoppers would pay $39.17 a week for the food, Ottawa-Hull residents would pay $38.96.

What about Belleville food shoppers?

The food list could be purchased here for $39.05, an amount comparable to Toronto and only very slightly higher than Ottawa-Hull.

In its pricing of the food list, the Review Board stresses that bargains — weekly specials — were not sought or even included. These are regular costs.

It adds that shoppers who check advertisements and purchase specials, who buy least expensive brands, who substitute lower cost products of the same nutrient value and who buy in bulk when possible will save considerable amounts of money.

For example, if you used skim milk powder instead of fresh liquid milk, within a one-year period you could save about $138!

GUIDES AND BROWNIES

The Belleville West Girl Guides and Brownies will prepare tray favors for St. Patrick's Day for Belleville General Hospital.

MADOC LENTEN SUPPER

Madoc's Lenten fish and chip supper proved so successful last year that there will be two held this year.

The St. John's Church Men's Club are again sponsoring the English-style fish and chip dinner, with home made pie, scheduled for March 14 and 21.

Last year's dinner fooled organizers in that they received such an overwhelming response, they really weren't prepared.

This year, to offset difficulties, the men's club is not going to prepare take-out orders, but sit-in orders only.

Two gas stoves have been purchased in order to cut down the waiting time. The dinners will be served in the Anglican Church Hall between 5.00 and 7.00 p.m. on both dates.

Female Heads of Families More Likely Poor Than Men

OTTAWA (CP) — Female heads of families are almost five times more likely to be living below the poverty line than are their male counterparts, a report by the Canadian Council on Social Development (CCSD) says.

The report, released Tuesday, shows 28.7 per cent of families living in poverty were headed by females in 1973 compared with 13.2 per cent in 1961. Families headed by women, the report says, constituted 8.6 per cent of all Canadian families in 1973.

The report gives a male family head 9.3 chances out of 100 of being poor and a female in the same situtation 40.1 chances out of 100 of being poor.

The council, using figures from Statistics Canada, defines a family living in poverty as one required to spend more than 70 per cent of its income on food, clothing and shelter.

The study also shows more than 30 per cent of the total single female population—608,300—to be on or below the poverty line and more than two thirds of all women under 25 to have annual incomes of less than $5,000.

The council cites almost no change in the proportion of the Canadian population living below the poverty line between 1967 and 1973. An estimated 18.2 per cent of Canadian families were living in poverty in 1973 compared with 18.1 per cent in 1967.

Poverty-line families in the Maritimes declined by 4.1 per cent from 1961 to 1973 while similar familes in the Prairies increased by almost five per cent in the same period.

Nurse Irma Giese, a native of St. Catharines, Ont., has just returned from the Amazon jungle where she tended sick Indian children in a Peruvian hospital. Here, she tells Shawn Butt, a patient at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children, some tales about her experiences in Peru. Her experience in the underdeveloped country has led her to apply for a federal government post nursing Cree Indian youngsters in northern Manitoba. (CP Photo)

From Peru to Northern Manitoba

TORONTO (CP) — Nurse Irma Giese, a native of St. Catharines, Ont., is accustomed to working 12 hours a day, going without food and enduring the high death rate of children.

Just returned from the Amazon jungle where she tended sick Indian children in a Peruvian hospital, Miss Giese is working at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children but her experience in the underdeveloped country has led her to apply for a federal government post nursing Cree Indian youngsters in northern Manitoba.

Conditions at the 120-bed hospital at Yarina Cocha—Lake of the Yarina Palm in Peru — were, in the 32-year-old nurse's words, "terrible."

"The mortality rate was between 20 and 30 children a month."

So the children were moved out of the main hospital into a nearby house, away from adults with contagious diseases.

"A typical day started at 6:30 a.m. and general nursing duties went on for 12 hours. After that stint I'd do 2½ hours of clerical duties, followed by giving lessons to local girls training to be nursing auxiliaries."

After three months on 4½ hours' sleep a night, she could not go on. But she had broken the back of the problems she had found in the hospital. The death rate declined to between five and nine a month. One month, only three children died.

Miss Giese said working in South America gave her an opportunity to show initiative but there was always the feeling of helplessness as she watched yet another child die.

"I earned about $50 a week. But often I didn't spend it on myself. It went to buy drugs and medical supplies when we had none."

Sometimes, when food ran out, the staff of the hospital went hungry.

"But the patients were always fed. And that is the way it should be."

The hospital will gradually grind to a halt if it does not receive more funds. Currently, the Amazonian Hospital Foundation is trying to raise $250,000 to carry on its work.

When the federal department of health and welfare summons her to her new post in Manitoba, she will put in an 18-month stint.

Blind Girl Triumphs Over Bad Treatment

This is a story about a nearly blind girl — she has two per cent vision, to be exact. Which means that if she can hold something one-half inch from her eye, she can see it.

She is going through university, and with her intelligence and her cheerful spirit, she is going to make it, and make it well. The present year is being paid for by a scholarship.

A loving friend reads to her, a lot. She reads her classical literature for her English class, and reported a few nights ago having read her 65 pages from Dickens' Martin Chuzzlewit that night.

This girl must have tremendous poise. Not long ago she was living in an apartment of her own, taking care of all her own wants and needs when it came to food and other necessities.

She had her apartment memorized; knew where every single item was, and could settle down to listen to a tape provided for her studies, without interruption.

A terrible thing happened: she heard someone break in her door and come over to her. She asked who it was and there was no answer. Presently she was seized and — raped! I can't think of a more despicable thing for a person to do. Her assaulter left the apartment and got away.

She called the police but no trace could be found. After that she felt it was not safe to live alone and moved in with a motherly older woman.

The experience shook her; and her closest friend (the one who read to her), feared greatly just what this kind of nervous and physical shock would do to her system and to her attitude to life.

But she needn't have worried Within two or three days this amazingly poised and rehabilitated almost-blind girl was saying to her: "Now look, this was a very unpleasant thing that happened to me. But it is over now. I do not intend to let it ruin my life."

Physically, she was examined and declared free of any disease.

This was great news and relieved her mind so that she could proceed to forget the great unkindness of a fellow human being who must surely have been temporarily unbalanced.

And here is the latest! She asked her reader-friend to come with her into her bathroom where she could stand on her scales, unclothed. She was on a weight-losing program and wanted to know results. She could not read the dial herself. When she was given the good news she rejoiced: "Hurrah! I've lost five pounds — and she hugged her helper.

Next time you start worrying about a hangnail, think of our almost-blind girl with the cheery, unbeatable spirit.

Ann Landers

'Unchained' Woman Bitter

Dear Ann Landers: People often talk to other people through your column. I'm sure this is not news to you because you're a pretty sharp dame. Well, I want to say something to somebody, but it's the same message that a lot of women want to transmit—so please, may I borrow your space today?

Dear You Know Who You Are: Do you realize that you were the stepping-stone to my new life? Well, my new life isn't all that great, but I wouldn't trade it for the old one.

You knew I was terribly serious about that other man. You also knew how much he loved me.

But you wouldn't quit bothering me.

Sure, at first I tried to avoid you. I was afraid I'd be too weak to resist your charm which you had by the barrelful. I was afraid you might make me forget my commitment. You knew all this, sweetheart.

But you wouldn't quit bothering me.

So every day you dished out a little more flattery. You knew how your sweet talk turned me on. You looked right through me with those sexy eyes.

And you kept bothering me.

I'd come home after being with him and cry my eyes out because I was thinking about you. I knew before long I wouldn't be seeing you at work anymore because I was getting married and moving to another place. But how could I break it off, so late in the game?

I could and I did. And I can't say I regret it. Obviously, he wasn't right for me. I'm actually relieved except for one thing. When I told you the wedding was off you quit bothering me.—Unchained

Dear Unchained: Interesting how many people want what they think they can't have and when it becomes available, they don't want it after all. Ah, the sweetness of forbidden fruit and the bitterness of a woman scorned. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please do not continue to say marijuana is harmless and that you would like to see it decriminalized. So many people read your daily, as I do, and we depend on you to tell us the truth.

Our family learned the hard way. Our teen-age son was a heavy smoker of marijuana and he suffered a complete breakdown. His recovery is slow and it is a painful thing to watch.

There is so much yet to be learned about this mysterious weed and what it does to the nervous system. I beg of you, Ann, please urge everyone—young people, especially—to stay away from it. They will listen to you ahead of their parents.—Sunrise, Florida

Dear Florida: Letters like yours drive me up the wall. I have been one of the earliest and most outspoken critics of marijuana, having stated my views categorically in this column at least a dozen times.

Please look up the word "decriminalization." That's what I am for. I don't believe young people who are caught with pot should be labelled criminals, put in jail and deprived of many of their constitutional rights. You say your son had a complete breakdown. I hope he was treated as a sick person, and not as a criminal. This is what I am fighting for.

Churches of Rome and England Kept Contact over Centuries

CANTERBURY, England (AP) — Through four centuries, while they were divided and supposedly bitterly hostile, members of the Roman Catholic Church and the Church of England kept contact, hoping and working for eventual reunion.

Sometimes the contacts were publicly discussed but most of the time they were secret.

Now the Holy See has opened its archives on this strange relationship to an English clergyman and his wife; collections of papers, reports, letters and diaries in England have been sifted and the story from the Reformation to the present day has been pulled together for the first time in a book published in January.

The authors are the Archdeacon of Canterbury, Bernard Pawley, 63, and his wife Margaret, a historian. He said the project began in 1960 when Archbishop Geoffrey Fisher went from Canterbury to Rome, the first visit to a Pope by an Anglican primate since the Reformation. Archdeacon Pawley was appointed Anglican liaison officer with the Vatican Secretariat for Unity.

"The dialogue is worldwide between Anglicans and Roman Catholics," he said. "It embraces all the provinces of our church and I have toured the provinces, observing progress and reporting back to the archbishop."

Archbishop Fisher's successor, Dr. Michael Ramsey, who retired in November, has forecast that reunion of the Christian churches might be achieved by the end of this century. What was the archdeacon's view?

"I don't prophesy," he said. "If the progress made in the last 25 years is continued in the next 25 they certainly will reunite. But the second and third stages of any long negotiations are more difficult than the first.

"We are making immense progress but there is patchiness. Some of the most rapid advance, and the most unlikely, is in South America where there has been intense antagonism between Roman Catholics and Protestants until fairly recently."

In 1964, a Vatican decree on church unity committed the Church of Rome to the union of Christendom by negotiation. "Since then, instances of co-operation between Anglicans and Roman Catholics have become so numerous that they have ceased to have news value."

The initiative for the Pawleys' book, Rome and Canterbury Through Four Centuries, came from Mowbrays, the English publishers of religious books. The book took seven years to write.

The archdeacon is a classical scholar in Greek and Roman history and philosophy. His wife studied history at Oxford. From 1961 to 1965 they lived in Rome.

"I went to the Vatican Library and fished things out and my husband went through them—he speaks better Latin," Mrs. Pawley said.

The schism between Rome and Canterbury occurred in 1534 when King Henry VIII wanted his own jurisdiction over the church in England. Priests who refused to assent to royal supremacy were persecuted.

When Henry's daughter, Mary Tudor came to the throne in 1553 she restored Roman jurisdiction. The final breach was made in 1558 with the accession of Elizabeth I. Catholics and Protestants separately revere as martyrs the priests and others executed by successive sovereigns in those times.

Because of the resentment among many people at the idea of maintaining contact with Rome, succeeding monarchs had to keep these contacts secret, the archdeacon said.

"Rome tried to win back England through negotiations with the Stewart monarchs. James I and Charles I were both reasonably good theologians and Vatican agents travelled clandestinely, reporting on the state of things and what the court thought.

"All the great and thoughtful people accepted the principle that reunion was possible, that the break was only temporary and to be deplored. But the hope must have looked a bit forlorn at times.

"Relations worsened during the years of Irish immigration into Britain in the last century because of the famine."

Yonge Street Mission Operates on Sin Strip

TORONTO (CP) — The Yonge Street Mission is in the heart of Toronto's sin centre.

Its neighbors include shops with photo blow-ups of bare-breasted women, body-rub parlors, games arcades, burlesque houses and a theatre with "the best uncensored sex films and stag movies."

The mission's message is Jesus—it wants to reach the thousands of young people, runaways, dropouts, swingers and the lonely drawn to the Yonge Street strip.

Rev. Harry Russell, mission director, estimates it has helped about 600 persons change their lives in four years.

He said eight or 10 are studying for the ministry, others returned home or to school and some surrendered to police for crimes ranging from rape to mugging.

Mr. Russell said almost all mission visitors are non-believers.

"It's a mistake to assume they are all cynical, disillusioned, uninhibited, anti-establishment youngsters with a belief in total irresponsible freedom."

He said they are interested in self-discovery, wanting to find out where they come from and where they are going.

The mission's staff includes medical doctors, psychiatrists, lawyers and other professionals.

Yonge Street Mission has been part of downtown Toronto since it was started by J. C. Davis in 1896 as an interdenominational mission.

For years it was a drab old building for losers—winos, skid-roaders, anyone needing a handout or emergency help.

Five years ago it was renovated at a cost of $170,000 and now it focuses on young people.

It also helps feed and clothe needy of all ages, operates a community centre in the downtown Cabbagetown area and has a summer camp 50 miles west of Toronto. Most financing is through private donations.

Rev. Joe Vallely, mission youth leader, said drug pushers operated openly in the mission when he came after the renovations. He kicked them out along with skid-road bums who hung around for free coffee.

Mr. Vallely said he wants young people to use the mission late at night when loneliness on the strip is greatest.

He said he knows some carry drugs but they are not turned away as long as they do not sell them.

Ian Ackroyd, 22, is one of the young people changed by the mission. He was an honors chemistry student at University of Waterloo two years ago. He also used and pushed drugs and tried to boost campus liquor sales.

After a bad shipment of acid and worries about his future, he headed to the Yonge Street strip and accepted an invitation to visit the mission "just for kicks."

He is in second year now at Central Baptist Seminary and headed for the ministry.

Brian Crilly, in his 20s, was using drugs and liquor heavily and was a successful drug pusher.

He said mission officials listened to his problems, gave him advice and encouragement and he gained "a personal relationship with God."

Brian said he still is tempted to use drugs and liquor occasionally, but an inner force keeps him straight.

Judas Not Only One Who Betrayed Jesus

By Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

Judas was not the only one to betray Jesus. To be sure, he did so more dramatically than the others. However, many of those who had committed themselves to Jesus renounced the commitment and returned to their former way of life.

The record shows that at one time Jesus had seventy well tried and disciplined followers whom he sent out, by twos, to towns and villages of Galilee. Earlier in his ministry he had even more. But all of these were eventually narrowed down to twelve.

Jesus said to them, "Will you also go away?" Simon Peter answered him, "Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life; and we have believed, and have come to know, that you are the Holy One of God" (John 6:66-69).

In spite of this assurance, however, we can be certain that even the twelve were at times embarrassed by their discipleship. To be sure, they could see the transcendence of the Master's point of view — that, indeed, any retreat represented a departture from realizing their highest selves. Yet they were pressured, as we are also, to renounce so complete a commitment. We should be profoundly grateful that all but one of the twelve remained close enough to the Master to accept the post-Easter commission to carry his Gospel into the world.

Any clergyman knows what a large reservoir of good-will remains for what he represents. He sees it in the faithful before him Sunday by Sunday. He hears about it after weddings and funerals. Scarcely a week goes by without somebody telling him, "I know I should go to church."

If you believe in the Church, should you not resolve to help more tangibly to promote it? Should you not fly your colors once more starting next Sunday? Should you not be generous in sharing your time and talents to the end of enriching the Church's program and providing leadership?

Jesus' followers have beaten a two-way traffic pattern across the centuries. One way is a thin stream that move constantly in the direction in which their Leader is going. The other consists of "in-and-outers", depending on trends or moods or even the weather.

Jesus understood the pressures to which you and I are subjected. But he put the qualifications for discipleship on the line. "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. For whoever would save his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life for my sake will find it" (Matthew 16:24-25).

To Provide Food

LONDON (CP) — Britain is to provide the World Food Program with 44,800 metric tons of food in the form of grain and flour, under the terms of the Food Aid Convention of 1971, at a cost of about £3 million ($6.9 million). She also will make a cash contribution towards the transport and administrative costs of delivering the food.

Ringing Tone

ASHBURTON, England (CP) — Mrs Amy Jones, 83, had a sound idea when she found herself accidentally locked in after a morning church service in this Devon community. She rang the church bell and after 182 chimes, help arrived.

60 Seconds Could Produce Job

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The Canada Manpower Centre (CMC) instructor for its Creative Job Search Technique course says "the employer today, for the most part, is looking at the whole person."

So an applicant should relate as much pertinent information about himself as possible, yet keep it short enough so that it can be perused in about 60 seconds.

"Basically, if you can write your job qualifications in one minute or less, you'll be a lot further ahead," comments Grant Armstrong of Belleville CMC.

He outlines a basic rule-of-thumb which shows an employer usually looks for 90 per cent skill and 10 per cent personal qualifications in a production line operation, and 70 per cent personal qualifications and 30 per cent skill in a management position.

The applicant's resume should include job qualifications from four sources and the first is education, depending on the length of time he has been away from it, says Mr. Armstrong. If anywhere near current, give a course summary, he adds.

Outline training in detail if it is relevant to the job, he says. As for experience, always start at the last or current job and always include both paid and unpaid occupation. And if it has been all in the same line of work, list the duties and functions.

As for the personal category, "the employer today is interested about you," notes Mr. Armstrong. Include such things as awards or recognition received, memberships in any organization, hobbies and sports.

But the most important point in seeking employment is what the applicant knows aoubt himself, says Mr. Armstrong.

Questions an applicant should ask himself are "what do I want — what skills have I — how much of what can I do — what are my interests?"

Mr. Armstrong says one should write down likes or dislikes (for personal use) of people data and things. "Make a list and be realistic."

Reason for this self-analysis? "We have limitations we put on it (job) ourselves," he says.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 8, 1975

Snow squalls added an extra touch to wintry bushland scene Friday as organizers of Quinte-Hastings Recreational Trail took federal officials on snowmobile trek for on-the-spot look at Local Initiatives Program development work along the trail near Gilmour. Talking over project at picturesque bridge along Beaver Creek are (from left) Grant Harvey, Barbara Heller, LIP project officer, Vera McMurray and Jim Staveley.

Quinte Trail Seen Through Snow

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

GILMOUR — Organizer of the Quinte district's biggest outdoors project Friday got a chance to officially show how it's developing.

The opportunity meant a snowmobile trek through the bush as a snowstorm moved in.

But the trip went as planned for directors of the Quinte-Hastings Recreational Trail (QHRT) now engaged in improvement work along a 90-mile stretch of the outdoors route running north from the Belleville area.

The work is being funded by a federal Local Initiatives Program $27,000 grant which will provide nine wintertime jobs before it ends.

Reason for the bush trip was that the volunteer organizers of QHRT were anxious that federal officials get an on-the-spot view of the project.

In the area was Barbara Heller, project officer for programs in the region.

QHRT directors and workers trekked Mrs. Heller along the trail to picturesque Morton's Chutes — a bridge built along the trail spanning Beaver Creek rapids, about three miles northwest of here.

The LIP grant funds only QHRT work in Hastings constituency, roughly midway along the trail's 250 miles from Lake Ontario to northwest Hastings County.

Assignments involve clearance of the route and clearly-defined direction signs along with grooming and clearing.

Grant Harvey, QHRT secretary-treasurer, said later the work program is running on schedule.

No April Fool's Joke In Conversion to Celsius Scale

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

For those with low boiling points the change from Fahrenheit to Celsius degrees should make it appear even lower on April 1 — and that's no fool's joke.

April 1 has been scheduled for Canadians to begin thinking room temperature is 20 degrees Celsius not 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

It will also mean Belleville will be under a heat wave when thermometers soar to 40 degrees Celsius.

Radio stations have taken the lead in educating the public. For the past six months they have been broadcasting the daily temperatures in both scales.

The efforts have apparently worked since Belleville hardware stores report a substantial number of request for Celsius thermometers. But a survey of the stores revealed the orders are hard to fill because supplies of Celsius thermometers are inadequate.

The April 1 deadline is the first of several metric deadlines that should end by 1980 when Canada has completely switched to the metric from the imperial system.

School children will have the easiest transition as teachers have been implementing the metric system for several years now.

Dave Snedden, math co-ordinator for the Hastings county board of education, said most students adapt easily to the Celsius system.

There is a simple formula for converting Celsius into Fahrenheit degrees or vice versa. However, most educators tend to discourage conversion.

For those interested in changing Fahrenheit to Celsius degrees you substract 32 degrees and then multiply the factor by five-ninths.

For changing Celsius into Fahrenheit degrees you multiply by nine-fifths and then add 32 degrees, simply reversing the formula.

The city's filtration plant will not be immediately affected but city workers would do well to accustom themselves to the new system.

Al Rogers, assistant superintendent at the filtration plant, said instrument changes will not take place until 1977.

The filtration plant depends heavily on temperature gauges which are all scaled in Fahrenheit degrees. The government has allowed an additional two years for instrument replacement.

There will be no problem at Trenton's CFB weather station, as meteorologists there have been using Celsius readings for years.

John Pelto, a meteorologist at the station, admits there will be a slight adjustment but weather information is usually converted from Fahrenheit into celsius degrees for world distribution.

For many, from the old school, there will be a strong urge to refer to the new scale as centigrade degrees rather than Celsius degrees.

The system, based on zero degrees as the freezing point and 100 degrees as the boiling point, has been referred to as centigrade for many years. However, a world science convention in 1948 determined that in order to avoid confusion the scale would be called Celsius after its founder, Swedish scientist Anders Celsius.

The word centigrade can also apply to angular measurement. The Celsius system was developed in 1742.

By summer time Canadians will be well versed in the new scale and most Belleville residents will know that when it's 28 degrees — it's time for a swim.

Oh yes, the thermometer will dip to -9 Celsius tonight.

Just Right

Alice Mitchell, a 16-year-old student at Centennial Secondary School, points to a new Celsius thermometer which reads 20 degrees for room temperature rather than 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

Education Beat

Climate Change Can Be Seen

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Walking from the Leeds and Grenville county board of education into Hasting's Education Centre is like moving from Ontario to Florida in March.

It's not the location that matters but rather the change in climate that makes the difference.

Apparently the difference is referred locally to as "trust, openness and risk"

In comparison the administration in Brockville is riddled with mistrust, misunderstanding and a lack of openness that is suspect by both the public and press.

The Brockville maverick trustee John MacLean continues to batter away at the system while well-known director Lloyd Dennis co-author of the landmark Hall-Dennis Report continues to bear the brunt of his attacks.

Despite this cloud of controversy and personality conflicts the major aims of the educational system are accomplished within the jurisdiction of the Leeds and Grenville county board of education.

The Hastings board of education has obviously decided to operate on a different theme and one which seemingly has produced positive results from educational and a public relations point of view.

It is refreshing and encouraging to see this type of atmosphere at the Education Centre.

However, it can never be overlooked that the real test of an administration's success or failure can only be found in the classrooms and the environments in which the students live.

In years to come these two areas, the classroom and environments in which the students live, will decide the success or failure of an educational system.

No doubt, a mood of openness and trust supported by the director and his administrative staff is a key element in implementing successful classroom policies.

One of the aims of this column in the future weeks will be to explore and assess just how effectively this mood of "trust, openness and risk" filters into the classrooms and its impact on the 13,897 students within Hastings educational system.

Item: Downtown Merchants Favor New Liquor Outlet

BRUCE ALEXANDER

Manager of Muntz Stereo Centre downtown, Bruce Alexander says: "I think such an idea would be an asset to the downtown area. It would provide a service. It would be nice if it was self-serve.

"As for the parking problems that may result, we definitely need more parking downtown and need it immediately."

TONY SALOTTOLO

A sand cutter at International Hardware, Tony Salottolo feels: "I think having a liquor store downtown is a good idea, not that I drink a lot.

"I'd like to see it self-serve. If they can have it in the United States why not here."

JUDY HICKS

Restaurant waitress Judy Hicks: "I think there should be a liquor store downtown. It's too inconvenient the way it is now (having two outlets at opposite ends of the city. Having it downtown means a saving in gas or bus money.

"I think they should all be self-serve. It saves a lot of time and is more convenient than waiting in line".

JOHN KIDD

"I don't think it is a good idea," says John Kidd. "It's going to create worse traffic problems. What they should do is concentrate on the empty stores downtown and fill them in with something like a liquor store or else tear them down. We're just asking for traffic bottlenecks with a liquor store downtown.

"As for self-serve places, if there is one downtown, this idea would make for easier and quicker service."

BILL KUIPERS

Owner of Quinte Hairstyling Bill Kuipers was in favor. "I think this is a fantastic idea. When you look at how many more people buy liquor than get haircuts and then look at the number of haircutting places compared to the number of liquor outlets, this idea makes sense.

"I don't think it should be a self-serve place. I know the number of the brand of liquor I usually buy anyway and it's nice to let someone else do the running around for a change."

KAREN MILLIGAN

"It's nice not to have to worry about going to the other end of town to get liquor," notes Karen Milligan. "Having an outlet downtown is more convenient as a lot of people don't drive and Station St. is out of the way for many.

"I think it should be kept the way it is with the forms to be filled out before buying. I like being waited on."

SPIRO BALIOTIS

Restaurant owner Spiro Baliotis: "I think the idea is just great. It would save a lot of problems. It's a lot handier to go and pick up your liquor downtown without worrying about driving all over.

"It should be self-serve. Since it's going to be downtown, the stock should be safe. No one can take something and start running away with it if is downtown."

Canucks Win Showdown with Hawks

Lafleur Returns, Fires a Pair

By GLENN COLE
The CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks are still hanging tough in their battle with Chicago Black Hawks for first place in the Smythe Division of the National Hockey League.

The Canucks, winners of only two games on a recent eight-game road trip, moved back into top spot in the division Friday night by edging the Black Hawks 2-1 in one of four games. Vancouver now has 70 points in 66 games while the Black Hawks have 69 points in 67 games.

In other action, Montreal Canadiens downed Washington Capitals 8-4, Boston Bruins topped Atlanta Flames 4-2 and New York Rangers skated to a 5-2 win over Kansas City Scouts.

"Te have proven in the past that we win games when we hit hard and I think we did just that tonight," said Vancouver defenceman Bob Dailey.

The victory was Vancouver's third in five meetings with Chicago this season with one more scheduled for Chicago March 16.

The Canucks took a 1-0 lead in the first period on Andre Boudrias goal and Leon Rochefort gave them a 2-0 lead at 18:40 of the middle period. The Hawks rallied in the third period, outshooting the Canucks 16-7, but Dale Tallon's third goal of the year at 6:35 was the only shot to elude Vancouver netminder Gary Smith.

At Montreal, the Capitals gave the Canadiens a bit of a scare before collapsing in the third period as Montreal fired four unanswered goals.

Guy Lafleur, back in the lineup after missing 10 games with a broken left index finger, scored two goals and two assists to become the first Montreal player to reach the 100-point plateau. He has 46 goals and 54 assists.

"I was nervous at the start," said Lafleur. "But it was good to get back in the lineup. The doctor told me he didn't want me to play until Sunday, but I thought I was ready for tonight."

"I wasn't worried about his finger," said Montreal coach Scotty Bowman. "I knew it was all right.

"But I didn't feel he would be as ready as he was. He hadn't played for quite a bit. He kept himself in pretty good shape though. We had a lot of games in the last while and he was pretty much on his own."

The Canadiens trailed 4-3 at one stage in the second period but Lafleur tied the score with his 45th goal of the year at 16:20 of the middle session on Montreal's third shot of the period. At one stage, the Caps had an 11-1 edge in shots in the period.

Washington now has played 34 road games and have lost 34.

At Atlanta, Boston goaltender Gilles Gilbert turned aside 28 shots to help the Bruins to their fifth consecutive triumph.

The line of Don Marcotte, Andre Savard and Terry O'Reilly accounted for the first three Boston goals with Bobby Orr firing the puck into the empty Flames net with eight seconds remaining after goaltender Phil Myre had been lifted for an extra attacker.

Veteran centre Peter Stemkowski scored two goals, one of them in a three-goal second period, to lead the Rangers past Kansas City.

Goaltender Dunc Wilson, acquired from Toronto on waivers last month, made his first start for the Rangers and made 27 saves.

Tonight, New York Islanders visit the Canucks, Chicago plays the Kings in Los Angeles, the Scouts meet the Red Wings in Detroit, Toronto Maple Leafs play host to Minnesota North Stars, Philadelphia Flyers travel to Pittsburgh to take on the Penguins and Buffalo Sabres visit St. Louis Blues.

Sunday, the Rangers play host to the Canadiens, the Islanders conclude their western swing with a game in Oakland against California Seals, Philadelphia is at home to Detroit, Atlanta goes to Boston, the Leafs visit Washington, St. Louis goes to Minnesota and Pittsburgh is at Buffalo.

Brian Spencer

Judge Steps In

BUFFALO (AP) — A New York Supreme Court judge has issued an order temporarily banning Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League from trading left-winger Brian Spencer, pending a hearing Wednesday.

The order, issued by Justice Joseph Ricotta on Friday, was requested by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Booker of suburban East Aurora, who are suing Spencer for $175,000, charging he hit Mr. Booker after their cars collided.

Spencer has been charged with a misdemeanor count of third-degree assault, pending in a suburban court.

The Bookers said they saw reports that the Sabres were about to trade Spencer, which they say would make it difficult to collect money they might win in the lawsuit. The NHL trading deadline is Sunday.

In his suit, Booker says his auto was struck in the rear by Spencer's car last Nov. 1 in West Seneca.

The lawsuit states that Spencer hit Booker on the face, head and body and slammed him over the car, and seeks $100,000 in punitive damages, $65,000 for injuries and $10,000 for Mrs. Booker's loss of companionship.

Huskies Take Series Opener

HALIFAX (CP) — Both coaches agreed that St. Mary's strong forechecking was the key to the Huskies 4-2 win over University of Toronto Blues in the first game of a National Intercollegiate hockey semi-final Friday night.

"Don't take anything away from St. Mary's," Blues coach Tom Watt said. "They came out in the first period and worked harder than us, they were beating us to the puck."

Huskies coach Bob Boucher said that except for a four-or five-minute lapse in the second period, "we were on them all night."

The victory gave the Huskies a 1-0 lead in games in the best-of-three series. The second game is scheduled for tonight and a third if necessary will be played Sunday night.

The winner advances to the championship against the victor of the Loyola of Montreal-University of Alberta semi-final.

The win over the Blues was the first for the Huskies this season after dropping two exhibition and two tournament games to the team.

The Blues defeated the Huskies in four straight national championships from 1969 to 1973.

The Huskies were ahead 3-0 at the end of the first period on goals by Jerry Keough, Scott Grady and D'Arcy Murphy. There was no scoring in the second period but the Blues managed to get their playmaking started.

Two goals early in the third period by Bill Fifield and Larry Hopkins put Toronto back in the game and they threatened several times until rightwinger Ray Monette scored at 13:46 to wrap up the game for the Huskies.

"You can't keep up a strong forechecking game for 60 minutes."

"But we're blessed with a fourth line that we can put in the game in later stages and that helps."

Watt said that St. Mary's first two goals, one on a power play and the other while shorthanded, gave the "Huskies a big lift and added to their hussle. It also put us at a greater disadvantage because we had to take more chances at scoring which gave them more chances."

Barrie Flyers Rally To Defeat Terriers

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Barrie Flyers scored four goals in the third period to defeat Orillia Terriers 6-4 in the only Ontario Hockey Association Major Senior A game Friday.

Orillia led 1-0 after the first period but Barrie rallied in the second period to tie the score 2-2.

Bob Baird and Phil Branstone each scored twice for the league-leading Flyers. Ken Knapton and Bill Abbott got the others.

Danny Lutes, Colin Gordon, Jim MacPherson and Bob Clayton replied for Orillia, outshot 29-28.

The other game scheduled for Friday, Napanee Comets visiting Brantford Foresters, was cancelled because of a snowstorm.

League play resumes tonight with Whitby McDonald's travelling to meet Cambridge Hornets and Barrie in Orillia. On Sunday, Napanee entertains Whitby.

Players Brawl in Corridor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If it's a lack of excitement that has been keeping fans away from World Hockey Association games in Edmonton, they should come back in droves after Friday night's 4-0 win by the Oilers over Vancouver Blazers.

With general manager Bill Hunter taking over as interim coach, the Oilers staged a bench-clearing brawl, but it was a brawl with a difference. Most of the paying customers didn't see it.

The unpleasantness took place under the stands, in a corridor leading to the dressing-rooms.

In Friday's other WHA games, Quebec Nordiques downed Toronto Toros 4-1, Baltimore Blades edged Indianapolis Racers 5-4 and Phoenix Roadrunners stopped Winnipeg Jets 7-4.

Edmonton's Doug Barrie and Vancouver's Ron Jodzio, ordered to their dressing-rooms by referee Ron Ego after they drew major penalties for fighting late in the game, renewed hostilities in the corridor.

Moments later, the crowd of 9,810 watched coach Joe Crozier of the Blazers run along the corridor, followed by his players. Edmonton players, encouraged by Hunter, did the same thing.

Main participants in the brawl under the stands were apparently Jodzio, Barrie, Tom Gilmore of Edmonton and John MacKenzie of Vancouver.

When the teams returned to the ice about 10 minutes later, no penalties were assessed.

Hunter, who was taking over while Brian Shaw took a one-month rest, has expressed concern over falling attendance at plaining that the Oilers were playing dull hockey.

Crowds have dropped from an average 12,000 earlier this season to about 8,000 a game.

Edmonton goalie Ken Brown turned aside 31 shots Friday for his first WHA shutout.

The win moved the Oilers within five points of the second-place Toros in the Canadian Division with four games in hand. Vancouver, which entered the game tied for fourth with Winnipeg, now is five points behind Edmonton in the race for a possible wild-card playoff spot.

Veteran defenceman J.C. Tremblay shrugged off a shoulder injury to remain in the game at Toronto to score Quebec's second goal and set up the Nordiques' third goal.

Doctors recommended that he not return to the game after he fell to the ice with a Toro on top of him in the first period.

Renald Leclerc added two goals and Rejean Houle one for the Nordiques.

An overtime goal by Reggie Thomas gave the Blades their win. Gary Veneruzzo had scored two goals and assisted on a third for Baltimore.

Defenceman Gerry Odrowski broke a 17-game scoreless streak with the first goal of a decisive three-goal third period for the Roadrunners. Dennis Sobchuk got two goals for the fourth game in a row for Phoenix while Boboy Hull had a pair of goals for Winnipeg.

Gas House Crackdown

SLICES — Officials of the Gas House Hockey League didn't waste any time in dealing with players who were involved in fights during a recent league game. And it is clear those in charge of the loop are not about to condone such actions.

Five players will miss opening games of playoff series and each has been fined $10.

The annual Shrine Peewee Hockey Tournament is more than three weeks away but if the event were to start tomorrow, most of the important details are well in hand.

Jean Reid and Doreen Meagher have billeting under control, reports co-director Don Gavey who is sharing duties with Gord McInroy.

Sixteen teams will be in action in the April 4-5-6 tournament.

For the first time, St. Catharines and Cornwall will be represented and Whitby is making its first appearance in six years. London will be here along with Peterborough, Toronto Blues, Ottawa Knights, Brampton, Oshawa, Niagara Falls, Kingston Township, Nepean, Kingston City, Windsor, Trenton and, of course, our own Belleville Rollins.

Standby teams are Burlington and Bramalea.

Belleville and District Fish and Game Club reminds anglers that the pickerel and pike season ends April 1 and reopens May 3 in Prince Edward County, and May 10 in Hastings County.

The club's next regular meeting is Tuesday, March 11 at the Oddfellows Hall, 8 p.m.

Athletic supervisor Rob Stinson's Loyalist Lancers placed three players in the list of top 10 scorers in Ontario Colleges Athletic Association, Eastern Division basketball action this season, according to statistics released recently by divisional convener, Brian Murphy.

Bill Kyle's 226 points (91 field goals and 44 successful attempts from the foul line) gave him third place behind Peterborough's Scott Harrigan with 270 points and Lindsay's Danny Chow with 259.

In sixth place is Loyalist's Jim Sutton with 208 points and Dave Culmer is ninth with 192.

Kyle's percentage from the foul line, 68.7 (44 made in 64 attempts) was second only to Ottawa's Jim Norris who was good on 32 of 46 attempts for 69.5 per cent.

As a team, Loyalist was runnerup to Kingston in foul shooting, 60.1 per cent to 58.8.

Lancers finished fourth in the league standings. Stinson's club, with the individuals mentioned above, carrying much of the load, deserve a pat on the back for a sound effort.

A six-team grouping is assured for the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League (BDLSL).

With entry fee and bond paid, and ready for the start of league play, are Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund, Ellis Construction, Lakeside Oxygen, Purina-ettes, Mobil Plastics and Belleville Broadloom.

Originally, plans had called for an interlocking schedule with teams from Cobourg and Lakefield but those two centres have joined a league in their area; ruling out the necessity of playing a partial series with the BDLSL.

A mid-season all-star game is planned this year with 1974 champion Purina-ettes hosting the event at Madoc when they will meet a team selected by coaches of the other five clubs.

Kevin Kirby, Premier Soccer League Belleville Olympics, is proving to be a constant source of information when it comes to reporting on happenings in "his game". And it is appreciated.

Several players from this area have been selected to attend a soccer "concentration" in Peterborough this weekend.

In the under 16 age bracket are Belleville Minor Soccer Association products George Moletta, Taso Christopher, Dale Clarke and Nick Wilkinson while Trenton Minor Soccer's Terry Cuculuzzi is also included in the group.

Under 21s taking part are Charlie Nesteroski, Steven Edwards, Thomas Maxwell, Keith Lawday and Gary Donavan, all of Golden Mile Olympics, and John Holard of Cobourg's Tony's.

Jim MacDonald, with Trenton Whitley Insurance in the Bay of Quinte Association last season and another Golden Miler, Dario D'Anna, were also selected but are unable to attend.

The Saturday and Sunday Peterborough sessions will be run by former Scottish International goalkeeper Bill Brown and Arthur Rodrigues, coach of the North American Soccer League Toronto Metros.

MAKING USE OF THE BOARDS

There are numerous ways the boards can help you. In checking, the boards often assist you squeeze the puck carrier out of the play. Notice the word is 'squeeze' not 'board' someone out of the play.

Apart from this physical aspect, the boards can be useful in either developing a scoring play or clearing the puck out of danger.

The offensive use of the boards can start when a defenceman spots one of his players behind an opposing player. In this case, if he can't send a clear pass to him, the defender might carom the puck off the boards. Once the teammate has received the pass let's say he is skating up the wing and about to meet a checker.

When the checker comes, the puck carrier might send the puck off the boards, skate around his checker and retrieve the pass. Another way to use the boards offensively occurs in your home rink. Because you play there more often than visiting clubs, you should be very familiar with the 'bounce' off the boards.

That is why you'll often notice an attacker shoot the puck off the boards and, as the opposing goalie or defenceman turns to chase the puck, the shooter is ready for the bounce off the boards and generally gets an excellent scoring opportunity.

Defensively, the boards are helpful in clearing the puck out of danger. Defencemen, myself included, like slapping the puck off the boards because we know men on the points will find a clearing pass off the boards harder to control than a direct clearing attempt.

Do not avoid making drills with the boards mandatory in workouts. There is no telling how many games you might win just by being able to make the boards a part of your game.

No Generation Gap

Sam Mulholland, 67, of Kingston and his grandson, Sam Mulholland III share a common interest in harness horse racing. They are working at Picton fairgrounds with the pacer "Muddy Dares", filling in for Sam Mulholland II who is on vacation. Three generations of the Mulholland family have raced and trained Standardbreds.

Mulhollands and Horses A Winning Combination

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Morning begins at 7 for 67-year-old Sam Mulholland and his grandson Sam Mulholland III as they train a stable of Standardbreds at Picton fairgrounds.

Since a recent win at Frontenac Downs with the Mulholland Stables "Muddy Dares" Sam III is convinced early morning workouts pay off.

The 20-year-old harness horse driver, who has been in competition on Quinte area tracks for three years, is a third generation teamster.

His grandfather raced his first Standardbred in 1924 and his father, now holidaying in Florida is a well-known race driver in this area.

Sam's grandfather, a Kingston resident who is spending a week in Picton to help his grandson with stable chores recalled his interest in racing began as a small boy.

His father owned several horses and worked for the city of Kingston, operating horse-drawn dump wagons and water carts.

"Old Sam," as friends call him to minimize confusion, began to work for Steacy's department store in Kingston in 1924, driving a delivery wagon.

Two horses were used in rotation on the delivery cart and one of these, a trotter named Daisy Penalty, was the first horse ever to be raced by the elder Mulholland.

He notes that in the 1920s the trailers used by harness horsemen had not been invented yet. Drivers teamed their entries to the meets and cooled them out by driving home.

"Old Sam" recalls driving from Kingston to Inverary, a distance of more than 10 miles, to race.

One of his favorites in a lifetime of Standardbreds was the trotter Margaret Lee, a horse he drove at Belleville Fair, Kingston, Centreville and Napanee.

A horse trader as well as trainer and driver, "Old Sam" remembers a bargain trotter he bought on Amherst Island for just $75. The price was low partly because the horse had a reputation of running away when hooked to the bike.

The truth of this rumor reached "Old Sam" when he took the speedster on a trial run around the island.

"I hit the Lakeshore Road with Lake Ontario flowing in on it and me with him trotting.

"I thought, 'O dear, mother, you'll never see me home again," he recollected.

The ride did end with "Old Sam" still on the cart and thoroughly convinced that the horse could trot.

He purchased it and took him to Prescott for a race. The horse performed well and he was offered $1,000 and a mare in exchange for him.

He turned down the offer and on the way home the horse van carrying the Standardbred overturned and its hip was broken. The horse was later sold for $25.

Old Sam's horse talk is not confined to memories. Today he owns the Standardbred Northwood Nora and works as an official with the Canadian Trotting Association at Belleville as a patrol judge at the track.

His son, Sam junior, who lives in Picton, trains a large stable of horses in addition to raising colts.

His first winning drives were behind Miss Cheer Grattan, a Standardbred mare owned by Len Coulter of Verona.

Sam Mulholland III, shares his father's and his grandfather's enthusiasm for harness racing and plans for a career in racing and training.

The sport has provided recreation for three generations of Mulhollands who remain actively involved in racing and promotion of the Standardbred.

Pitching, Solid Defence And Speed Impress Mauch

By GENE MAUCH
Manager, Montreal Expos

I've heard so many good things about our young players. I saw what many of them could do when they helped us win 18 of our last 23 games last year. Additional end of the season reports and reports from Winter Leagues excite me and I'm very much looking forward to managing what is going to be a different club than we've had.

We have speed and we'll run a lot. Our defence will be better and I'm convinced we have a good, solid pitching staff.

Dave McNally (acquired from Baltimore) is a craftsman. He and Woodie Fryman (acquired from Detroit) balances our pitching staff, giving us quality from the left side. McNally joins Steve Rogers, Dennis Blair and Steve Renko in giving us a solid starting rotation. Fryman will help as a spot starter and I'll probably use him in relief as well.

I think we have an outstanding bullpen, led by Dale Murray who pitched so well for us in September, and Chuck Taylor, who pitched well for us all last year.

Barry Foote had a great rookie year and he's our No. 1 catcher. But Gary Carter, who I understand was the top catcher in minor league baseball in 1974, will get a chance to play regularly. Gary has so much natural ability. He can adjust at another position — such as third base or the outfield.

Mike Jorgensen developed into a fine hitter during the second half of 1974. There's no one who can play better than he can at first base and he'll be there on a regular basis.

We go into spring training with positions that are wide open — positions that are there for the taking. Rick Coggins (acquired from Baltimore) and Pepe Mangual (up from Memphis) will be given opportunities at regular jobs in the outfield. Then there's Carter and other fine young men like Jerry White and Tony Scott. Bob Bailey is still with us. He's an 80 plus BI man and he'll help.

The ever-improving Tim Foli will be our shortstop. Pete Mackanin (acquired from Taxas) will play, possibly at second or third or both. If he can take a job away from Larry Parrish at third, he'll play there. If he can take a job away from Larry Lintz at second, he'll play there. Perhaps, he'll play some at both positions.

I'm not discounting the possibility of other young players making our club. We have some fine young pitchers coming up in the minor league system. And we have other young players who could earn jobs in the infield or the outfield with fine springs.

Without question, this will be the most interesting Montreal team for me as a manager — and I think It'll be the most interesting team for the fans as well.

Time Out for Awards In Gas House Hockey

Hyalie Bryant, a going concern for the Gas House Hockey League's second place Belleville Generals all season long, has been named the loop's most valuable player.

A forward who is as adept at setting up scoring plays as he is at pulling the trigger himself, Bryant will pick up a pair of trophies at post season presentation ceremonies. He also led the league in the points parade, counting 27 goals and adding 33 assists for a total of 60.

Bryant's team-mate Gary Goyer has also been chosen as an outstanding performer in the loop. Goyer will receive the "best defenceman" trophy.

First place Stanley Structures boasts a pair of trophy winners.

Goaltender Vern Whalen posted a sparkling 1.50 goals against average to lead the league in that department, allowing 36 goals in 24 games. And Wayne Storms was a shoo-in for the most sportsmanlike player award. He was fifth in the list of league-point-getters with 39 (14 and 25) and he did not pick up a penalty all season.

League officials decided at a Thursday meeting that the playoff trophy will be remodelled and refurbished and named the Fiori Geogan Memorial Trophy Goegan, a defenceman with Senior A Belleville McFarland teams in the 1950s, was a member of the Stanley Structures team in the Gas House League. He died following a game on March 3.

2 Stirling Teams Score OMHA Wins

STIRLING — Ontario Minor Hockey Association (OMHA) representatives from this community have established an enviable reputation over the years and 1975s Stirling squads appear to be following the form chart.

In the OMHA DD quarter-final playoff action here Friday night, both the Legion Peewees and the Juveniles scored wins.

The Peewee squad evened its best of five series with Pickering at 1-1 by topping the visitors 4-1 as Bruce Wood fired two goals and assisted on a third. Other Stirling scorers were Brian Doxtator and Ferdinand Klompmaker.

Third game in the series is scheduled for Stirling Monday night at 7.30 p.m.

Stirling Juveniles had to do it the hard way. Matched against Beaverton, the home side fell behind 2-0 in the first period and trailed 3-1 heading for the third.

In the final frame, Stirling got untracked and whipped in four unanswered goals to pull it out. Pat Long, a two-goal shooter for the winners, fired the insurance counter into an open Beaverton net with just one second remaining in regulation time.

Other marksmen for the winners were Rob DeJong, Kevin Solmes and Wally Blakeley.

Paul Koot, Tim Burtol and Don Oliver looked after the Beaverton scoring.

Playoff Opener To Jets

BANCROFT — Loren Hawley, the league's leading scorer during the regular season, shows no sign of tailing off now that the Ontario Hockey Association Junior D playoffs are under way.

In a best-of-five semi-final series opener with Haliburton Huskies here Friday night, Hawley scored three times as Bancroft Jets tripped the visitors 10-7.

Vic Dubreauil, Glenn Watson and Murray Wilson each scored twice for Jets. Wayne Gunter rounded out the winners' scoring.

The teams hook up in the second game of the series tonight in Haliburton and return to Bancroft for Game 3, Friday, March 14.

Lynn Nightingale Seventh

U.S.-born de Leeuw Wins for Netherlands

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP) — An American girl won a world figure skating championship Friday night—but she didn't do it for the United States.

Dianne de Leeuw, a 19-year-old student who was born in the U.S. and lives and trains in Los Angeles, captured the women's singles gold medal for The Netherlands.

What's more, she took the crown away from Christine Errath of East Germany, and it's unusual for a champion to lose the world title in figure skating. Most often a reign ends in retirement.

Miss Errath, 18, came to the free-skating finale knowing it was virtually impossible to catch Miss de Leeuw. But she didn't let that stop her from giving an impressive performance that included a difficult triple toe loop-double toe loop jump combination.

It enabled her to move from fourth to gain a third-place bronze medal.

But an even bigger advance was made by U.S. champion Dorothy Hamill, 18, who was born in Colorado but lives in Riverside, Conn.

Fifth after the school figures and compulsory short program, Miss Hamill put on an almost flawless free-skating program that earned her marks of 5.8 and 5.9 out of a perfect six and moved her all the way to second place.

Lynn Nightingale, 18-year-old Canadian champion from Ottawa's Minto Skating Club, finished seventh after what the judges rated as the fifth-best free-skating performance.

But she was a bit disappointed because she did not match or improve on her sixth-place finish of the 1974 world championships in Munich.

The other Canadian in the women's singles, 16-year-old Kim Alletson, a clubmate of Miss Nightingale's, was ranked ninth among the 27 girls in the free skating and moved up one spot to 12th in the final standings.

Both Canadians had difficulties with their triple jumps—slachows. Lynn's hand touched the ice as she completed the jump and Kim fell on hers, but both were strong on their double jumps.

Miss Nightingale did two beautiful double axels, a double flip and a double lutz while Miss Alletson performed a couple of double axels, a double loop, double salchow, two double toe loops, a double lutz and then finished up with a pair of double lutzes.

This was Miss Alletson's first appearance in a world championship and her marks, ranging from 5.4 to 5.6, offered promise that she would be a strong contender for a medal in two or three years.

Miss Nightingale had skated a brilliant short program Thursday night to move up from 13th to seventh place after a disappointing show in the school figures. She had hoped to gain more ground in the free skating, but admitted her four-minute exhibition seemed to lack the excitement of the previous night's performance.

A finish of fifth or better would have permitted Canada to send three women to next year's Olympics in Innsruckb, Austria, and the world championships in Goteborg, Sweden. By finishing in the top 10, however, she still ensure that two Canadians will take part in the 1976 competitions.

Miss de Leeuw, who was ranked second to Miss Hamill in the free skating, must constantly field questions about why she does not skate for the United States.

"I was born in the United States of Dutch parents, am a Dutch citizen, had a Dutch upbringing, speak some Dutch, am a member of a Dutch skating club in The Hague and am the Dutch champion," she said.

[illegible]

But she also admitted that between defences of her Dutch title, she visits The Netherlands only occasionally.

Miss de Leuw, who was runner-up to Miss Errath in the European championships this year, built up a big lead in the school figures and added to it with the top-ranked short program. At that point she was ranked first in the marks of all nine judges and there was no chance for anyone to overtake her.

She missed a triple toe loop—completing only 2½ turns; but knocked off an impressive array of double jump combinations that earned her marks ranging from 5.6 to 5.9.

Miss Hamill did not have a triple jump in her free-skating program but it was strong enough to earn a majority of top placings.

In fact, the only successful triple jump aside from Miss Errath's was performed by Anett Potzsch of East Germany. She missed a triple salchow the first time she tried it but, as she did in the Skate Canada competition in Kitchener, Ont., last year.

She later tried another and made it on the second try. Her display moved her from ninth to eighth in the final standings.

With only the dance competition to be completed tonight, Canada has no chance of winning any medals at the 1973 championships. Closest was Toller Cranston who wound up fourth in the men's singles.

Tokyo Pitchers Stop L. A.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball's exhibition season is under way and Tokyo Giants and Chunichi Dragons look like the teams to beat.

The Japanese clubs spoiled baseball's Grapefruit League openers Friday, Tokyo dumping Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 and Chunichi blanking Chicago White Sox 1-0.

Boston Red Sox downed Detroit Tigers 8-4 and Texas Rangers outslugged New York Yankees 12-10 in other games.

A second Texas squad beat Mexico City Reds of the Class AAA Mexican League 8-3 in a night game to round out the schedule.

Tokyo pitchers Tsuneo Horiuchi and Kunikazu Ogawa stopped Los Angeles on three hits. The Giants, who collected 12 hits, struck for three runs off Dodger ace Don Sutton in the third with the help of Sutton's throwing error.

Three Chunichi pitchers teamed to shut out Chicago and Kinji Shimitani's seventh-inning single off Terry Forster accounted for the game's only run.

Carl Yastrzemski and Fred Lynn knocked in three runs apiece for the Red Sox. Nate Colbert belted a two-run homer for Detroit.

Leo Cardenas rapped a tie-breaking two-run double in the seventh to carry Texas past the Yankees Tom Robson contributed a three-run homer for the Rangers while Chris Chambliss and Bob Oliver had three hits each for New York.

Bob Jones and Joe Lovitto drove in two runs each for the Rangers before a crowd of 21,000 at Mexico City's Social Security Stadium.

Finlay Flashes to Win

MAGOG, Que. (CP) — Scott Finlay of Kingston, Ont., won the second downhill race Friday at the final event of the eastern division of the Pontiac Cup ski series.

Finlay was clocked at 67.24 seconds finishing ahead of Germain Barrette of Causapscal, Que., timed at 67.51. Sean Russel of Toronto was third with a time of 67.58 followed by Daniel Bergeron of Shawinigan, Que., at 67.73.

Andre Esson of Toronto won the women's race with a time of 72.03 seconds. Martha Hall, also from Toronto, was second in 73.09 while Martine Lesieur of Trois-Rivieres, Que., finished third in 73.18.

CAMPANERIS SIGNS

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland A's shortstop Bert (Campy) Campaneris has signed a 1975 contract for a "substantial increase in salary," the American League team announced Thursday. An A's spokesman said Campaneris reached the accord at A's owner Charles Finley's office in Chicago. Terms were not disclosed. The A's also said second baseman Dick Green was placed on waivers "for the purpose of giving him an unconditional release."

Expos' Young Players Getting Their Chance

DAYONA BEACH, Fla. (CP)—Jim Fanning was perched atop a narrow, rickety table along the clubhouse wall and gazed from his sunlit corner onto the baseball diamond where a carload of young Montreal Expos were maintaining a stranglehold on positions in an intra-squad game.

"We really don't know who's going to make our ball club this year," said Fanning, 47, who as general manager of the team since its inception has been largely responsible for accumulating the multitude of young talent that cavorted in the wind on yet another seasonably cool day.

"It's easier now to see the players coming, and we're at that stage in our organization where they're coming pretty fast.

"We've made room for them in that we've cleared out a lot of other players and pretty well told them the door is open. If I were a young ball player in this camp, I'd believe I had a real good chance to make the team.

"And these pitchers, for example, like Dan Warthen and Chip Lang and Don Stanhouse know that if they do get sent to Memphis and do well there, they'll be called up as soon as we need them."

Among the players dispatched since last spring are outfielders Jim Lyttle, Boots Day and Ron Woods, infielder-outfielder Ron Fairly and infielder Ron Hunt.

Gone in an off-season deal are outfielder Ken Singleton and pitcher Mike Torrez, for whom the Expos acquired left-hander Dave McNally and outfielder Rich Coggins from the American League Baltimore Orioles, and controversial centre fielder Willie Davis, for whom Texas Rangers sent infield hopeful Pete Mackanin and Stanhouse.

Manager Gene Mauch has said that the result of the open-door policy is that only three positions on the club are set: Mike Jorgensen at first base, Tim Foli at shortstop and Barry Foote catching.

That leaves veterans Jim Cox, Pepe Frias, Larry Lintz and Hal Breeden and youngsters Mackanin, Larry Parrish, Juan Navarrete, Pat Scanlon and Rudy Kinard battling for infield spots.

Coggins, Larry Biittner and another bunch of youngsters are vying for outfield berths, while Bob Bailey, the longest-standing Expo, tries to find a place—left field, third base, wherever.

Versatile Gary Carter can catch, play third or in the outfield.

"I don't think our trade bait is among our infielders," said Fanning. "I'd like to hang on to the catching and middle infield.

"But analysing our pitching staff, you'll see that after you get through about seven, you have that many more guys trying for two spots, if we take nine pitchers north. I'd like for a lot of these guys to really show something and we'll take two and then maybe could make a deal for somebody

"I can't really say what our greatest need is until we see some exhibition games, but if Woodie Fryman comes along, that would minimize the need for another left-handed reliever

"If you're talking about a long-ball hitter, a long-ball hitter in the National League who can't play defence has a few holes in him.

"We'll have to wait and see just what we need, but I'm happy with the people we have right now. Our kids are all well schooled and talented, and they've all experienced winning."

Memphis Blues finished first in the South Division of the Class AAA International League last season while Quebec Carnavals of the Class AA Eastern League captured the National Division title. And even younger prospects playing with West Palm Beach Expos in the Class A Florida State League finished second in the Southern Division.

Ali Issues Challenge

TOKYO (CP) — World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali has offered $1 million to "any crack Japanese" who can beat him in a fight, Sankei Sports, a major newspaper here, reports.

The paper said Ali made the offer through Ichiro Hatta, president of the Japan Amateur Wrestling Association, who was attending a recent contract-signing ceremony for a title bout between Ali and Chuck Wepner.

Ali told Hatta that he is ready to fight a top Japanese, the newspaper says.

Curling Championships

Reed Leaves Tetley In Tight Situation

FREDERICTON (CP) — Tom Reed, whose St. Albert foursome completed it's 11 games in the Canadian Men's Curling championship Friday night with an 8-3 record, doesn't wish Northern Ontario's Bill Tetley any hard luck, "but if they lose we won't be all that sorry."

Tetley's Thunder Bay rink, which leads the championship round-robin event with an 8-2 mark, takes on Bob Cole's foursome from St. John's, Nfld., at 1 p.m. EST today.

"I don't like to hope for anybody to lose," said Reed, 25. "The way they've been curling so far, they deserve to win. But if they lose we won't be all that sorry.

Reed forced Tetley into a must-win situation Friday night by dumping Newfoundland 11-5 while Tetley was hard-pressed to defeat Quebec's Jim Ursel 10-8, stealing two in the 13th end from the Montreal St. Laurent entry.

And to further complicate a possible playoff situation, Don Taw's highly regarded Territories rink from Whitehorse, which had been tied for the lead with Northern Ontario going into Friday night's draw, wound up on the minus side or an 8-6 score with Frank Beutle's previously-winless Penticton, B.C., crew.

A Northern Ontario loss and Territories win could result in three teams finishing with 8-3 records.

In such a case, a semi-final would be played at 5:30 p.m. EST today with the final scheduled for 9:00 p.m. EST. If a two-way playoff develops the game will be played at 6:30 p.m. EST.

In other play Friday night, Dick Boyce and his Dartmouth Curling Club gave Nova Scotia a 9-7 win over Prince Edward Island's Charlottetown rink skipped by John Fortier and Dr. Alex Scott and his Ontario four out of Kingston easily handled the host New Brunswick club led by John Clark of Fredericton, 7-4.

The results left Northern Ontario in first place at 8-2 with Alberta 8-3 and the Territories at 7-3. They were followed by Quebec, Harvey Mazinke's Regina rink from Saskatchewan and Rod Hunter's Winnipeg crew from Manitoba, all at 6-4.

Ontario ended its competition here at 6-5 with New Brunswick 5-5, Nova Scotia 4-6, P.E.I. 3-7 and Newfoundland and B.C. at 1-9.

Today's 1 p.m. draw: Newfoundland vs. Northern Ontario, B.C. vs. New Brunswick, Territories vs. Quebec, Manitoba vs. P.E.I., and Saskatchewan vs. Nova Scotia. Alberta and Ontario have the byes.

In the afternoon draw Friday, New Brunswick created a minor upset, 7-6, over Northern Ontario, Manitoba downed B.C. 9-6, Quebec edged Ontario 7-6, 9-6 and the Territories gained a temporary share of first place by beating Newfoundland 9-4.

Tetley had early problems against Quebec, falling behind when Ursel scored three in the 10th to come up with two in the 12th and send the game into an extra end where he stole two for the victory.

Northern Ontario second Bill Hodgson said he and Tetley exchanged a rock in the fourth end, giving the Northern Ontario skip "what we considered to be one of our better rocks."

"He used that right through the game," said Hodgson, who, though he hesitated to pinpoint the problem, added: "We never lost one after that."

Tetley, who is representing his third different Thunder Bay-area curling club in as many national championship appearances, said his rink "got the junk going on the 13th" to steal the decisive end.

"We were taking our time. I don't know if we were hesistant about the ice but maybe hesitant about the shot to call, and what to do under the circumstances."

Sunny Weather Lee's Best Friend

ORLANDO, FLA. (AP) — It all depends on the weather, says Lee Trevino.

Trevino attributed his share of the lead after Friday's second round in the $200,000 Citrus open golf tournament to a lot of hard work and the hot, sunny weather.

"I've had a lot of work in the last couple of weeks," Trevino said Friday after his six-under-par 66 had tied him for the lead with Hale Irwin. They had matching 36-hole totals of 135, nine-under-par.

"I hit maybe 2,000 balls last week," Trevino s[illegible]d, then peered at the palm of his hand. "Look—the blisters have healed.

"That's what I've got to do to play good," the current PGA champion said. "I've got to work at it . . . .

". . . And I need the hot weather That's the only time I play any good at all, when it's hot. It was even hot in England when I won the British Open."

Irwin, who hasn't finished lower than sixth in his last three starts, also had a hot putting hand in his round of 67. He had eight one-putts, once chipped in and needed only 26 strokes on the greens.

Larry Hinson slipped into third place halfway through the chase for a $40,000 first prize, shooting a second consecutive 68 for 136, just one stroke back of the leaders.

Charlie Coody followed with a 66-137. At 138 were Australian Bruce Crampton, South African Bobby Cole and Mark Hayes.

Anold Palmer had a 69 but was well back at 141; George Knudson of Toronto shot a par 72 for a two-round total of 143, eight strokes back of the leaders.

Both Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and Danny Halldorson of Brandon, Man., failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Homenuik's 74 gave him a 149 total while Halldorson blew to a 73 for a 153 total. The cutoff score was 145.

Maravich Leader For Jazz

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For a while Friday night, it appeared as though New Orleans Jazz had fallen back into their old ways.

The expansion Jazz, doormats for most of the National Basketball Association season, have turned things around in the last month or so.

At first, they fell into their old habits in Friday's game, dropping behind Golden State Warriors by 17 points in the first quarter. Then they scored a team-record 40 points in the second period to go ahead for good and held on for a 110-107 victory.

Pete Maravich was the big gun for New Orleans with 31 points and led rebounders with 11. Nate Williams came off the bench to add 20 points for the winners.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Houston Rockets beat Cleveland Cavaliers 93-86, Chicago Bulls got by Los Angeles Lakers 89-87 and Portland Trail Blazers topped Phoenix Suns 120-98.

First Wrapped Up, Marlboros Slump

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Since Toronto Marlboros' clinched first place of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A last Sunday, they seemed to have slipped into a pre-playoff slump.

The Marlboros dropped an 8-4 devision Friday to eight-place Kingston Canadians for the second loss this week and 12th of the season.

In other games Kitchener Rangers blanked St. Catharines Black Hawks 5-0, London Knights edged Sudbury Wolves 6-5, Hamilton Fincups dumped Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 8-3 and Ottawa '67s and Peterborough Petes tied 8-8.

Play resumes tonight with Toronto in Kitchener on Sunday, Toronto entertains Kingston, Ottawa visits St. Catharines, London meets Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury plays host to Hamilton.

On Friday, Kingston scored three unanswered goals in the first period and took a 4-2 lead into the final 20 minutes.

Playing at home before 3,409 spectators, Mike Crombeen led Kingston with two goals and two assists. Brad Rhiness also added a pair. Single goals went to Tony McKegney, Ken Linseman, Rob Street and Larry Murphy.

Bruce Boudreau scored twice for Toronto, with Mark Napier and John Anderson getting the others. Toronto outshot the winners 42-34.

Rookie goaltender Rick Nickelchok blocked 23 shots to earn his first OHA shutout before a home crowd of 2,439 spectators.

Linemates Bobby Schnurr, Mark Holbrook and Ron Hunter produced three of the Rangers' goals. Schurr and Hunter both added two assists.

Dan Djakalovic and Dwight Foster got the other goals for Kitchener, which took period leads of 1-0 and 2-0 and fired 29 shots at the visitors' net.

It was St. Catharines' second game without regular coach Paul Emms, who was suspended earlier in the week for six games. The suspension followed Emms' refusal to handle the club last Friday in a game, played under protest because of the World Hockey Association signing of Napier, against Toronto which won 14-0.

Bob Craig coached the club for the second consecutive game.

Knights 6 Wolves 5

Ron Zanussi scored his second goal with less than seven seconds remaining in the game to keep London's playoff hopes alive.

Rick Martin also scored twice for ninth-place London with Dennis Maruk and Terry Martin adding single goals.

Alex McKendry, with two, Hec Marini, Ron Duguay and Ken MacKenzie replied for Sudubry, which outshot London 47-41.

The two clubs were tied 1-1 after one period and 3-3 going into the third.

London is two points behind Kingston.

AGREE ON TERMS

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Race Course and the 400-member Service Employees Union reached agreement Wednesday on a tentative contract that would pave the way for reopening the strikebound track if a vote is favorable Friday. Track officials would not disclose the offer.

Loss Costs Americans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds stretched their American Hockey League unbeaten streak to four games Friday night with a 3-2 win over Rochester Americans.

The loss was a costly one for the Americans as they now trail first-place Providence in the Northern Division by 13 points.

In the only other league game, Springfield Indians defeated Virginia Red Wings 4-1.

Linemates Hartland Monahan and Doug Horbul scored a goal each to lead the Reds to victory at Providence.

Bobby craig scored Providence's other goal, while Doug Gibson with his 37th of the season, and defenceman Rick Pagnutti, scored for Rochester.

Dale Lewis scored two goals in Springfield's win over Virginia, owners of first place in the Southern Division.

Phil Hoene and Jimmy Peters scored Springfield's other goals, while Ted Snell was the only Virginia shooter to beat Indians goaltender Steve Rexe.

In games tonight, Springfield travels to Hershey, Nova Scotia is at New Haven, and Syracuse plays at Richmond.

To Your Good Health

Four Main Causes Of Flatulence

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would appreciate your discussing the possible causes of flatulence. With me it occurs in the later afternoon, before and after our evening meal. I am in good health.—Mrs. A. R.

That's a tall order.

For the sake of discussion, I can list four general causes. When you put them all together, the result can be a veritable symphony of distress and embarrassment.

They are age, eating habits, diet, and disease, but not necessarily in that order of importance.

Age. Oldsters tend to produce less digestive juices and enzymes, and this causes a slackening of stomach activity. As a result, food remains only partially digested, allowing a build-up of gas which is eventually propelled through the bowel.

Eating habits. Two-thirds of all gas problems are related to air-swallowing. This air similarly finds its way through the gut, following the path of least resistance. People who talk excitedly during meals may encounter this. One study of flatulence revealed that the contents of expelled gas include nitrogen, oxygen, methane, carbon dioxide, and hydrogen. Outside air contains only oxygen and nitrogen. Nitrogen is a major constituent of expelled gas, or flatulence.

Diet. Pork and beans is a notable example. Other foods that can cause trouble include vegetables such as cabbage and broccoli, onions, carbonated drinks, highly fermented cheeses, sugary desserts, and some fruits. Also, smoking before meals.

Disease. This can include gall bladder disease, peptic ulcers, or colon disturbances such as colitis or diverticulosis.

I could add a fifth category—anxiety, which can affect the peace of eating and thus the efficiency of the stomach and the lower digestive tract.

What to do about it? Eat a balanced diet, eat slowly, chew with your lips closed, do not smoke before meals, avoid an excess of the foods I have listed above, especially at lunch (in your specific case), and try to have a bowel movement in the early afternoon.

If none of this helps, then you should be checked for any possible physical problems I've mentioned above. Even an allergy can be a factor. Certain foods, milk in particular, could be a cause if there is a deficiency of the enzyme necessary to digest milk sugar—lactse.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What would cause me to itch on my arms, stomach and legs? I get welts where it itches. Often, it goes away for a week or two, then returns.—Mrs. C. R. C.

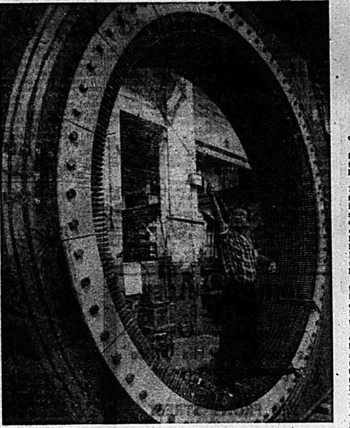
Angiovedena (angioneurotic edema)—which is a form of hives—often behaves this way, and is usually caused by an allergy. With some folks food is the most common offender. A drug can also set it off. Foods to watch out for as possible causes are shellfish, nuts, eggs, meat milk and onions.

The sensitizing agent may lurk in the gastrointestinal tract, and sometimes a simple cathartic may hasten its removal. An antihistamine can give some relief also.

But any medication beyond this should be avoided for a trial period, since there is a whole catalogue of medicines which have been at one time or another the primary cause of the reaction. Meanwhile, try to avoid scratching.

Instead, apply a soothing lotion such as a calamine preparation. Keep a food diary to try to trace the particular food that may be prompting the periodic attacks. You should avoid stressful situations, since, as the name implies, the problem can be related to your nerves.

I offer these only as suggestions of what might be the cause of your outbreaks. There are so many combinations of skin disturbances and possible causes I sometimes think only a computer could sort them out.



Big Electric Motor

Steve Gulenchyn checks the inside diameter of this 15-foot-tall motor under construction at the E.M plant of Turbodyne Corporation in Minneapolis, Minn. This stator, expected to weigh about 36 tons when completed, is the stationary part in which a rotor revolved for the motor. The 11,000 horsepower motor will be used to drive a compressor in a polyethylene plant. (CP Photo)

Manitoba Film-making Encouraged

WINNIPEG (CP) — The provincial government is being urged to create a Manitoba film board to provide assistance and training programs for film-makers.

This is one of the main recommendations of a report prepared for the cabinet by a special committee.

Other recommendations are that the proposed board support a quota system encouraging the presentation of Canadian and, in particular, Manitoba-made films in commercial theatres and to underwrite pre-production costs of films.

The report suggests the government's educational film production program buy films made in the province.

To set up a training program, the committee recommended that the province work with the CBC to speed up the replacement of its plant in Winnipeg with a large new western regional production centre. The old plant then could be used for the training program.

The committee views the recent opening of a production centre in the Winnipeg office of the National film board (NFB) as a significant boost to the development of the province's film industry.

But Jerry Krepakevich, a film-maker now working in the Winnipeg production office, estimates it will be at least four or five years before anything concrete starts coming out of it.

"Just like a good marriage, we're struggling in our first year," said Ken Shere, Prairie regional distribution manager.

"We're starting small and building big."

Mr. Shere said the existing film industry in the province won't derive great benefit from the film board office.

"We have no specific long-term solutions for film companies struggling for survival.

"It is hoped we will be providing a place for new sources of creative energy. If we develop a training program, the board won't be able to absorb all the people and so we will be providing private industry with trained people."

Mr. Krepakevich said there are no grounds for private company complaints that the film board will take work away from them.

"We are here to develop young film makers. They will be able to use NFB expertise, facilities and equipment strictly for non-commercial films such as documentaries."

David Dueck, president of Dueck Film Productions, said he is pleased the board opened its production office because it will bring in more work for the private industry.

But he said the provincial government should be doing something to assist the film industry.

"I applied to the government for a grant of $300 to go to Ottawa to apply for a tender from the NFB," said Mr. Dueck.

"I was turned down. I went to Ottawa anyway and I got the job and spent $25,000 in Manitoba making the film. My company would like to work on a feature film, using Manitoba talent. But where can I go?"

He said a provincial film board might be able to solve this and other problems of the industry.

Ever heard of traditional omens of doom?

In Europe, many old, noble families have them — a certain event which serves as a harbinger of impending death.

In the family of Soctland's Earl of Airlie, the death of the oldest member of the clan is said to be presaged by the sound of a phantom drummer on the battlements of the ancestral castle. In other families, the omen may be the hooting of a spectral owl, the howling of a ghostly dog or the demise of a Bishop of Salhundreds of foxes.

It is believed by some that the demise of a Dishop of Salisbury, in England, is heralded by strange birds seen flying in and around the tower of the city's cathedral.

And for centuries, members of the Hapsburgs, the ruling house of the old Austro-Hungarian empire, believed that for them an impending family tragedy was foreshadowed by the appearance of the White Birds of the Hapsburgs.

On a bright day in June, 1914, Countess Sophie, wife of Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria, was driving through Vienna. As she passed the cathedral she saw crowds gazing up at the sky. She ordered her chauffeur to pull over to the curb and stop.

Looking up, straining her eyes into the glare of the sun, the Countess saw a flock of giant white birds apparently bigger than swans. They were uttering strange cries. These, the Countess knew in a moment, were the White Brids of the Hapsburgs.

Time and again, in the past, the sight of these weird emissaries had been followed closely by some tragedy in the royal family.

Countess Sophie hurried to the palace where her husband was planning a trip to Bosnia, a stronghold of anti-royalist sentiment. She told him about the birds wheeling in the sky and their terrifying cries, and begged him not to make the trip. He refused.

A few days later, June 28, 1914, in the city of Sarajevo, Franz Ferdinand and his Countess were cut down by an assassin's bullets. The duke was killed immediately, his wife died shortly after.

This incident was the final spark that set off the powder keg of the First World War.

And the White Birds of the Hapsburgs? What were They?

Some psychic researchers, such as the late psychoanalyst Dr. Nandor Fodor, speculated that somehow the collective unconscious of a family with a long ancestry and sense of tradition could actually create or project a visible and audible symbol representing a psychic premonition of imminent death. He called such a psychic image " family Gestalt.'

But labelling them doesn't explain the White Birds...

Opening lead — 10 ♠

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The unlucky expert looked over the dummy quickly. With 22 high-card points, North's seven-notrump call was normal. It looked as if everyone in the field would be at the same spot.

It also appeared that everyone would have to locate the queen of clubs in order to bring home the contract.

He looked at his opponents. Two typical little old ladies. How could he go wrong against that opposition?

He played the hand quickly, while making sure of each play by each defender. He started with diamonds. West showed out on the second diamond and, much to our expert's delight, dropped the three of clubs. The four of clubs came next and then the deuce of hearts.

This was just like taking candy from children. He almost decided to spread his hand and announce a club finesse against East, but that would be showing off. He cashed the hearts and everyone followed. Then he played the last two high spades and the nice lady on his left dropped the five and then the eight. Clearly she was left with two clubs and nine of spades.

He cashed dummy's king of clubs; led the jack and let it ride. Out on the table came the queen of clubs and the nine of spades gave the defence two tricks to add insult to injury.

Ministry of Housing

Ontario Housing Corporation

WANTED

We're looking for rental accommodation in your community. It's for lower income families who are spending more than they can really afford on rent. Families in need of rental assistance can be housed within the private sector.

The Rent Supplement Program for landlords will guarantee units will be occupied at the prevailing market rents for three years or more. Market rents mean just that. We'll review the rents annually to ensure they are consistent with rents in your muncipality.

For developers we'll provide second mortgage financing at below market interest rates — up to 35 per cent of capital cost — to bring mortgage financing up to 95 per cent of construction cost. In return we ask developers to take part in our rent supplement program.

We will consider apartments, detached or semi-detached houses and row houses. All we ask is that units are self-contained and meet residential standards.

After a landlord and the Ontario Housing Corporation agree on a market rent, the landlord participates in selecting a tenant or tenants from the local waiting list for assisted housing. The tenant then pays his rent to the landlord, just as other families in the building do, and OHC mails a monthly cheque to the landlord to cover the difference between that rent and the agreed market rent.

The new tenants are treated the same as any other family. They sign a lease and assume the normal responsibilities outlined in The Landlord and Tenant Act.

Applications should be submitted to:

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Sunday, March 9

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Remembrance of what a friend did for you will inspire you to do a similarly compassionate act for someone else today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are going to achieve something you'll take a great deal of personal pride in. You'll be quite secretive about it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're extremely creative today. Any idea you get is bound to be a bright one that can be put to good use. So use it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Two people you'll cross paths with shortly will treat you very generously and considerately, unbeknownst to one another.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have a way with those younger than you today. They'll take to heart things that you tell them that are for their own good.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be in the mood to putter around the house doing something you feel is more of a hobby than work. The results will be rewarding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have an air about you today that others will find extremely charming. You'll especially stand out socially.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A concern you've had regarding how a situation would work out will be erased. The end result will please all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You can get your points across now in a way that will be remembered if you sprinkle in a small touch of theatrics.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something material you've been wanting will be acquired soon. The way in which it comes to you will be a bit mysterious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll learn of something nice that a friend had to say about you. It will surprise you. You didn't think this person held you in such esteem.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Others are willing to go out of their way to help you today in matters relating to your career and finances.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

MONDAY, MARCH 10

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be more at ease today with those who are young at heart than you will be with those who have an older outlook.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) The odds are slightly in your favor in competitive situations because you're prepared to adjust your thinking. Antagonists aren't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you think you have something worth saying that others should know about, talk to the proper people now. They'll be receptive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Information you have been seeking that has been partially hidden from you will be revealed soon. You'll use it profitably.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take the future into consideration before making any important decisions. Base judgments upon logic, not on wishful thinking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is something that you can now do if you put your mind to it that will benefit your career. It involves a co-worker.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're going to make an interesting new contact who later will pop up in your life from time to time. This person will open doors for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) You'll be getting some news you'll want to share with your family. It pertains to something you want for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 21) The solution you seek for a problem will not be found in methods that worked for you in the past. You need to innovate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Your financial prospects are still promising, if you don't put limitations upon your thinking. Look for new sources of return.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) Without trampling upon others, be a trifle more assertive than usual in promoting your self-interests.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) An inquisitive friend is interested in learning something that was told you by another. Don't betray a confidence.

CP News Roundup

Postal Rate Stays as Is

OTTAWA (CP) — Most Western countries have higher postal rates than Canada, but there won't be an increase here until efficiency improves, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Friday.

"I said when I became minister that my first priority would be to improve the efficiency of the post office," he said in an interview.

"And we have improved. But we haven't improved to the point where we can justify an increase in first-class postage."

He said first-class postage in the United States is going up to 12 cents a letter, in Germany it is already 22 cents and in Britain it is 15 cents.

"Eight cents is a bargain, and it will remain there until our efficiency has reached the level I want."

He said the current difficulties are not the fault of postal workers, since the strikes are largely in the transportation sector.

"And if we can't get the mail it is pretty hard to deliver it.'

Hearing to Reopen

OTTAWA (CP) — A public hearing on an application by Interprovincial Pipeline Ltd. of Toronto to extend its oil pipeline to Montreal from Sarnia, Ont., will re-open April 11, the National Energy Board announced Friday.

She is survived by three nieces.

Plea to Government

OTTAWA (CP) — Governments should play a more active role in the Petroleum Association for Conservation of the Canadian Environment (Pace), Eric L. Howe said Friday. The retiring president of Pace told the group's annual meeting there should be more co-ordination with government agencies on such projects as oil spills and evaluation of water quality.

U.S. Lowers Rate

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada announced Friday it will lower its United States-based lending rate effective Monday to 8¾ per cent from nine per cent. A bank spokesman said the reduction resulted from fluctuations in lending rates in the U.S. The U.S.-based lending rate is the rate the bank charges when lending U.S. funds in Canada to its most creditworthy customers.

About 14,500 workers are affected by the resumption.

Heaters Recalled

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Temro division of James B. Carter Ltd. is recalling some models of vehicle engine heaters because of a possible fire hazard, Jim Harris, Temro's works manager, said Friday. He said that if a vehicle loses engine coolant the element in the heater can overheat, melt the electrical plug and soften the radiator hose. The company is only recalling unsold units.

Institute Disappointed

LONDON (Reuter) — The Bank of England Friday cut its minimum lending rate by a fourth of a percent to 10.25 per cent, reflecting a continuing decline in international interest rates. It was the fifth rate reduction this year by the bank.

Opel Gets Orders

RUESSELSHEIM, West Germany (Reuter) — Opel, one of the West German auto manufacturers affected by the car slump, announced Friday an increase in orders and said it is hiring more workers and introducing extra shifts. Adam Opel AG is a subsidiary of General Motors. Opel's production dropped by one-third in 1974.

U.S. Rate Lowered

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States acted Friday to stimulate the economy by lowering the bank rate to 6.25 per cent from 6.75 per cent effective Monday. The reduction brought the rate to its lowest point for 21 months—since June 11, 1973, when it was raised to 6.5 per cent from six per cent.

Businessman Protests Postal Strike Right

TORONTO (CP) — The founder and president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Businesses urged Thursday that the right to strike be taken from postal workers.

In an interview, John Bulloch said that disruptions in mail service have been disastrous for small business, particularly mail-order firms.

The federation was formed three years ago and represents about 24,000 businesses across Canada.

"The post office is a national screw-up, and the right to strike should be taken away from postal workers," Mr. Bulloch said.

"How can you put people in jail for robbing banks and then legally permit a public service strike that does economic damage to the small businessman equal to what's being done when a man robs a bank?'

He said the small businessman would not mind if tax collectors, statistic gatherers, government regulations and other bureaucratic "harassers" went on strike.

"They must be well-paid because they never do," he said. "But we want them to go out and stay out."

Stewart Would Recall Grain Handlers

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Agriculture Minister William Stewart said Friday that the federal government should legislate its blue-collar workers handling Canada's grain crops back to work.

Speaking at a meeting of the Conestoga Rotary Club, Mr. Stewart said selective strikes now under way by the Public Service Alliance of Canada virtually have stopped all grain movement in the country.

He said the strikes probably will cost Canada's grain producers more than the record $17 million they lost in demurrage charges during the 1973-74 crop year.

Demurrage charges are paid to ship companies and railways by grain producers when trains and ships are tied up beyond the agreed-upon grain delivery date.

He said all strikes involving the country's food industry should be banned.

Mr. Stewart also said there was no excuse for the loss of more than 29-million eggs last year.

"It was just plain bad management, but how many Canadians have heard that farmers paid $17 million in demurrage charges," Mr. Stewart said.

"We heard a lot about eggs," he said. "Just let a few eggs rot and you'll see big black headlines tomorrow."

Mr. Stewart said he is worried that Canada's egg industry is heading for another round of surplus production.

At a news conference, the agriculture minister said he feels the solution to the current and growing surplus lies in strict controls limiting the number of laying hens.

He said marketing quotas are not the entire answer because the country's egg producers continue to produce a surplus, even though quotas have been cut by 10 per cent.

Mr. Stewart said he thinks the answer to the current situation lies in "gaining much stricter control" over the number of chicks that hatcheries sell as future laying hens.

But he said he will not move to control Ontario hatcheries and chick wholesalers until the other provinces are willing to take similar steps.

He said he will try to persuade other agriculture ministers to move for this type of control during a meeting March 19 with federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan in Ottawa to discuss egg marketing.

"The problem is excess hens," he said. "Quotas in themselves will only work if

Marchand Sparks Commons Uproar

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand sparked a Commons uproar Friday by suggesting some attacks on him are inspired by racism.

Outside the Commons, he drew a parallel between current criticisms of French-Canadian government figures and the attacks and scandals in the 1960s that led to the political downfall of Liberal ministers Maurice Lamontagne, Guy Favreau and Rene Tremblay.

He suggested there was more than coincidence behind opposition criticism earlier Friday of his dealings with transport policy; the handling of a strike of public servants by Jean Chretien, the treasury board president, and the performance of Air Canada, whose chairman is Yves Pratte.

All three are French-Canadians.

Mothers Demand Allowance Boost

TORONTO (CP) — About 100 members of the Mother-Led Union demanded an increase in allowance payments Friday at a meeting with representatives of the provincial ministry of community and social services.

Jean Lance, a mother of four, said in a presentation that a recent 13-per-cent increase in children's allowance "figured out to be 25 cents more a day per child."

She said mothers who receive benefits work against overwhelming difficulties to raise their children.

"Would the government rather that they do their job half-right and see these future citizens instead in penal institutes or repeating the poverty cycle?" she asked.

Mrs. Lance said foster mothers receive three times more than natural mothers to do the same job.

"Maybe that's the answer," she said. "We all switch our kids around in foster homes and then we will know that our kids are financially taken care of.'

WANTS CHANGE

Mrs. Lance said the Mothers-led Union, a group of women receiving government benefits, wants mothers on benefits to be allowed to earn more without being penalized on their allowance payments.

She said a mother may earn only $100 a month whether she has one or eight children.

"We are asking that the amount be $100 per month for each mother, plus $25 for each child," she said.

"We are ostracized and can't get day care because we are told we do not work full-time. So the only alternative for benefit mothers is to pay a baby-sitter."

Joan Clark, chairman of the Mother-Led Union, said if the government is serious about a guaranteed annual income, it should start by bringing family allowances in line with other child-support programs.

Sallie Shum, mother of two, said the group would not accept a mere thank you from government representatives.

"We are going to come back and back," she said. "We will not be divided by the stupid, bureaucratic little ploys of being passed from one caretaker to another."

Teachers React To Wells' Blast

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario (FWTAO) said Friday that the Ontario government appears determined to provide a direct confrontation with the province's 100,000 teachers.

Marie Myers, representing the federation's board of directors, sent a letter to Education Minister Thomas Wells deploring the inflammatory nature of his language in accusing teachers of "blackmail" and holding the public up to "ransom."

Mr. Wells told a conference of newly-elected school board trustees Thursday that high school teachers in Ottawa and Toronto who were demanding wage increases of about 40 per cent are engaging in public blackmail. He said such demands are "ransom" and "holding a gun to the public's head."

Ottawa teachers now are on strike and Toronto teachers are threatening strike unless their demands are met.

The Ottawa teachers are asking that the minimum annual salary be increased to $12,490 from $7,200 and the maximum be raised from $18,535 to $26,230 in a one-year contract.

"We cannot help but conclude that you are preparing for a confrontation over legislation that will be repressive, denying teachers the rights they should have, such as the right to strike, to voluntary arbitration, to negotiate all working condition," Mrs. Myers said in the letter.

She said substantial salary increases can be justified. Since government spending ceilings were imposed in 1971, teachers salaries have not kept pace with other salaries or inflation.

"Ontario's teachers are not greedy. They are not unwilling to negotiate," she said.

Jim Forster, president of the 34,000-member Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, also said in statement Friday that Mr. Wells has his facts "totally confused."

"I react with shock and dismay to the emotional language used by a cabinet minister who is normally very responsible," Mr. Forster said.

"The political posturing of both Mr. Wells and the premier (Premier William Davis) in local teacher-board negotiations this week indicates that the government is so bankrupt in its policies that it has chosen to use the teachers as a whipping boy," he said.

Sect Leader Denies Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Visvakarma, vice-president of the Hare Krishna movement's Toronto temple, Friday rejected charges that the cult psychologically kidnaps its devotees.

He was responding to charges made Thursday by a Toronto man who said he spent five weeks getting his 19-year-old daughter out of the sect.

Murray Epstein said he paid Ted Patrick, a "deprogrammer," $2,000 to break the psychological control he alleges the cult held over his daughter.

Visvakarma said that as in any other organized religion, a certain way of living is encouraged in Hare Krishna.

"And it includes chanting," he said. "But it's not kidnapping, its just living a certain way. It's not evil, just different.

"If we could kidnap people and force them into joining, don't you think we'd have more than 35 members in Toronto?" he asked.

During the "deprogramming" process, the girl had her Indian beads ripped apart. Her saris were taken from her and thrown away and her Hare Krishna books were torn up in front of her.

Arrowhead Leads Way to History

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — By dangling a flint arrowhead over a map, government archeologist William Ross claims he can find unknown ancient Indian sites without leaving his armchair.

Mr. Ross, 28, who works for the ministry of natural resources at Dorset, near Huntsville, explained his method Friday to 200 scientists attending the annual seminar of the Canadian Archeological Association at Lakehead University.

Mr. Ross calls his technique map-dowsing and says he has been successful in three of four attempts to unearth Indian artifacts. All he does is hold the arrowhead over a map and, where the arrow tip gyrates, he digs.

He said he first became interested in the technique when he heard that some people claimed the ability to find oil or gold by thinking about the substances as they held pendulums over a map.

To prove his method, he said, he began map-dowsing over areas about which he had no knowledge—and pinpointed four spots.

"I checked each area and located artifacts in three out of the four," he said.

There is no reasonable explanation as to why map dowsing should work, he said.

Girl's Body Uncovered

LONDON (Reuter) — Police uncovered Friday the body of a young girl believed to be that of a 17-year-old heiress who was kidnapped six weeks ago.

The body was found in a deep drain near Kidsgrove, 70 miles from the English Midlands home of Lesley Whittle. Police said it had not been positively identified.

A series of ransom notes demanding £50,000 ($115,000) were received after Miss Whittle disappeared and police said they believed the kidnapper to be a wanted murderer known as the Black Panther.

The man, who acquired his nickname because of the dark clothes he wore while committing his crimes, shot three post office managers to death in separate raids.

Senate Starts Debate

Tax Rebate Freeze May Soon Be Over

OTTAWA (CP)—After more than a week's delay, the Senate starts debate tonight on the massive income tax bill which is holding up rebates to taxpayers.

About $30 million in 1974 income tax refunds await Senate approval of the bill, passed 10 days ago by the Commons.

The tax bill, an amalgam of measures contained in Finance Minister John Turner's Nov. 18 budget, was introduced in the Senate last Tuesday. But senators did not deal with it during last week's three sittings, which totalled three hours, 13 minutes.

Ray Perrault, government leader in the Liberal-dominated Senate, says the upper house will sit five days this week and into the weekend if necessary to pass the bill.

"I certainly have no plans to be absent from the Senate next week," Senator Perrault said in a telephone interview from Vancouver Friday. He was in British Columbia all last week on cabinet business.

Leopold Langlois, deputy government leader in the Senate, said he was not ready to proceed with the tax bill last week "because there were several last-minute amendments approved by the Commons." Salter Hayden, chairman of the Senate's banking trade and commerce committee, needed time to study the amendments before opening debate of the bill in the Senate.

But Sinclair Stevens, Progressive Conservative finance critic in the Commons, said Friday that most of the last-minute amendments cited by Senator Langlois were introduced in the Commons at the end of January.

Bud Cullen, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Turner, said the bulk of the mostly-technical amendments to the 287-page tax bill were "introduced well in advance so the opposition parties would have the information."

The unusual move of introducing amendments before the bill had even been approved in principle was designed as a time-saving measure, Mr. Cullen said.

Senator Perrault said the bill likely will be approved in principle by the Senate before Wednesday. It then would go to the banking, trade and commerce committee for clause-by-clause study.

The bill would reduce personal income taxes by a minimum of $150 and a maximum of $500 for 1974 and a minimum of $200 and a maximum of $750 for 1975. It would exempt from taxation any income, up to $1,000, from interest on savings accounts, and other investments.

In addition, taxpayers would be permitted tax-free savings of $1,000 annually, up to a total of $10,000, for the purchase of their first home, provided it is a new one.

Vietnamese Take Town

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese tanks and infantry blasted into Ban Me Thuot before dawn today and battled defenders from house to house in the besieged provincial capital in the central highlands, field reports said. Amid continuous heavy shelling, fighting still was reported in the heart of the city of 166,000 as night came.

PHNOM PHEN (AP) — The campaign to oust President Lon Nol of Cambodia gathered headway and the United States supply airlift continued despite the heaviest shelling of the Phnom Penh airport to date. Airline sources said a Cambodian airliner was set afire and two airport workers were killed, but no U.S. planes were hit.

Conservatives Gather

WINNIPEG (CP) — Members of the Manitoba Progressive Conservative Party wound up a weekend convention Sunday that dealt mainly with party policy but featured much interest in party leadership. The political future of party leader Sidney Spivak attracted the most curiosity and speculation among the more than 400 delegates, but there were no direct appeals to delegates from the several party notables said the possible challengers of the 46-year-old Winnipeg lawyer at a leadership convention the first weekend in December.

CIA Made Mafia Ally

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times quotes two former aides to the late Senator Robert Kennedy as saying Kennedy told them he stopped a CIA plan to use the Mafia to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. The CIA-Mafia link in a plot against Castro also was reported Sunday by Time magazine, which said several unsuccessful attempts were made against the Cuban leader's life in the early 1960s.

Kissinger Hopeful Agreement Possible

JERUSALEM (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger said today that after his first round of talks with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, President Hafez Assad of Syria and Israeli leaders, he still believes a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement is possible.

"I came here because I believed an agreement was possible," Kissinger told reporters after a two-hour session Sunday night and four hours today with Premier Yitzhak Rabin and his negotiating team. "I have no reason to change my view."

Asked whether he still rated chances of an agreement at 50-50, his assessment after his exploratory talks last month, he replied:

"I don't want to be in a position in which every day I have to give an assessment and percentage figure, because we will be in a hopeless trap after a while.

"We are at the beginning of a process of negotiation which is complicated and which will take some time. We are engaged here in analysing all the ideas and elements that might be part of a possible agreement.

"We're doing so with great care. We've done so in a very friendly, comradely and very positive atmosphere."

Kissinger said he had not committed himself to any target date for an agreement or abandoning his effort.

Under the sponsorship of Belleville Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion, a one-day ACTION meeting was held at the Legion Hall Sunday.

The ACTION (A Commitment To Improve Our Nation) was organized at the Legion's Dominion Convention last June in Newfoundland. Its purpose is to rally Canadians against anything which would corrupt or destroy the present way of life in Canada.

The meeting here was organized by chairman Harold Vaughan and vice-chairman Scotty Broughton. About 100 people took part in discussing various aspects of law and order in the community, from the role of the police civil liberties and court procedures to vandalism and the growth of violence in modern society.

Taking part in Sunday's meeting were such people as Hastings MP Jack Ellis, Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, Prince Edward County MLA James Taylor, Trenton Police Chief Dave Saunders, Ian Reilly of the Labor Council and Picton Mayor, Don King.

Among the groups represented were service clubs, police departments, the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, women's groups and church, school, and veterans' organizations.

The general meeting broke down into six smaller study sessions. Each group discussed its topics, summed up its findings and reported them to the general meeting. All findings will be Dominion Action Committee at compiled and forwarded to the Ottawa for further action.

Today's police officer has become too impersonal. Before he was someone citizens knew on the beat, but now that closeness has gone.

— The courts are too lenient today and there is too much emphasis placed on the rehabilitation of the criminal. This in turn makes it frustrating for policemen, especially now that parole is easily attained.

— Some held that capital punishment or the lash should be brought back. Some said that capital punishment should be the penalty for all those convicted of murder and not just for those accused of killing police officers or guards.

— Canadian civilization is about five to 10 years away from the Detroit and Chicago situations with their breakdown in law and order and increased violence. And the citizens are mostly to blame for letting those in command relax, for not helping the police department do its job properly and for not protesting loudly enough when someone is seen breaking the rules.

— Many people are reluctant to do their duty and serve as witnesses or jurors because they are "beaten down" in court, because of the money lost by appearing for any length of time and because of fear in some cases of losing a business or job for doing their duty.

— Vandalism is a problem resulting in millions of dollars lost every year. In some cases, citizens look the other way when they see acts of vandalism. And some of the blame for vandalism lies with parents who don't discipline their children or have no communication with them. The school system, some thought, was also at fault.

— There is a lack of knowledge of the activities of the police. The police have little time for crime prevention since most of their time is taken up in routine duties.

— There should be more recreational activities for young people. One teen-aged girl said the only place for a young person to go out on a weekend in Belleville is to a hotel "where you're surrounded by liquor and are laughed at if you don't drink."

Hastings Primary Schools Will Have Fewer Pupils

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Elementary school population will decline in Hastings county for the next five years and then it will level off in 1980.

Secondary school population will remain constant until 1980 when it will begin to dis drastically.

These are the findings in a recent report to the Hastings county board of education. It explores school populations and enrolment to the year 1984.

The report's author, E. E. Tummon, controller of finance for the board, said the figures and projections are only accurate for the next three years.

"Enrolment and population projections beyond this point are speculative ... there are too many unknown factors," explained Mr. Tummon, in an interview.

The lowest student populations lie in the age group between six and 10. Most educators agree the introduction of the birth control pill in the mid-60s accounts for the decrease.

These trends occur across the province and have made dramatic impacts on boards of education.

Mr. Tummons said available data reveals population patterns are stabilizing which means a more even enrolment by the late 1970s.

The age group which is now between six and 10 will reach secondary levels by 1980. This will account for a sharp decrease in secondary school enrolment in the next decade.

According to the report there will be about 2,000 students leaving the system and only about 1,500 entering this year.

However, total enrolment for Hastings county has increased slightly at the secondary level since 1969.

Transair Strikes

WINNIPEG (CP) — Management, supervisory and administrative staff are continuing to fill the gap created after 250 agents and maintenance workers at Transair Ltd. went on strike Friday after contract negotiations broke down.

But Transair spokesman Don Watson said some adjustments will be made Monday to compensate for extra time required for maintenance work.

Public Service Talks Break Down

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hopes for settlement of the dispute between the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) and the treasury board were dashed Sunday when talks broke down after three days of renewed negotiations.

The Ottawa talks ended after the union rejected two proposed settlements which Bill Doherty, PSAC first-vice-president, described as a "wasted exercise as far as we were concerned."

The two sides began negotiations Friday for the first time since Feb. 21.

The alliance, representing 18,500 federally-employed maintenance men, tradesmen and laborers, has stalled grain shipments and disrupted mail and air services since it began selective strikes Feb. 17.

A board spokesman said the union was asked to study the two proposals overnight Sunday and return to bargaining today.

Mr. Doherty told a news conference the government's offer was "minimal" and still below terms offered to the alliance in a conciliation report earlier this year.

The rejected offers were for both a 15-month and a 20-month settlement. The 15-month proposal would have provided $250 less per worker than the conciliation offer, and the 20-month proposal $165 less, he said.

Board and union negotiators disagreed on changes the board made in its proposals. A board spokesman said the offers "were supposed to be based on" the conciliation report, and while there might be marginal money differences, added it would be "less than a dollar a day" for each worker.

Saltshaker Of Poison Kills Three

CHICAGO (AP) — A woman cleaning out her late mother's apartment inadvertently passed along to neighbors the apparent cause of her mother's death—a saltshaker full of poison.

Three persons—including the mother—died from sodium nitrite poisoning, Chicago health officials say. Initially all were thought to have suffered heart attacks because the symptoms are similar.

It was not until seven other persons became ill that sodium nitrite poisoning was suspected, hospital authorities said Sunday.

Two men in their 70s remain in critical condition.

The chemical, which blocks oxygen from the blood, can kill within 30 minutes when consumed in sufficient quantities.

Health officials said the saltshaker came from the apartment of Mae Edwards, 48, who died Feb. 7.

Nixon's Lawyer Says Able Crook Better Official Than Honest Boob

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (AP) — Fred Buzhart, a key figure in former president Richard Nixon's Watergate defence, says United States citizens demand too much moral accountability of their public officials.

"Would you rather have a competent scoundrel or an honest boob in office?" asked Buzhardt in an interview with the Charlotte Observer.

"You can make a strong argument that for a president in this day and time you don't want a babe in the woods. He's got to deal with some pretty rough and tumble people."

Buzhardt, 51, Nixon's primary lawyer in the Watergate affair until he suffered a heart attack last summer, said the country would have been better off if Nixon had not been forced to resign.

He said the public and the news media have set an unrealistic moral standard for government, resulting in a lack of public confidence.

"The type of circumstances and media coverage we go through in this country can have a disastrous result. It can set standards that are really mythical. People many times expect their public servants to be super humans. That defies human experience."

Folk Group Entertains

Members of the St. Paul's Folk Group, from Peterborough, entertained more than 450 people with a one-hour folk musical last night called Tell it Like It Is. The folk musical under the direction of Elsie Flett, was written by Ralph Carmichael and Kurt Kaiser. The group ranges in age between 15 and 21.

Role of Library Seminar Topic

How can the library best serve the needs of the people who use it? How can it reach those who don't use it or aren't aware that books are only one part of the services provided by a modern library today?

These were some of the questions dealt with at The Chairman's Workshop sponsored by the Lake Ontario Regional Library System and held at Corby Public Library Saturday.

A total of 56 representatives from libraries and boards attended from eight counties: Frontenac, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Northumberland, Hastings, Victoria, Haliburton and Peterborough.

Guest speaker, Ruth Biggins, chairman of the lkbrary board for Richmond Hill spoke on what the problems are in making a better library system.

Later, smaller group studies were held to deal with such topics as public relations, political action, special program, budget prepararation, trustee's role and audio-visual services.

Chairman of the meeting, Barrie J. Robinson, a director with the Lake Ontario Regional Library System said after the meeting. "We want to get away from the idea of the library being a place for dusty old books. The library can be the cultural, continuing educational, recreational focal point of a community. We want to get non-users to use the library and make everyone aware of the services that a library can offer."

School Psychologists Aid Staff as Well as Students

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Parents with school age children dread the thought that someday the principal may call to say "your child's behavior has forced us to bring in a school psychologist".

This fear, an off-shoot of the psychiatric stigma, is totally unfounded for parents with children in the Hastings County Board of Education.

First of all behavorial problems are seldom handled this way and secondly your child may be helped without you or the child even being aware of it.

Linda Seppanen, a 39-year-old school psychologist in the Hastings system, sees her role as "entirely supporting the school staff".

"I can never see my effectiveness or role working with individual students . . . there is not enough time," said Mrs. Seppanen, who has her masters degree in psychology and has been working in education for 15 years.

Mrs. Seppanen, who works in Trenton Schools, said "by affecting teachers we can in the long run influence more students".

Much of her time is spent observing the actual classroom interaction between the students and the teacher.

"A school psychologist must identify the problem first and then work with the student and teacher involved," she explained. Observation sessions are followed by seminars either with a group of teachers or an individual teacher to discuss the problem areas.

Mrs. Seppanen said teachers today are under a great pressure. "Often they are not even aware of the kinds of pressures they are under," she added.

School psychologists do not "bend minds" or "psych" students in their work. They consider themselves to be part of the educational system.

Another Hastings psychologist Dr. Eric Haughton, a former professor of education at York University, considers himself as much an educator as a psychologist.

Dr. Haughton said he sees his prime function "as improving the total picture of performance of both students and teachers".

Dr. Haughton has dismissed the traditional forms of measuring a student's performance in academic situations.

However, he still relies on measurement to develop a performance standard or a means by which the student and teacher can see their own results.

Dr. Haughton, who joined Hastings Board of Education last year as a full-time school psychologist, said he uses familiar materials to measure the performance of individual students.

Instead of giving a student an unfamiliar book for a reading test, Dr. Haughton prefers to use a book the child has been reading. "My major goal is to enhance performance," he added.

Not all school psychologists agree with tests, either traditional or new.

Mrs. Seppanen said she has not used tests or other measurement techniques for many years.

She said the actual classroom learning environment is the true test for any behavior or learning performance.

But psychologists agree strongly most of their work should take place in the primary grades. The theory being behavioral problems are not firmly set in the early years.

Early-morning Blaze Leaves Seven Homeless

TRENTON — A $10,000 house fire on Murphy St. turned five children and their parents out of bed early Sunday morning after they were awakened by a patrolling Trenton policeman.

No one was injured in the 8:10 a.m. blaze.

Constable Robert Galloway noted smoke billowing out of 96 Murphy St., turned in the alarm to the fire department, and then helped rescue the family from the burning building.

The building's occupants Donald Elridge, his wife and children, ranging in age from six to 16 years, stayed temporarily in a police cruiser before being taken into the home of a neighbor.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said the fire started at the rear of the house in a furnace room. It swept up a stairwell of the two-storey wood and stucco home. Damage was restricted to the rear of the building.

All students participating in the science fair received a framed certificate. Category winners received trophies and a special trophy was presented to over-all winner Jeanette Wiltse.

Judges for the science fair were Rico Antognini of South Marysburg, Dr. Gerry Bradley, Picton, Dr. Earl Taylor, Picton, William Lane, Picton, James Dunlop, Jack Christie and Lloyd Thompson all of Picton and Peter Holly-Hime of Hillier.

CN Train Crash Inquest In Napanee This Week

A coroner's inquest into the Dec. 20, head-on collision of two Canadian National trains near Ernestown will begin in Napanee Tuesday.

In that collision, two Belleville engineers Keith Boyle and Ray Mortimore and a woman passenger, Joanne Feeney were killed.

The Canadian Transport Commission, the ruling body in such a mishap, began an independent investigation immediately and reported last week alcoholic beverage containers were found in the cab of the freight train.

The report urges installation of "standard surveillance procedures to monitor the fitness of train employees reporting for duty".

The commission was also ciritical of training background of a crewman with five months experience who was on the freight locomotive as head-end brakeman. The commission noted in a news release ". . . that the brakeman, who was injured leaping from the cab just before the crash, was not familiar with the location of the emergency brake valve and did not know how to operate the two-way radio equipment in the cab."

Commission tests showed there were no malfunctions in the braking systems of either train or in the automatic signal systems along the track.

The transport commission is waiting for the outcome of this week's coroner's inquest before it makes any decision to hold its own public hearing into the incident.

The inquest will be held in the Napanee court house beginning at 10 a.m.

School Play Really Big Love Affair

TRENTON — The Boy Friend, Trenton High School's first musical in 10 years, deals with love, or, as producer Carol Beecroft prefers to put it, "it's a whole massive love affair".

But, as she quickly assured Sunday, it's "strictly platonic. There's no sex involved."

Since only days now remain before it opens Thursday, March 13, for a three-day run, the entire production staff has been thrown into a frenzy of last-minute work.

Sets and props are being finished, dress rehearsal after dress rehearsal is being run.

The plot says Mrs. Beecroft, is fairly simple and classic: "Boy meets girl. They fall in love in the afternoon and are engaged by evening."

To get the cast members emotionally flexible, took some doing, she said.

After the musical, written by Englishwoman Sandy Wilson, was chosen, a process "bordering on brainwashing" was undertaken.

Teachers, involved as various directors, encounter sessions with those playing lead characters. "Hours were spent on each person," said Mrs. Beecroft.

But before that, "The choreographer (Marilyn Johnston) loosened them up. Then we would knock down their inhibitions and build up their egos."

Now, she said, the cast and production staff, consisting of nearly half the school, is a tightly knit group. Before scurrying back to Sunday's rehearsal, producer Beecroft said "It's been quite an experience and (with fingers crossed) it's been successful."

Child Welfare

Child beating — the "child beating syndrome" as the malady is known — has been around for as long as mankind itself, but it has been receiving much more emphasis of late.

It's a problem too which is difficult to deal with since it so often goes undetected, and for too long at that, while also being hedged by legal difficulties where interference by the law or even neighbors is concerned.

Happily though the problem is receiving more attention these days, and in Hastings county for one by means of a leaflet being circulated in the schools. The leaflet suggests ways teachers and school principals can discover and deal with child abuse in the home.

Much of the therapy in the case of child abuse is aimed, not so much at removing the child from the home environment (although this may be done if the child is in danger), but at working with the entire family in hopes of effecting an improved atmosphere.

Behind this commendable school initiative in Hastings is the Children's Aid Society of Family and Children's Service. If it results in a greater degree of control of this distressing problem so much the better.

City Growth

City Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis brought home an interesting point last week when he told local Kiwanians, "Belleville will grow in spite of us."

But, in the face of this, there are plenty of Belleville people who like what they've got. People have moved to Bellevile to get away from the big city hustle and bustle.

So much for that point of view.

On the other side of the coin, Mr. Bemis said Belleville and its economic community will stagnate and possibly deteriorate if a damper is placed on development.

In 1974, eight new industries were ushered into the community. The assessment generated from these eight will buffer tax hikes already predicted to be substantial.

To stop growth would be sticking our heads in the sand.

Belleville has an important role to play in Eastern Ontario growth and city residents shouldn't be in favor of a bit part.

Movie Nostalgia

"That's Entertainment."

It's pure nostalgia . . . it's funny . . . it's corny too at times, as only those old Hollywood movie sequences could be . . . it's moving.

Bellevillians saw it at one of The Mall's two cinemas and there, among countless other old-time screen greats was Mickey Rooney. Remember him visiting friends in Ameliasburg a few years ago, his jaunt to the Animal Shelter (in the news right now) and then he was gone?

Well, as the now rotund little man — a youthful 53 nonetheless — said while standing outside the old Andy Hardy movie home: "We've all changed a bit."

The understatement of the year perhaps, but reflecting so accurately the reason why (and there were some older Bellevillians there, among a sprinkling of "now" generation) we go to see it all again. And thanks to the Kinsmen, senior citizens here saw it.

As Frank Sinatra said of a classic dance sequence by Fred Astaire and Eleanor Powell: "You may wait — and hope — but you'll never see the likes of this again."

As it happens, the movie itself is full of great song and dance scenes — with Astaire, Ginger Rogers of course (though oddly enough she appears in only one sequence), Gene Kelly, Cyd Charisse, Donald O'Connor, Debbie Reynolds, Judy Garland; and there is one banquet scene in black-and-white which is a movie fan's dream, for in it is virtually everybody who was anybody in that heyday of Hollywood's fame and fortune.

In the vernacular of the day, and literally speaking, this film gets it all together — the best of the old musical film clips. As Sinatra said, we'll never see the likes of it again.

A Future Under Communism

Fate of Cambodia Probably Sealed Whatever U.S. Does

By John D. Harbron
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The imminent fall of Phnom Penh, capital of beleagured Cambodia to the Cambodian Communist forces, scarcely grabs the man-on-the-street in Canada.

And yet a moment or two thinking about it, reveals how bankrupt in the long run have been the efforts of Western nations to dominate the affairs of South East Asian ones.

After a quarter century of cold war, the bloodbath of the Vietnamese War in which Canada thank God did not participate, the long negotiations with the Communists, the so-called ceasefire of a year ago, Cambodia's fall will undo it all.

The Communist generals of the Khmer Rouge, whose titular head is the paradoxical prince and Communist Siranouk waiting it out in Peking, have the capital city under constant fire and ringed with determined troops.

If Cambodia falls, there is little or no chance of the event moving the powers-that-be in Washington. The United States is deep into a recession and jobless Americans in numbers approaching the levels of the 1930s are not concerned in the least about the Cambodians.

Long-forgotten was former President Richard Nixon's quick foray into Cambodia in the spring of 1970 which set off the last of the bitter internal political debates on Vietnam in America, led directly to such on-campus tragedies as the Kent State University student massacre.

There is a U.S.-supported airlift of food only going into Phnom Penh. In the ongoing tradition of Asian man's inhumanity to man, we are told all of it goes to the troops, none to a starving city.

As for the "domino theory" which dominated U.S. foreign policy in the cold war years, that if "we" let one South East Asian country "go Communist," the others would fall one by one, it's long gone.

That was the rationale of the late Secretary of State John Dulles a fundamentalist Presbyterian and committed anti-Communist, who applied it simplistically in Latin America and the Middle East with disastrous results for the United States.

In Latin America in 1954 it led to support both open and covert through the CIA, of a military uprising against a neo-Marxist regime in Guatemala, a precursor of the Cuban Revolution in 1959. Latin Americans, even those who are strongly anti-Communist will never forget that coup.

And in the Middle East in 1956, the withdrawal of major technical aid to Egypt's President Nasser primarily to build the High Dam at Aswan led to what Dulles never wanted more rather than less Russian influence on the Nile. And in time the Russians built the High Dam themselves.

It's hard to say what a Communist-dominated Cambodia will mean in South East Asia.

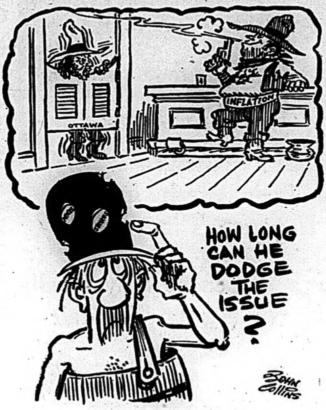
South Vietnam next door, embattled and shattered, now has more Communist-held territory than non-Communist, a situation the huge American intervention of 1963-1973 was supposed to terminate.

The best that can be hoped for those who still live by the domino theory is that Thailand and the Philippines, both intensely strong anti-Communist countries, will be the new places to hold fast.

ROLE AGAIN FOR TAIWAN

Neither of them looks to be now or in the near future seats of major wars of liberation. All this should give Taiwan, or the Republic of China new hope that it has a role to play in US-Asian relations.

But this is 1975, not 1955 and Washington's longterm intention has to be recognition of Peking and no longer Taipei.



The Marshal Of Dodge City

Judge Walter Robb Angered Some But He Ran a Tight Ship at LCBO

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
of The Intelligencer

The year 1946 was one of a lot of strain for Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell.

There was a lot on his platter under any circumstances but in particular this year he had to draft, put through the house, and introduce to the public the government's new cocktail bar legislation. And then he had to get the new program working.

The last was a particularly ticklish matter.

For the province then, nearly 30 years ago, was a far different Ontario than it is today.

There was still a strong Orange element and a strong prohibitionist sector and the government had to be careful not to stir them up too much.

The first precaution it took was to establish in its legislation that only municipalities of 50,000 population (and then there were only six of these in the province) would automatically have cocktail bars. All other municipalities would first have to hold a vote.

Then for the sake of public image extreme care had to be taken in choosing the man who would head the controlling agency, the new Liquor Licence Board.

He would have to be a man of unquestionable integrity and absolutely above possible suspicion in the public mind. Finally Blackwell felt he had found his man in Judge Walter J. Robb.

Judge Robb, then in his fifties, had been based out of Orangeville for years. A small, almost tiny, man he was soft spoken and kindly in appearance, yet he had a strong reputation on the bench. And he himself didn't drink.

The government agreed that a better man probably couldn't be found and so the judge was appointed

But very soon there were some regrets.

It was found the judge was a man of strong, and sometimes strange, opinions.

One morning, shortly after sale had started and the Board was in operation, I dropped in on Blackwell.

He obviously was furious.

It turned out that the banquet permit system had just been started and that the judge and his board (which, though there were two other members, in effect meant just him) had turned down one of the first half dozen applications.

This was for a Jewish wedding which, according to custom would see both the ceremony and the following reception held in the synagogue quarters. In different rooms, of course.

When news of the turn-down got around Blackwell's phone began to ring, and ring and ring. It seemed that every Jewish Tory in town and even some Liberals wanted to express indignation and find out just what was happening.

Finally the attorney-general was able to get in touch with Robb and ask him just what in the devil was taking place.

"Oh I don't think they should drink in a church," the judge told him.

After the blistering that Blackwell handed out the judge quickly changed his mind on that one. And there has been drinking in "churches" ever since.

Actually though he was under pretty constant criticism Judge Robb probably was the best choice that could have been made.

He held the job for nearly 30 years, of course, only retiring a few years ago when he was in his eighties.

He continued to come up from time to time with some strange decisions (one of them: he permitted live music in bars but not juke boxes, because they were too noisy).

But he kept a clean ship.

He was particularly good during the Frost years, when on orders of the premier there was practically a clamp-down on new licences.

There were many complaints and many pleas but he would just smile benignly and ignore them.

And during the Robarts' years when the policy on licences was loosened up, again on orders from the premier, he was just as effective in giving the province a standard of good liquor sale conditions that probably compares with any on the continent.

In fact when the judge was getting well into his seventies I asked Robarts when he might retire him.

"Retire him?" he said, "Why? He keeps us out of trouble and Lord only knows what a new man might do."

And of course in this statement he was being quite a bit of a prophet. For James Mackey who succeeded the judge has had the government in almost constant trouble.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

First mining of iron ore from the Marmora property of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation is expected to get underway some time before the end of March, it was stated yesterday by Harold Olsen, mines superintendent. Ore reserves at the Marmora mine are felt to be sufficient to allow pit operations for a period of about 20 years. Officials state there is additional ore in the deposit but it is stil to be determined if open pit mining operations would be profitable below a certain depth.

Elimination of high tariffs as a solution for unemployment in Canada was advanced by speakers at a Liberal rally held in the City Hall last week. The meeting was in the interests of Charles A. Cameron, Liberal candidate for South Hastings.

The church hall Melrose was filled to capacity last night when the annual re-organization meetings of the Tyendinaga Men's and Women's Conservative Associations were held. Speakers included J.F. Hill, Dr. Kinnear, Jack Sargent, Dr. J.A. Thompson of Tweed, Fred Mitchell, E.W. Jones and W.E. Tummon.

Question of Choice

The Tax Preparation Services

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

As if late winter were not bad enough, it's always made worse by the necessity of paying income taxes.

Nobody enjoys the task of filling out page after page of income-tax forms, even if there is a refund at the end. Still, thousands of ordinary people manage to do it.

But if you are one of those who prefer to turn the job over to someone who makes a business of preparing tax returns, here's a word of warning:

Be careful as to whom you select, and take the time to check up on the work done by your "expert."

Surveys have repeatedly shown that no two tax-service offices will necessarily come up with the same results prepared from the same figures.

Some of the once-a-year tax experts do know their jobs. But others may be unqualified fly-by-nights, charlatans, or well-meaning but untrained people looking for a little extra work between permanent jobs.

Here are some key points from an information circular recently issued by the department of national revenue to guide tax-return preparers. Use them to check on the quality of the service you are paying for:

—If the tax-service office does not choose to use your personalized income-tax return, it should at least take from it the label showing your name, address, Social Insurance number, account number, etc., and attach it to the form used. Three out of every eight 1973 returns by tax-preparers did not have the label, and their processing was delayed.

—An incomplete or interim return is not acceptable to the tax collector. It is a waste of time and money to submit one.

—Amended returns should not be filed (if, for example, you discover that incorrect information was previously reported) unless it is to claim a subsequent-year loss. Instead, write to Taxation Data Centre, Ottawa, K1A 1A2, if notice of assessment has not been received, or to the nearest district taxation office if the notice has already been received.

Whether the tax return is being prepared by yourself or by a tax-service office, be sure that you have taken advantage of all tax-saving opportunities and that you don't add to the $150-million or so that Canadians shell out each year in tax over-payments.

If, for example, you changed jobs in 1974, you would probably have contributed too much to the Canada Pension Plan and Unemployment Insurance. Get a refund by filling out the relevant sections on page 3 of the return.

You could be entitled to extra personal exemptions if there was a marriage or death in the family last year. Check your Income Tax Filing Guide.

Reasonable moving expenses for yourself, your family and your possessions can be deducted if you moved at least 25 miles to a new home in the course of changing jobs.

Tax questions can be answered, free by calling the district taxation office nearest you. (Telephone numbers are listed on the back cover of the Guide.) Long-distance calls are free when you ask the operator for Zenith 0-4000.

Accidental Poisonings

Cambridge Reporter

Each year, an estimated 100,000 persons are involved in accidental home poisonings. Close to half require medical attention. Many suffer disabling illness. It is particularly tragic when children are involved in home poisonings — a situation that is all too frequent.

Children are naturally curious. Hospital reports show that they consume cleaning fluids, pills, medicines, rodent and insect killers, furniture polish, detergents and just about anything else within their reach.

Children are not discouraged by a bad taste or foul odor. They have been known to consume large quantities of cleaning agents, insecticides and other materials regardless of unpleasant taste and smell.

Leaving a child unattended in a house where these products are used is nothing less than carelessness on the part of those who should know better.

LETTERS

Communism in the World Today

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In your footnote to the letter headed "Communism in the World" (Intelligencer, Feb. 26) you ask: "so what happens to ideas under Communism? If they find free expression in Western newspapers, this is not the case in Communist society or its Press or literary world generally. Look what happened to Alexander Solzhenitsyn."

Without necessarily accepting your preamble in its entirety, and in the limited space available, the answer is that what happens to "unacceptable" expression and its proponents in the Marxist world is much the same as what happens in the Western world. They are first censored; if they persist they may be harassed by various means, and they may go to jail. The means vary from place to place and from time to time, both here and there.

You mention Alexander Solzhenitsyn in the Soviet Union. But for every Solzhenitsyn in the Marxist world it is probable we can point to a James Joyce, a D.H. Lawrence, a Henry Miller, a Xaviera Hollander, a Jane Fonda, an Eartha Kitt, and many more, including a New York publisher who not too long ago was sentenced to some years in jail for publishing an erotic magazine. It is only in recent years that our daily newspapers have permitted more freedom of expression in some areas, and there still remain many taboos.

The difference between the Marxist world and Western society is in the "hang-ups." Ours is mainly, although not entirely, in the realm of eroticism; theirs is in the field of ideology which, of course, has many ramifications.

There are cogent philosophical reasons for criticizing Marxism as it is established in various parts of the world and in its various manifestations; there are also sound theological grounds for rejecting its very foundations. However, in my opinion, trying to fight Marxism by pointing out the mote in the neighbor's eye, while implicitly ignoring the mote in our own, is likely to be not only futile but also counter-productive, since it will be perceived as dishonest and therefore lacking in credibility.

KINGSTON ONLOOKER.

Editor's note: If you wish to equate the shortcomings of western democracy with those of communism, then give us the latter. There is no equivalent in democracy as we know it, to such excesses as political exile in Siberia, or confinement of dissidents to "mental homes," or treatment therein which reportedly atrophies the brain cells. Furthermore, this newspaper has consistently counselled its readers to examine the mote in our own national eye before say, sounding off about racial policies of other countries.

'Liberation'

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The coming communization of Cambodia and South Vietnam serves as warning to all nations not yet "liberated" by subversion and the most massive transfer of financial, political and military power the world has ever seen.

D. GRANT.

Canada and Its Monarchist Links

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The cost of the British monarchy is increasingly in the public eye. Latest piece in the dreary dialogue is the suggestion that those who ask questions about Royal wealth are part of a "Red plot".

Only the fertile brain of a Tory would suggest such nonsense. In Britain, of course, there are some of the real true blue types that have made up this decadent political party.

In a staggering economy it is small wonder that many Britons are looking askance at the proposed raise for the Queen.

Already, as a result of the largesse of the taxpayers one of the world's most wealthy women, it is questionable if she cannot economize along with her "subjects".

Likewise, it has to be remembered that it is not only the cost of the Queen and her entourage — there are all the Royal hanger-ons — cousins, sisters, aunts, uncles and vaguely related dukes, they all have to maintain in Royal standard.

Many hard-pressed Britishers are beginning to get fed up with the cost.

I wonder if a Canadian citizen dare suggest, without some Tory claim of "Red" plot, that the time has long been here for this country to shed itself of the obsolescent trappings and cost of the monarchy.

"For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul? Mark 8:36,37

An eternity without God and the good things He has prepared is a terrible price to pay for having our own way over things that will soon pass away. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

Area Scouts Told Trapping Necessary

MADOC — More than 300 scouts from 14 districts across the Quinte Region attended an annual conference in Madoc this weekend.

Highlights of the day-long conference included presentations by the federal department of energy, mines and resources, the provincial ministry of natural resources and discussions on beaver populations.

The conference was sponsored by the Moira Valley District, made up of scouters from Tweed, Marmora, Madoc, Cloyne, Stirling, Plainfield and Roslin.

Bruce Turner, speaking on wildlife, explained "many believe it is cruel to trap the beaver."

He pointed to the beaver's indiscriminate dam-building and the resulting increase of acidity in water as the beaver pond stagnates as a major reason for beaver control.

Mr. Turner said "selective trapping," where an adult male and one kit is taken from a beaver family, checks over poulation without danger to the species.

Forestry and the environment were also discussed during the day.

Nomination Up for Grabs

MADOC — Liberals in what they expect will be the Hastings—Peterborough riding in the next provincial election have formed a committee here as a contact group for possible candidates seeking the party's nomination.

A nomination committee also has been set up to organize a nomination convention, the group's executive announced after a meeting here.

The convention will likely be held in April, said the executive.

Two Charged In Theft

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said today, two persons have been charged with theft in connection with an incident at Belleville Airport Feb. 27.

One is identified as Glenn Joseph Jones, 16, of RR4, Belleville. The other is a juvenile.

The airport club building was broken into about 8 p.m. Owner Jim Marker had spotted the pair and summoned OPP officers who followed footprints in the snow for three miles with the aid of a tracking dog. The two youths were captured as they got into a car.

Damage to a softdrink machine and filing cabinet was estimated at $75. Taken from the machine was $8.75 in cash.

Science Fair Challenge for Students

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Corespondent

STIRLING — The science fair in Stirling on Friday looked to be pretty ho-hum, but the scientific applications — wow! Plants do respond to music, three girls found out. Another experiment involved ultra violet rays passing through gasses and registering the outcome on photographic paper.

And these were all Grade 7 and 8 students experimenting at the Stirling Senior Public School. The science teacher is Stephen Patrick, and this was the third year that Stirling has had a science fair.

Last year Mr. Patrick wrote a book which was published by the board of education and now is used county-wide.

"It was part of an attempt to improve the scientific aspect of science projects," Mr. Patrick said in an interview.

Science teachers I have spoken to want a science project to consist of student in a front line scientific investigation rather than just a collection of material related to science.

"That change in emphasis is something we have really been working on last year," Mr. Patrick continued. "Forty percent of the marks is judged on scientific approach. Display, although desireable, is secondary."

George Thompson, Grade 7, investigated the important characteristics of crystal seeds so he could grow crystals more efficiently.

He disolved copper sulphate in water and suspended seed crystals in the solution. These seeds were copper sulphate, selenite, labradorite and zinc. The largest single crystal he obtained was from the zinc seed. It is about an inch long. Now George has a collection of beautiful blue crystals, some individuals, and some clusters.

Peggy Morgan, Ellen Jones and Cindy Donnan, all Grade 8 pupils wondered whether or not music could affect the growth of plants. They used loud and soft music, and a control group of beans not exposed to music.

The outcome of the experiment — plants receiving loud music grew quicker than the plants not receiving music, and plants receiving soft music grew slower than the plants not receiving music.

Atmospheric change and the ice age was investigated by Gonzalo Wilson, Danny Hilts and Dwayne Watson, Grade 8. Their experiment consisted of measuring the amount of light of light energy that got through test gasses on photographic paper.

The group passed short and long ultraviolet waves through oxygen, carbon dioxide, ammonia, hydrogen and water vapour. Their conslusion is that a change in the atmosphere could have caused the ice age. They found Ammonia resisted the light energy the most, they said that since volcanoes give out large amounts of ammonia, there would have had to have been a large amount to change the atmosphere.

Quinte Cuisine

Helen Kelly, who is president of the Belleville Branch of the National Ballet, takes adult classes at the Quinte Dance Centre where two of her four children also study ballet. Her whole family loves this hearty winter dish, "just as much as I did when my mother used to make it," says Mrs. Kelly. The recipe resembles the classic French recipe for pot-au-feu.

Hearty Beef Brisket Soup

three pounds beef brisket two quarts cold water or broth (saved vegetable cooking water is ideal) two large sliced onions four large carrots, in three-quarter-inch chunks four celery stalks, in three-quarter-inch chunks one tps. salt and a sprinkling of pepper.
½ tsp. bouquet garni or your favorite beef seasonings two beef boullion cubes three or four potatoes, quartered broad noodles (about ½ package.

The meat may be browned first in order to give a rich amber color to the soup. The vegetables may be varied according to the family's tastes.

Combine all the ingredients except the potatoes in a deep pot and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer for two or three hours or until the meat is tender.

Add the potatoes for the final 30 minutes of cooking. Meanwhile, prepare half of one package of broad noodles, and drain.

Remove the meat from the soup and keep warm in the oven on a heat-resistent platter. Ladle the soup over the noodles, and serve. After the soup, serve the meat with mustard pickle or pickled red cabbage.

A Little Sunshine for Lunch

Every Friday, 50 elderly persons arrive or are brought to Bridge Street United Church for a special get-together and luncheon.

They're members of the Sunshine Lunch Club — the members chose the name, they said, because the weekly event is like a ray of sunshine — and besides a hot and nourishing food, they get some fun and companionship from the meal.

The event is the offshoot of the Meals on Wheels project which sends hot meals to shut-ins every week.

It and the Soup and Sandwich lunches, prepared by high school home economics students, are sponsored by the Central Volunteer Bureau. Willy DeBoer is the key volunteer-director of these programs.

Serving the meals along with Mrs. DeBoer each week are Annie Campbell, Olive Gerow and Fern Vani, who all say they love the Friday lunchtimes as much or more than members of the club.

As for the members, as Bertha Wilkinson says, "Most of my friends are in the Home or dead. I really enjoy coming here to talk."

Mrs. Wilkinson is one of the members who gets a ride to the luncheon.

"If someone didn't pick me up," she says, "I just couldn't come.

"There sure are a lot of generous people."

Politicians 'Sex-starved'

LONDON (CP) — A 48-year-old bachelor member of Parliament is expressing serious concern about the amount of sex enjoyed by his colleagues. He says they are getting too little of it.

So Charles Irving, from the Conservative southern England riding of Cheltenham, is about to launch a campaign to unionize Commons members to fight for shorter hours.

A small number of MPs wives tried recently to organize a protest to the government about the long afternoon and night sittings of the Commons which keep their husbands away from home.

But the majority of wives refused to sign a petition to the leader of the House, saying they have no interest in the subject.

"Many of them," he says, "are seriously sex-starved. They don't like to come out and say it in public.

Rummage Sale 20 Years Old

For 20 years Enroy Mary Townsend of the Salvaton Army has organized the weekly rummage sale.

Held in the Salvation Army Hall on Station Street, the rummage sale opens at 10 a.m. every Friday. Until noon customers browse through the tables and racks of clothing, looking for good bargains.

"We price our items reasonably," says Miss Townsend. "Articles are seldom more than $5."

The clothing is donated to the Salvation Army by families who have outgrown or outworn their dresses, suits and shoes. Proceeds from the rummage sale enable the Salvation Army to buy food for needy families, and to assist transient men who need a night's lodging as they pass through the city.

"We like to have funds always available for welfare work," explains Mrs. Townsend. "Sometimes it's for as small a thing as bus fare, and then sometimes as important as a family's accommodation."

Assisting Miss Townsend with the sorting and selling, Grace Beaudrie and Elsie Johnson volunteer their time Friday mornings. Often as many as 100 persons will visit the hall, where used furniture and kitchenware can often be purchased in addition to clothes.

"We don't sell all the clothing we're donated," Miss Townsend says. "We give away approximately 300 items a week to Belleville familes who can't afford to buy at the rummage sale."

Mrs. Beaudrie added that although they are well supplied in most areas, there is always a need for children's clothes in the two-to-four-year-old area.

Anyone interested in donating clothes to the Salvation Army can call for their pick-up service Saturday mornings, or go to the Station Street Hall anytime on Wednesday

World Day of Prayer Message Calls for Unity

The World Day of Prayer service held in Bridge Street United Church on Friday, March 7, was an ecumenical service with representatives from each denomination in Belleville taking part. More than 400 women attended the afternoon service.

The theme this year was "Become Perfectly One". Speaker May Sanders, deaconess of Bridge St. United Church, called for all Christian people to being working towards a common purpose and unity of spirit as members of one family of God.

She spoke of Our Lord's prayer as "a prayer with a challenge", a challenge to break down the barriers which divide various denominations, and to work towards a unity of spirit in community, government, and its world outreach.

"Christ wasn't bound by institutions, rituals or traditions. His parish was where he felt needed, where he believed God was calling him", said Miss Sanders.

The congragation was asked to reflect on their own values, on what they have in common with other Christians and people of other faiths to think of ways they can serve their own community.

Hat Trade on Upswing

EDMONTON (CP) — If it weren't for the traditionalists and the bald-headed men, there might not be any John Kitscos left in Canada.

They pulled the hat-making business through the lean years of the late 1950s and '60s and now, Mr. Kitsco says, things are beginning to improve.

The 60-year-old proprietor of John's Hat Shop on Jasper Avenue said most hatters had to diversify, and like himself, ended up selling all manner of men's clothes.

"When long hair styles came in the hat trade started to decline. I think we hit a low point about 1970 and since then it's on the upswing."

Mr. Kitsco left school at about Grade 10 in 1935 and drifted into the business.

"Things were a little tough at that time. You looked around and got into something that was available and that's how I got started."

Mr. Kitsco made hats for both Stetson and Biltmore in Ontario before coming to Edmonton and opening his own shop.

"At one time styles were basic but we've had more styles in the last five years than we've had at any other time."

Mr. Kitsco divides his clientele into the men in their 50s who want a conventional hat and the men in their 20s who are wearing the currently stylish wide-brimmed fedoras. The generation in between never learned to wear hats.

A conventional hat can be had for $14 but beaver felt will run the tab up to $50 and a select beaver western or cowboy hat can cost $150.

Mr. Kitsco said Biltmore is about the only company still producing significant amounts of fur felt and supplies small hatters with the raw materials for their own custom-made creations.

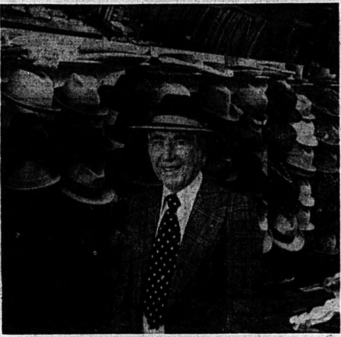
A hat can be turned out in about two hours using a steam blocker that pushes in the crown and pulls out the brim over a mould.

Most of the custom-made hats Mr. Kitsco turns out are for airline stewardesses or policewomen or novelty hats used in Edmonton's Klondike Days celebrations.

He also supplies Hutterite colonies with their distinctive black, wide-brimmed, square-crowned hats and says that even there younger men are looking for a style with a wider brim.

While the bulk of his 4,000-odd annual sales are in December, Mr. Kitsco says summer business is improving.

"We sold a lot of cowboy hats to tourists last summer. That seems to be the No. 1 thing they want to take back."



Fashion Revival

Edmonton hatter John Kitsco models one of the wide-brimmed styles currently in vogue among young men who are discovering hats. Until recently, those in Mr. Kitsco's business were struggling to survive but changing fashion trends have made the future much brighter. (CP Photo).

'Practical Jokes' Cool Their Fights

Dear Ann Landers: I've discovered the perfect solution for toning down husband-wife fights. Whenever Mary Jane and I sense an argument is getting too hot, it's a signal to start pulling little jokes on one another to ease the tension.

For example, last week we had a silly dispute about the car. I put an end to it by filling the toes of her house shoes with grape jelly. When she stepped into them I heard her roar with laughter.

It's not all one-sided, however. About a month ago, after Mary Jane and I had a heated argument about my staying out late after bowling, she took my bowling ball to a local pro shop and had the holes plugged up. At first I didn't think it was very funny, but after a while I had to admit it was one of the greatest gags of all time.

Things have been pretty quiet around here lately, but I've already got my "retaliator" planned. When we have our next argument, I'm going to take her precious little poodle to the shop and have them give her a burr haircut.

Maybe the practical joke routine won't work for everybody, but it sure works for us.—Happy In Santa Barbara

Dear Happy: I'm printing your letter as an example of what some people think is hilarious. You kooks get no endorsement from me. Sounds as if you're not playing with a full deck.

Dear Ann Landers: After reading those letters from women who produced only girls and the responses from women with all boys, I'd like to know where those dames have been these last five years.

Science has discovered a technique that works about 90 per cent of the time. A couple can get a boy or girl if they follow a few simple instructions. I know you can't get too clinical in your column, but it has to do with an acid condition of the female (which makes girls) and the alkaline condition (which makes boys).

Why don't you tell them about it? Or—maybe you are ignorant, too?—In The KNOW.

Dear In: We are all ignorant—only on different subjects. On this subject, however, it's you.

Yes, I have heard and read about the acid-alkaline theory, and it is a crock of cranberries. There is no scientific evidence to support it, according to my distinguished consultant, Dr. Roy Greep, who heads the Laboratory of Human Reproduction and Reproductive Biology at Harvard.

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you won't think my problem is too weird to print because I really need help.

I'm what you call "a closet queen"—a phrase I'm not very fond of, but that's what I am.

My parents live in another city, but my aunts and cousins are constantly finding "wonderful girls" for me to take out. These women bore me silly but I don't wish to appear ungrateful, nor do I want my family to become suspicious.

The real problem is that my boyfriend gets very upset when I date women and it's creating a lot of trouble between us.

Pleas don't tell me to see a shrink. I'm not sick. I just need to know what to do about this problem.—Tired Pretender.

Dear Tired: Put an end to the masquerade and do yourself, your boyfriend and the girls a favor. Women often fall for homosexuals and end up heartsick when they learn the truth. It's a dirty trick to use a girl as a cover.

Doris Clark

Her Husband and His 'Ex' Plan Mutual Holiday Trip

Dear Doris: After five years of marriage we divorced and both married again. Recently when I was out with my new husband we met my ex-husband with his new wife. It was embarrassing, but we spoke briefly.

Now it seems my new husband has become friends with my "ex" and has planned a trip for the four of us together this spring, like "one happy family".

I objected strenuously, so that my husband and I are arguing endlessly about it. I cannot face the prospect of such a trip but the two men have cooked it up and my husband thinks my objections are foolish.

Betrayed.

Dear Betrayed: Since you gave me no address, you have left me no alternative but to answer your private letter in the column.

Two objections to your husband's actions occur to me: (1) Any arrangements for any kind of holiday should be arrived at after consultation with one's mate. Marriage is a sharing. (2) Trying to build friendship after a failure of love is well nigh impossible — and your husband does not recognize this.

The trip he proposes has very little chance of joy. Feelings will be strained to the breaking point — and if they don't break it will be a wonder.

Declare that you will have no part in any such arrangement. And stand pat.

For centuries the health-hazard side of smoking has been recognized. Sustained research findings by medical teams around the world have torn away the lingering doubts about the life-years risked by smokers. Health agencies, columnists, feature writers, editors and others have joined in the most positive verdict against smoking as a health and life-robbing habit.

But the social side of smoking hasn't had the same attention. It was assumed by health, education people that since nearly everyone wants to live longer, smokers would respond to the relentless pressure of vital statistics.

So why didn't they heed the warnings? Well, at student age the threat of lung cancer is a far-off maybe-thing, and emphysema is just a word, though an ugly one when you find yourself tied to an oxygen tank by the nose.

The social side of smoking involves you at this moment as well as tomorrow; it's a here-and-now fact.

A Century of Progress in 32 Years

HOLMAN, N.W.T. (CP) — John Banksland, who left this Victoria Island settlement when he was five, figures he has catapulted through at least 100 years of progress in his 32 years.

"You have to adapt pretty damned fast," he said in an interview as he winged towards this remote central Arctic settlement where his brother and two sisters still live.

Born on the ocean ice off Victoria Island, Mr. Banksland remembers when the whole family went trapping and fishing with his father, Billy Banks.

"He died when I was five and that's when they shipped me off to residential school in Aklavik."

There was a time when Mr. Banksland, now an environmental health officer with the federal government, was ashamed of being Eskimo.

"It was when I was a kid, being brought up in the Roman Catholic Church.

"We weren't allowed to speak Inuit (the Eskimo language). We were told to speak English. They said that's what we were there for.

"So by the time I was eight, I had lost the language and the traditions altogether."

Mr. Banksland, a graduate of Toronto's Ryerson Institute of Technology, is trying to relearn the language.

"You'll find a great number of Inuit people wishing, after going through all this (education), that they could go home but not being able to do so because it's almost a different culture."

He spoke as the Twin Otter taxied down the runway, which bisects the cluster of small, prefabricated houses.

Almost everyone in the 240-member community turned out to greet the aircraft, which carried Health Minister Marc Lalonde on his first tour of northern health facilities.

As the group emerged into a biting 30 below zero, an elderly woman in a housecoat-parka, cane pumping furiously, whipped across the snow to greet Mr. Banksland.

He was whisked off by his family and Mr. Lalonde's group was taken around the settlement.

First stop was the nursing station, where nurses and members of the settlement council pleaded for a new radio.

Bill Power, a settlement councillor and one of the few non-Eskimo members of the community, said there are four or five radio-telephones at Holman but contact with the outside world is a hit-or-miss proposition.

"There have been weeks when we have been closed in," he said.

Even when a call for emergency aid gets out, "it takes the plane three hours to get here from Yellowknife—weather permitting—and in three hours a man can be dead."

But residents say there are advantages to the isolation of Holman, nestled among mountains bordering on the Beaufort Sea.

Alcohol abuse, crime and venereal disease, common problems in more accessible northern settlements, have not yet hit this peaceful community.

Mr. Lalonde was startled by a small boy who let loose with a gigantic gum bubble just as the health minister entered the elementary school.

In the schoolroom girls strummed guitars, boys hammered and sawed and the commotion was deafening.

"It's their individual activity period," principal Keith Hines shouted.

Meanwhile, Mr. Banksland's brother-in-law, Wallace Goose, was quietly teaching children in the corner to read and write Inuit.

Mr. Hines said each of the 85 students is on an individual program because they often go out on the land with their parents to trap and hunt."

"They miss quite a lot of school and then, in the spring, it's hard to get them to come in."

Outside the school, the daily activities were a curious mixture of old and new cultures. A polar-bear skin—the biggest of the season at 10 feet, seven inches long—was slung over a pole. Snowmobiles zipped past and dogs howled.

Artist Joseph Kitekudlak said the last snowhouses disappeared more than 10 years ago but dog teams are kept for polar-bear hunting because it is illegal to hunt them with snowmobiles.

A visiting RCMP officer grinned as he heard an account of how a bear was cornered by a man on a snowmobile and then bagged by a companion, who was on foot. Legal, but stretching it.

There are no facilities for sewage or water treatment. Sewage is put out with the garbage in plastic bags—tantalizing targets for children with darts because they spurt beautifully.

Holman is a wealthy community. In a good year a trapper can rake in about $50,000 for white fox pelts. The Eskimo art co-operative does a thriving trade.

Mr. Banksland boarded the plane laden with gifts of Arctic char and bannock doughnuts from family members who hadn't seen him for six months.

He said there are few welfare recipients at Holman.

"There's not one door that's locked. There's no need for an RCMP base. They just step in once in a while to see how things are going.

"Holman hasn't been spoiled yet. With development, you get a lot of good things, but you get a lot of bad things as well.

"It hasn't happened to Holman yet, thank God."

Multinational Firms Worry U.S. Economists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The authors of a U.S. study of multinational corporations say that unless Congress acts to assert greater control over the giant firms, present economic problems will worsen.

"We're going to see more and more instability, more and more inability of the government to control and manage the economy and more and more corporations whose interests and loyalties will increasingly transcend the United States," said Richard Barnet, a political scientist.

"Somewhere around the period of 1977 or 1978, because of our inability to control credit and because of our inability to control global money supplies and particularly global banking transactions, were going to get a crash," said Ronald Muller, a professor of economics at American University and co-author with Barnet of Global Reach, a study of multinational corporations.

Poor Farmers' Need For Technology Stressed

LONDON (CP) — The head of Canada's International Development Research Centre, speaking to a Commonwealth food conference, has stressed the need to put modern technology into the hands of poor farmers.

David Hopper said Saturday that governments must expand farmer training and research facilities to improve productivity.

He said that in a statement Friday to the closed conference, he also cited the need for adequate infrastructure—such as roads and storage for crops.

The 31-country conference, which ends Wednesday, has proved a valuable exchange of information and ideas between senior officials and ministers from rich and poor Commonwealth countries, Hopper said.

Queen's Cousin Weds

CHESTER (AP) — Queen Elizabeth headed the guest list Saturday when her cousin, the Earl of Lichfield, married Lady Leonora daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Westminster.

The Queen and Princess Margaret were among more than 1,500 guests from royalty, high society, and the arts to attend the wedding, considered Britain's biggest social event since Princess Anne married 16 months ago.

Lord Lichfield, a professional photographer, first met the duke's daughter seven years ago at her debutante party.

Slogging Through Snow To Start on Clubhouse

For a man who had just seen some tangible evidence that his planning committee's efforts were finally meeting with success, Philip Rickard appeared to be taking everything in stride, Saturday following a short ground-breaking ceremony for the new Bay of Quinte Country Club, Limited clubhouse.

This is not to say that Rickard was not extremely satisfied that after four years of suggestions, proposals, counter proposals, his committee had been rewarded with success.

But his was a restrained demonstration of satisfaction. Rather than allowing his emotions to send him on a heels-clicking leap into the air, Rickard seemed to be savoring the moment with little if any display of unconfined rejoicing.

It was as if the chairman of the planning committee for the new clubhouse was heaving a long overdue sigh of relief.

Armed with the customary "silver shovel", Rickard earlier strode through the ankle-deep snow to the site of the new clubhouse, followed by a group which included club executive; directors, and interested club members.

Lending their assistance as Rickard wielded the shovel, were Frank Miron of Trenton and Ernest A. Cromarty, Kingston.

Mr. Miron represented the contractor, Mirtren Contracting, Limited (formerly Miron-Wiggers Construction, Ltd.) while Mr. Cromarty was on hand as representative of the firm of Architects, E. A. Cromarty and Associates.

Club president Paul Henderson and ladies' president Barbara Geerkins also took an active part in proceedings.

Mr. Miron expects construction of the $216,000 architectural block and glass building will be completed by the end of July which means official opening of the new quarters could coincide with the annual August golf Festival, the highlight of the season for the Quinte Club.

The building will replace the present clubhouse which, according to a long-time club member, was constructed from two barns transported to the site some 55 years ago.

Lounges, a dining room, locker rooms and a kitchen will be included in the new clubhouse.

Already in evidence on the north side of Highway 2, adjacent to the first tee and 18th green, is a new pro shop built by George Stinson Construction. Club member Art Halsey is at work on the interior of the building.

While this latest development is of prime importance to the Quinte Club and the area, it is only the beginning of a long-range plan which will see tennis courts and a swimming pool added to facilities.

In order to help defray the cost of the clubhouse, 250 feet of bay front property will be sold.

Certainly, Friday's snowfall made most of us think of anything but golf. But for members of the Quinte Club who toasted the ground-breaking ceremony, nothing could cool the enthusiasm.

They are quite a group. More power to them.

SLICES — Well, it's Bramalea Blues and Markham Royals in the Metro Junior B Hockey League final.

Bramalea disposed of Wexford Warriors four games to one while Markham knocked off Sherry Bassin's Pickering Panthers by the same margin.

Belleville's Industrial Softball League is no different than many other similar organizations when it comes to encountering difficulties in generating interest in early organizational meetings.

Friday night's attempt to get things rolling for 1975 was not exactly a success. Few of the teams were represented. But loop officials will keep trying.

Word is, the Mead-Johnson team will not be back this season. But that is not confirmed.

Giving Philip Rickard (centre) a hand in ground-breaking ceremony for new Bay of Quinte Country Club clubhouse are Ernest A Cromarty (left) of Kingston, representing the architect; Frank Miron of Trenton (on the shovel with Mr Rickard) whose company, Mirtren Contracting, Ltd will construct the building; Barbara Geerkins, club women's president, and Paul Henderson Bay of Quinte Club president.

Bank of Montreal Bonspiel

Bennett Rink Leads the Way

Final games in the annual Bank of Montreal Mixed Bonspiel at Quinte Curling Club were not completed until after midnight, Saturday, but those waiting in the lounge didn't seem to mind.

After all, they were being treated to a fashion show arranged by the club's entertainment committee. So what if the models showing the latest in women's fashions bore a striking resemblance to some well-known male members of the club.

It was entertaining. And it was fun.

That's the way things are going at Quinta Club these days as curlers enjoy themselves in the lounge between draws.

"The entertainment committee is something else," agrees Hugh Sullivan, chairman of the bonspiel.

Winner of the Bank of Montreal Trophy in the 'spiel's third year, is the Doug Bennett-skipped foursome with Lorna Bennett, vice-skip; Ted Aikins, lead and Marion Aikins, second.

Officiating at post tournament trophy presentations was Bank of Montreal manager Don Cameron, who passed the silverware along to Bennett's high three-game winner.

Finishing with second high three-game honors was a rink composed of Goldie and Mary Livingston, and David and Helen Livingston. Third, were John and Donna Kennedy, and John and Jackie Hughes, and fourth, Bill Riley, Jean Sisler, and Vaughn and Emilie Storey.

Two-game winners finished in this order: Glen and Marilyn Watson, Don and Bev Deacon; Bill and Jean Meagher, Max and Marj Dayman; Doug and Ruth Schlichter, Norm and Carol Wilson; Finley and Helen McCorquodale, Jerry and Maxine Lapierre.

One-game winners were Ron and Carol Grey, Bill and Orlene Lott; Verne and Gloria Goodwin, Lou and Loyola Cunningham; Phil and Hettie Dyble, Ron and Betty Walmsley; Chas and BettyJevons, George and Jessie Doxtator.

Originally a 24-rink, three-draw 'spiel, the event has grown to 32 rinks and four draws.

Club members and their guests, many of the visitors coming from out of town, compete.

Other communities represented were Montreal, Ottawa, Renfrew, Kingston, Toronto, Brampton, Kitchener and Whitby.

Wanda's Celebration Sparks Barriage Win

Belleville Mel Barriage, appearing hesitant to put Trenton Flyers on the sidelines in their Quinte Women's Hockey League semi-final playoff in early games in the series, more than made up for any shortcoming with a well-earned 4-2 win Sunday at Dick Ellis Rink in the fifth match of the best of five set.

Confounded by Trenton goaltender Karen Nokes in earlier contests, the Barriage skaters found a way to beat the goalie, with an assist from Flyers.

If Barriage won because the Belleville girls played well ..., and they did ... the home side also got some help from their opponents. On at least two of the winners' goals, scorers were left parked unmolested on Nokes' doorstep.

Belleville's ability to hold Flyers off while killing penalties was a key to the winners' success. At least twice, Flyers had a two-man advantage but could not make it count on the scoreboard because of diligent work by Barriage penalty killing units.

Wanda Clapp chose a great way to celebrate her birthday, rapping in three of the winners' goals. She and goaltender Bonnie Hannah were the Barriage sparkplugs.

Carol Merrill was the other Belleville scorer.

Geraldine Westerveld took care of the Trenton scoring with both her club's goals. Joanne Tidmarsh earned a pair of assists.

COSSA Champs

Two AA Crowns For BCI Teams

COBOURG (Special) — Belleville Collegiate Institute (BCI) Senior and Junior basketball teams rolled to Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association AA championships here Saturday. BCI Midgets advanced to the final but were turned back.

Details of the senior and midget games were not supplied this morning.

Bill Miller's BCI Juniors, after pulling out a close 36-35 win over Cobourg East to get to the final with Bowmanville, found the title match an anti-climax.

Final score in the championship tilt was 77-38 as Mike Kirby and Mitch Hannah threw in 24 and 23 points respectively. John Geen was a 12-point man for Miller's men while Chris Adams had seven; Ron Bell, six; Gord Van Vliet and John Guthrie, two each, and Brent Walmsley, one.

Miller, admitting that his squad was guilty of several glaring offensive errors in the match with Cobourg West, saw his charges dominate the play in the final.

"Our shooting was much better in the game with Bowmanville and our defence was superb," observed the winning coach.

Kirk Kemp was the top shooter for Bowmanville with 16 points.

Kirby and Hannah were a solid one-two punch in the scoring department in the defeat of Cobourg. Each clicked for 12 points. Guthrie was good for eight, Geen had three and Bruce Milliken, one.

Pacing Cobourg East was Dwight Beer with eight points.

"As it has so often this year, our defence kept us in the game," said Miller.

The wins here brought the BCI Juniors' record to 49-5 on the season. The club has five tournament championships to go along with its COSSA and Bay of Quinte titles.

AAA Honors

Saints Repeat

OSHAWA (Special) — With Peter Vos supplying a major share of the firepower, Jim Murray's Quinte Secondary School of Belleville Senior Saints made it two Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association (COSSA) AAA championships in a row, here, Saturday.

Vos threw in 33 points in Saints twin wins, a 65-51 defeat of Oshawa McLaughlin Collegiate in the final and a 45-41 victory over Oshawa Catholic that put the Belleville squad in the championship match.

With Vos potting 16 of their points, Saints owned a 29-26 lead at the half in the final. The Belleville school opened its lead to nine points in the third quarter and never looked back.

Sparking the winners' second-half offensive were Rick Culkin and Steve Hale with 10 points each. Vos added four more for a game total of 20 while Hale finished with 15, and Culkin, 14.

Ron Crook chipped in with 10 Quinte points and hauled down several important rebounds.

Vos and Steve McCracken were the big guns in the close win over Oshawa Catholic. Peter hit for 13 points and Steve dropped in nine.

Saints will represent COSSA in the All Ontario High School AAA championships scheduled for Brock University in St. Catharines, March 25-26-27.

Nicholson Seniors Are Champions

Nicholson Catholic College Seniors, never seriously threatened on their march to the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association A basketball title here Saturday, got a sparkling offensive show from Jeff Boyle.

Boyle connected for a two-game points total of 54 as Nicks crushed Lakefield 86-21 before knocking off Fenelon Falls 88-58 in the final.

Thirty-one of Boyle's points came in the championship match. Chris Kalnay chipped in with 12; Mark Soule had 10 and Dave Holland was good for eight.

The match with Lakefield was no contest. Boyle hooped 23 points with 14 each for Dale Wilson and Soule. Holland added eight.

Nicholson junior and midget squads did not fare as well.

The junior title went to Fenelon Falls, 69-59 winner over Nicks in a game that was a close battle until the late going.

Tom Jamieson's 25 points led the winners. Dave Jamieson checked in with 19. Tops for Nicks was Steve Dolan who came through with a 25-point effort. Martin Seemungal had 13; Boyd Kalnay, 10; Ernie Rainbow, six and Paul McAlpine, four.

Excellent outside shooting by Fenelon Falls made the difference.

Nicks qualified for the final by whipping Denis O'Connor 57-28 with Seemungal putting up 18 points and Dolan, 16. Fenelon Falls got by Albert College 95-50.

In the Midget bracket, Nicks went out early, dropping a 50-28 decision to Fenelon Falls who went on to knock off Denis O'Connor for the championship 71-62.

Birt's A Win Away

TRENTON — Both teams put the emphasis on offence here Sunday night at the Community Gardens as Trenton Birt's Handy Stand moved a win away from putting Whitby-Brooklin on the sidelines in Ontario Minor Hockey Association Juvenile AA playoffs with a 10-7 victory.

The high-geared offences spread their scoring evenly over the 60 minutes, counting six goals in each of the first and third periods and five in the second.

Birt's leads the best of five set 2-0 and can wrap it up tonight in Whitby.

With so much goal production, players found little time to engage in misdemeanors and as a result, referees John Emerson and Ted Hurst assessed the clubs with only 15 minor penalties with the visitors drawing eight of them.

Dave Lewis shot three goals for the winners with Harold Roberts and Bob Thompson each adding a pair. Singles went to Bob Cameron, Brad Read and Rick Matheson.

Ed Szczur connected for a pair of Whitby-Brooklin goals. Rounding out the visitors' scoring were Jim Brown, Steve Sandford, Dan Jordan, Tom Foster and Jim DeMille.

Two Empty-net Goals

Sheppard Wraps It Up

By DENNIS PASSA
The Canadian Press

Atlanta coach Fred Creighton may decide to put two men on Greg Sheppard the next time the Flames pull their goalie in a close game with Boston Bruins.

It might cut down on Atlanta's chances of getting the tying goal, but then again, it might make the game a little more respectable.

Boston held a 3-2 advantage with a minute to go in Sunday's National Hockey League game when Creighton pulled goalie Dan Bouchard in favor of a sixth attacker.

Sheppard countered with two empty-net goals to give the Bruins a 5-2 win in the game that saw Bobby Orr break his own record for goals by a defenceman with his 38th of the season.

Orr also assisted on three other Boston goals to take a three-point lead over team-mate Phil Esposito in NHL scoring. Orr has 118 points.

In other NHL games Sunday, Montreal Canadiens extended their unbeaten streak on the road to 22 games with a 5-3 win over New York Rangers, Toronto Maple Leafs beat Washington Capitals 4-2, Buffalo Sabres defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 8-4 behind Don Luce's pair of third-period goals, Philadelphia Flyers downed Detroit Red Wings an 8-5, St. Louis Blues edged Minnesota North Stars 5-4 and California Seals stopped New York Islanders 4-2.

In games Saturday, Pittsburgh stopped Philadelphia 8-2, the Islanders dropped Vancouver Canucks 7-5, Chicago Black Hawks defeated Los Angeles 6-1, Detroit beat Kansas City Scouts 5-1, Toronto defeated Minnesota 5-3, and Buffalo and St. Louis played to a 3-3 tie.

Orrs record-breaking goal came on a power play in the third period, a 40-foot slapshot that darted past a screened Bouchard.

Pete Mahovlich scored two goals and added three assists to become the second player in Montreal club history to reach the 100-point plateau in one season.

Mahovlich raised his goal-total to 32 with his pair against the Rangers. He now has 102 points, tied with team-mate Guy Lafleur for the team scoring lead.

Montreal scored on its first three shots on goal in the second period to increase its lead to 5-0. New York came back with three goals in the final period—the last two by Steve Vickers and Bert Wilson coming within 10 seconds.

Blaine Stoughton scored two goals and assisted on a third to lead the Leafs past the Capitals.

Capitals' centre Nelson Pyatt scored on a penalty shot at 16:43 of the third period after Toronto goaltender Gord McRae threw his stick at a shot. It was the second penalty shot scored on McRae in two nights. Saturday night, Dennis Hextall of the North Stars scored on a penalty shot after he was tripped on a breakaway by defenceman Dave Dunn.

Luce picked up his eighth short-handed goal of the season to tie a league record held by Toronto's Dave Keon in the Buffalo win over Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh had tied the game at 2-2 early in the second period on the first of two Jean Pronovost goals, but the Sabres went ahead by two when Gil Perreault and Craig Ramsay scored less than two minutes apart later in the period.

Bobby Clarke, Rick MacLeish and Bill Clement were scored two goals each in Philadelphia's win over Detroit.

Foyt Breezes Home

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — A. J. Foyt, the Texan who builds and maintains his own race cars, turned the Ontario Motor Speedway into a one-man showcase uSnday, winning the $300,000 California 500 without a serious challenge.

Although giving up the lead three times for pit stops early in therace, the 40-year-old veteran driver from Houston led all but 12 of the 200 laps in his Gilmore Coyote-Foyt.

He won the $60,000 winner's purse plus more money in lap and accessory prizes.

Frequent yellow caution flags kept the over-all average speed for the 500 miles to 154.344 m.p.h., but under the green flag, Foyt drove his eight-cylinder racing machine just under 180 m.p.h. around the 2½-mile oval.

Foyt led at the end of 250 miles and was never headed during the second half in capturing his unprecedented fifth 500-mile race—three at Indianapolis and one at Pocono, Pa.

Celeri Dead At 47

WILLIAMSVILLE, N.Y. (CP) — Bob Celeri, who four times was named most valuable player in the old Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior series during a six-year career with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, died of a heart attack in this Buffalo suburb Sunday. He was 47.

Celeri quarterbacked the Dutchmen from 1954 through 1959, turning down professional offers to remain in the ORFU, where he led his team to six league championships in a row.

The Fort Bragg, Calif., native was assistant director of player personnel for Buffalo Bills of the National Football League at his death.

He joined the Bills as an assistant coach in 1968 after serving as head coach of Waterloo Lutheran University for two seasons and for Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the ORFU Junior series during the 1960s.

After playing for University of Southern California in the 1949 and 1950 Rose Bowl, he was drafted by San Francisco '49ers of the National Football League and later played for New York Yankees and Dallas before coming to the Canadian Football League with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 1953.

Celeri is survived by his widow Ruth, two sons and a daughter. Funeral services will be Tuesday in Buffalo, with burial Wednesday in Kitchener.

Hornets' Sting Comes Too Late

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cambridge Hornets dumped Whitby McDonald's 11-4 Saturday but missed the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A playoffs by one point.

Cambridge needed its win plus a lose by Orillia Terriers to take a playoff berth. But the Terriers nipped Barrie Flyers 7-6 in another game Saturday, gaining fourth place ahead of Cambridge.

In a game Sunday, Whitby rallied for goals in the dying minutes to defeat Napanee Comets 6-5. The last game of the regular season ends Tuesday with Brantford Foresters entertaining Barrie.

At Cambridge, Gary Brewer had three goals and three assists for the Hornets. John Rutherford, Don Vipond, Dennis Kraemer, Jim Springall, Bill Hway, Mike Doersam, Doug Schoenfeld and Cliff Stewart got the others.

Peter Vipond scored twice for Whitby and Carl Ahlsten and Calvin Pettit got one goal each.

Cambridge outshot Whitby 51-28.

At Orillia, Stan Cross and goals each for the Terriers. Greg Higson, Len Bray and Dave McCullagh added one each.

Phil Branston and Paul Regan each scored twice for Barrie. Steve Sly and Grant Moore added the others as Orillia outshot Barrie 51-34.

At Napanee, Peter Vipond tied the game at 5-5 at 18:25 of the third period and Ed Philpott scored the winner with three seconds remaining.

Vipond and Philpott each scored twice for the winners, with Wayne Weller and Doug Tait getting the others.

Charlie Covery, with two, John and Wayne McConnell replied for Napanee.

After the weekend action, Barrie leads the league 17 points above second-place Brantford. Whitby holds a two-point margin over fourth-place Orillia. Napanee is in the cellar, 13 points behind Cambridge.

It's a lot more fun being the after than the before.

Nordiques Lead by Eight

Canadian Teams Win

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

It was a good night for the four Canadian-based teams that saw World Hockey Association action Sunday—all were winners.

At Quebec City, the hometown Nordiques, leaders in the Canadian Division, brought their home-ice record to 24 wins and 10 losses with a 7-5 triumph over Chicago Cougars. In other action, Vancouver Blazers held on to edge Phoenix Roadrunners 4-3, Toronto Toros smashed Baltimore Blades 8-2 and Winnipeg Jets edged Minnesota Fighting Saints 6-5.

Saturday, Toronto downed Baltimore 7-4, New England Whalers edged Houston Aeros 5-4, Cleveland Crusaders topped Indianapolis Racers 6-5 and Winnipeg dropped a 6-5 decision to San Diego Mariners.

At Quebec, the Nordiques erupted for four consecutive goals after Chicago's Rosaire Paiement scored his first of two goals with 1:26 gone in the middle session. The Cougars just missed taking a 3-1 lead when they hit the post. But Quebec came back to tie the score on Rejean Houle's 30th goal of the year at 7:21, then scored twice in 81 seconds to take command of the game.

"Then we opened up," said Pat Stapleton, the Cougars player-coach. "We gave up on defensive hockey, the type of hockey we played in the first period. You can't do that against a team like Quebec.

Serge Bernier got a goal and an assist for the Nordiques to bring his points total to 100 for the year on 46 goals and 54 assists.

Michel Parizeau scored his 24th and 25th goals of the season, helping Quebec maintain its eight-point lead over second-place Toronto. The Nordiques have 82 points in 65 games, while the Toros have 74 points in 66 games.

BOBBY HULL
Goal Total 60

The Blazers scored twice in the first period and carried a 3-1 lead into the final session with Rob Walton's second goal of the game at 8:24 of the third boosting them into a three-goal lead.

But John Gray and Robbie Ftorek scored two quick goals to cut the lead to 4-3 with six minutes to go The Roadrunners buzzed around the Blazers net in the final minute and came close to tying the score.

Vaclav Nedomansky scored two goals and added a pair of assists to lead the Toros to their second win in as many nights over the Blades. Nedomansky, the former Czechoslovakian national team star, now has 38 goals in his initial professional season.

Veli-Pekka Ketola, one of Winnipeg's Finnish imports, scored the tying goal with 10 seconds remaining in the third period and then added the game winner at 3:02 of sudden-death overtime.

The two goals capped a rally which saw the Jets twice storm from behind three-goals deficits to break Minnesota's three-game winning streak. Boboy Hull notched his 60th goal of the season for Winnipeg.

Once, It Was 'Our Ice'

Canadians Strike Out At Broadmoor Arena

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP) — The Broadmoor World Arena has become a graveyard for world figure skating championships.

And where it was once a lucky spot for Canada, it now has lost its charm for Canadian skaters as well.

The 1975 world championships, which ended Saturday night, were the fifth held in this Colorado mountain resort, and for the third consecutive time, there were new champions crowned in three of the four events.

Also, the first three times the competition was held at the Broadmoor, Canadians captured gold medals. That string was interrupted in 1969. And this year the Canadians not only failed to win a gold, they left without having placed a single skater in the top three.

Dance competition wound up Saturday night with the Soviet Union winning for the sixth year in a row, but Ludmila Pakhomova and Aleksandr Gorshkov, champions every year from 1970 to 1974, were only spectators at the finals. Gorshkov is recovering from pneumonia and the couple could not defend their title.

For a time it appeared that the United States might pull off a major upset and win the dance as Colleen O'Connor and Jim Millns, the American champions, came into the free dance portion of the competition with a narrow lead over Irina Moiseeva and Andrei Minenkov of the Soviet Union.

O'Connor and Millns had been placed first in the first half of the competition by five of the nine judges—the British, Canadian, Swiss, American and Hungarian—and needed only to hold their position to win. But the Hungarian, Canadian and Swiss judges switched to the Russians. That was more than enough to give the Soviet pair the gold.

Hilary Green and Glyn Watts of Britain, the country that used to dominate the dance competition before the Russians moved in, climbed to third place in the final standings, edging Natalia Linichuk and Gennadi Karponosov.

Barbara Berezowski, 20, and David Porter, 25, the Canadian champions from the Toronto Granite Club, held their position in ninth place with an attractive free-dance program. They placed 15th in the 1974 world championships in Munich and their advance to the top 10 ensured that Canada would be permitted to send two pairs to the 1976 world championship in Sweden and the Olympics in Austria where dancing will be included for the first time.

The other Canadian couple, Susan Carscallen, 20, and Eric Gillies, 22, of the Toronto Cricket Skating and Curling Club, finished 13th of the 14 pairs in their first world championships.

The ninth-place finish for Berezowski and Porter matched the placing of Louise and Barry Soper of Vancouver in 1974. The Sopers retired from competition after that and cleared the way for Berezowski and Porter to come to the worlds for the first time as national champions.

But if the Canadian dance pairs performed about as expected, there were disappointments for other members of the team.

Canada had done well the first three times the championships were held here — Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul winning the gold medal in the pairs in 1957 and 1959 and Petra Burka winning the women's in 1965.

But in 1969 the Canadians were shut out of the golds and it happened again this year as Toller Cranston, the 25-year-old Canadian men's champion from Toronto, had to settle for fourth place after coming here as the favorite to succeed injured Jan Hoffman of East Germany.

Canada had not counted on a medal in the women's singles although Lynn Nightingale, the 18-year-old national champion from Ottawa, was hoping to move up from her sixth-place finish of 1974. Difficulties in the school figures left her in 13th place and although she skated well in the compulsory short program and the free skating she could do no better than advance to seventh.

Kim Alletson, 16, who skates with Lynn at the Minto Skating Club in Ottawa, finished 12th in her first world championship. She failed to complete her triple salchow in the free skating but otherwise performed well and was invited to put on a demonstration for the judges after the competition Saturday.

In that exhibition, she performed her short program and free skating with almost flawless perfection and left what should be a blasting impression that may help her move up in future years.

With Sandra and Val Bezic of Toronto unable to compete because of Sandra's ankle injury, the Canadian pairs here were Candy Jones of Toronto and Don Fraser of Richmond Hill, Ont., the new Canadian champions, and Kathy Hutchison and Jamie McGrigor of Cambridge, Ont.

Jones and Fraser performed creditably but could do no better than 11th while Hutchison and McGrigor were 14th and last. And in missing the first 10, Canada will be allowed to send only one pair to next year's competitions. They will be the 1975 Canadian champions and the Bezics have served notice they will be back trying to regain their title and win the trip to Europe.

The Broadmoor's reputation as a burial ground started in 1965 when only Eva Romanova and Pavel Roman, the defending dance champions from Czechoslovakia, managed to defend their title successfully. Petra Burka took the women's singles, the famed Protopopovs of the U.S.S.R. won their first pairs title and Alain Calmat of France the men's singles.

Champions continued to fall by the wayside in 1969 when the only repeaters were the British dance champions, Towler and Ford. Gay Seifert of East Germany took the women's, Tim Wood of the U.S. the men's, and Irina Rodnina and Alexsei Ulanov of the Soviet Union won the first of their four pairs titles.

Miss Rodnina, skating with a new partner, Aleksandr Zaitsev, has won the last three times, bringing her string to seven. They are the only survivors among the 1974 champions.

The new women's champ is Dianne de Leeuw of the Netherlands who dethroned East Germany's Christine Errath. The new men's champion is Sergei Volkov of the Soviet Union, winning in Hoffman's absence, and Min and Mo are the new dance winners.

$40,000 Victory For Lee Trevino

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Lee Trevino was off and running after Sunday's victory in the Citrus open golf tournament.

In fact, immediately after holding off Hale Irwin and young Ben Crenshaw, Trevino said he planned a quick little sprint.

"Right to the nearest bar," he said. "That's all the running I'm gonna do today. You've got to give yourself one day off," he said.

The $40,000 victory was Trevino's 18th official tour triumph in his career. He finished with a 12-under-par 276 total.

Irwin, the U.S. Open champion who now has finished sixth or better in four consecutive starts, was one stroke back at 277 after a closing 68. Trevino led by at least two until Irwin cut the gap with a birdie on the 17th hole.

Crenshaw was another shot back at 71-278.

Trevino started the final round with a two-shot advantage, birdied the first hole from five feet, bogeyed the third from a bunker, scrambled for a couple of holes—then hit the last 12 greens in regulation in a winning display of consistency. He birdied the 10th from 35 feet and parred the rest—just as he needed to do.

No one got closer than two shots until Irwin's magnificent wedge shot stopped only six inches from the cup for a birdie on the 17th.

Former Masters champion Charles Coody claimed fourth with a 71-279. The group at 281 included Australian Bruce Devlin, Forrest Fezler and Rik Massengale. Fezler had a closing 67, Massengale 70 and Devlin matched par 72.

Arnold Palmer never really got in the hunt. He had a closing 73 and a 289 total.

Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller did not compete.

George Knudson of Toronto won $1,540 with a 286 total. He had a 72 Sunday after earlier rounds of 71, 72, 71.

First in 25 Years

It Was Ours — Tetley

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP)—Tension gripped the 1,700 spectators at Lady Beaverbrooke Rink as Bill Tetley got ready to deliver his last rock Saturday afternoon.

"I was nervous," admitted the Northern Ontario skip. "To say anything different would be a lie.

But his draw shot to the four foot, defeating Bob Cole of St. John's, Nfld., 8-6, in the 13th and final draw of the round-robin competition that began the previous Sunday, gave Thunder Bay and Northern Ontario its first Canadian men's curling championship in 25 years.

"I was just throwing the draw—that's why I had thrown the draw on my first rock to get my draw weight," said Tetley of the last shot that had everyone without a clear view of the far house on their feet.

The win left Tetley's foursome with a 9-2 record, followed by young Tom Reed of St. Albert, Alta., and the first-ever Territories entry skipped by Don Twa of Whitehorse, at 8-3.

A loss to Cole, who had won only one game throughout the week-long event but curled well enough to win more, would have dropped Northern Ontario into a tie for first place with Alberta, which had the Saturday bye, and the Territories which had earlier romped 10-4 over Jim Ursel's rink from Montreal.

The tie would have forced a three-way playoff with one of the rinks ggaining a bye to the finals.

In other Saturday games, John Clark's New Brunswick rink from Fredericton downed Frank Beutle of Penticton, B.C., 9-4; John Fortier's Charlottetown foursome from Prince Edward Island scored a surprise 5-4 win over Rod Hunter's Manitoba rink from Winnipeg, and Saskatchewan's Harvey Mazinke and his 1973 national championship rink from Regina romped 14-2 over Nova Scotia, skipped by Dick Boyce of Dartmouth.

The final standings behind the leaders were:

Saskatchewan, 7-4; Quebec, 6-5; Ontario, represented by Alex Scott of Kingston, 6-5; New Brunswick, 6-5; Nova Scotia, 4-7; P.E.I., 4-7; Newfoundland, 1-10; B.C., 1-10.

Complicating Tetley's thoughts on the last rock was memories of his 1973 rink that lost in a playoff to Winnipeg's Don Duguid.

"We had been thinking about it all day," he admitted. "We didn't want to go into a playoff. It was ours to win on that one shot."

Cole, a veteran of several national championships, was also feeling the pressure—for an entirely different reason.

"A key match for us, too," said Cole. "We only had one win and naturally we were disappointed in our showing.

He said the fact the key game was played before a national television audience didn't help.

The Tetley rink had enlisted Tom Todd, another former Brier skip from Thunder Bay, as third, but Todd came down sick before the Northern Ontario playoffs and the rink called up young Rick Lang as a substitute.

The 21-year-old student at Lakehead University, who skipped the Northern Ontario schoolboy champions in 1971, performed like a veteran.

Blues Explode

HALIFAX (CP) — University of Toronto Blues players were whooping it up in the dressing room Sunday night after their 6-3 win over St. Mary's Huskies that put them in the Canadian intercollegiate hockey championship.

But their coach Tom Watt was standing in the hallway saying he could not believe how his team scored five goals in the last six minutes of the game, including three within 32 seconds, for the win.

"I just don't believe it. We had scored only five goals in nine periods, including the overtime, going into that last period and then we score five.

"When we were down 3-1, I felt we were in deep trouble. And then Kent Ruhnke scored our second goal to get us going. It was his first of the playoffs and he's one of our top scorers."

The Huskies won the opening game of the best-of-three semi final 4-2 Friday night and the Blues won 2-1 after more than 12 minutes of overtime Saturday night.

They now meet University of Alberta Golden Bears next weekend in Edmonton for the Canadian championship.

Pentathlon Record for Diane Jones

EDMONTON (CP) — Diane Jones of Saskatoon ignored two bruised knees Saturday to set a world indoor women's pentathlon record in the Canadian indoor track and field championships.

Miss Jones, certain to be part of Canada's 1976 Olympic team at Montreal, totalled 4,540 points in her specialty, which includes 50-metre hurdles, shot put, high jump, long jump and 200-metres.

The former record of 4,490 points was set in 1972 by Burglinde Pollack of East Germany, still holder of the outdoor record.

"I hope to go to Vienna this spring and compete against her," said Miss Jones. "She's the only one I really want to meet now. I met her once before, but I was immature then."

Diane's younger sister, Joanne, finished second in the event.

It was the first time the women's pentathlon has been held in a Canadian indoor championship.

A crowd of about 1,500 watched Ron Laird of New York Athletic Club establish a Canadian open record by covering the 3,000-metre walk distance in 12 minutes, 35.4 seconds, well below the former record of 12:48.8.

It was reported his time also bettered the United States open mark.

Ron Jackson and Barry Boyd of Edmonton established Canadian records in their specialties, the 400-metre run and the long jump.

Jackson was clocked at 48.8 and Boyd soared 25 feet 3½ inches—7.71 metres—to erase the old mark of 7.63 metres.

Julie White of Brampton, Ont., bettered her own age class record in the senior women's high jump.

Miss White, 14, beat Debbie Brill, former record holder from Vancouver, with a leap of six feet and ¾ inches. Brill's leap was 5-11¼.

Canucks Trade Meehan

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks traded centre Gerry Meehan to Atlanta Flames for 27-year-old defenceman Bob Murray just before the National Hockey League's midnight trading deadline Sunday night.

Murray is expected to be in the lineup Tuesday night when the Canucks meet Kansas City Scouts and Meehan, who scored 10 goals and picked up 16 assists in 60 games, will join the Flames in time for their game against St. Louis Blues the same night.

CP News Roundup

Kidnapped Girl Died Of Fright

KIDSGROVE, England (AP) — A 17-year-old heiress whose body was found Friday 60 feet underground in a warren of tunnels, died of shock or fright, police said Sunday.

Commander John Morrison of Scotland Yard told a news conference an autopsy showed that Lesley Whittle, kidnapped 55 days ago from her home, died of "vagal inhibition."

Lesleys body was discovered at the bottom of an access shaft leading to underground tunnels and water canals which served as a drainage system under Kidsgrove's Bathpool Park.

Lesley's body was identified by her brother, Ronald Whittle, late Saturday. The girl who inherited $200,000 from her father, owner of a West Midlands bus company, was seized Jan. 14 in Highley, Shropshire, about 60 miles south of here.

A police surgeon explained that "the vagal nerve runs from the brain to the heart and lungs and stimulation of it results in the heart slowing down. It could be that Lesley Whittle was so scared that the vagal nerve effectively stopped the heart beating."

Tellers Swindled

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Three Chicago residents were taken into custody during the weekend after being arrested in connection with a "flim-flam" operation on Ontario banks in London, St. Thomas, Woodstock, Kitchener and Toronto.

Police said bank tellers were confused when asked for $10 worth of nickels, given a $100 bill to pay for the coins, then asked to provide change for bills from another large wad waved at the start of the operation.

An argument would develop and in the resulting confusion some money would disappear. The teller would later find herself short by either $90 or $100, police said.

Mildred Bush, 34, and Stephen Portis, 29, are charged with theft, and Kim Daniels, 16, is charged with attempted theft.

Aided CIA Revolt

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Former Costa Rican president Jose Figueres says he aided the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) in an attempt to overthrow Dominican dictator Leonidas Trujillo. Trujillo ruled the Dominican Republic for 31 years before he was assassinated in 1961. Figueres said he collaborated with the CIA "when we were trying to topple Trujillo."

17 Killed

SEOUL (AP) — Seventeen women factory workers were killed Sunday when a 30-foot-high embankment collapsed and crushed an abutting wooden dormitory in this South Korean capital, police said. Twelve others were reported injured. The victims were among 80 women asleep in the building when the concrete-reinforced embankment, built on a hillside for a housing project, gave in.

Lip Service Seen

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon Saturday says the Ontario Progressive Conservative government only is paying lip service to women's rights.

He told the annual conference of the youth wing of the Ontario New Liberal Party on Saturday boew Liberal Party on Saturday that the government has not made any substantial progress towards equal rights for women.

Contract Ratified

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Members of Lodge 650, Brotherhood of Railway, Steamship and Airline Clerks, voted Sunday to accept a two-year contract with the Lakehead Terminal Elevator Association.

Tokens Limited

TORONTO (CP) — Torontonians hoping to stock up on subway, streetcar and bus tokens before a possible fare increase May 1 are out of luck.

The Toronto Transit Commission said Sunday that the 1.2 million persons who use the transit system daily will be restricted to buying only four tokens—$1 worth—at one time.

Car Sales Drop

DETROIT (AP) — A week after the auto industry's cash rebate programs ended, many United States car dealers report a sharp drop in sales, and some fear the traditional spring upturn won't arrive this year.

Auto company analysts predict that sales, already depressed for 18 months, will fall even more in the post-rebate period.

The four major U.S. automakers had offered rebates of up to $600 until Feb. 28 to spark interest in purchasing cars. The strategy boosted sales of models carrying the special discounts, but did not generate interest in other, more profitable lines as the companies had hoped.

TORONTO (CP) — Dean Kelly, a businessman from Port Perry, Ont., said Sunday that Air Canada refused to serve meals or provide transportation or accommodation for about 1,000 Toronto-bound passengers diverted to Montreal because of a snowstorm and strike.

Mr. Kelly, a passenger on a flight Friday from Miami, said flights from Vienna, Tampa, Freeport and Bermuda were diverted to Montreal.

"Hundreds of passengers were treated like cattle in Montreal," he said.

Donald Carlisle, Air Canada public affairs director for the central and southern regions, said Sunday that the airline accepts no responsibility for passengers whose flights are interrupted for reasons "beyond Air Canada's control, such as the ministry of transport workers' walkout."

Union in Trouble

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) is faced with a possible strike by its own office staff within a month.

The threat of the union-within-a-union-strike comes at a time when CUPW is preparing for contract talks on behalf of its 22,000 members

Divorce Reform

Equal Sharing Of Assets Urged

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Berger inquiry into a Northern Canada natural gas pipeline is to begin hearing Canadian Arctic Gas Pipelines Ltd.'s formal application Tuesday against the background of yet-another federal minister appearing to downgrade its importance.

Science Minister Bud Drury was the latest Ottawa politician to comment on the $7-billion project and the inquiry by Chief Justice Thomas Berger into its environmental, social and economic impacts.

Mr. Drury said over the weekend in Vancouver that Ottawa cannot afford to wait for definitive answers to questions about such matters. It is not aware of any serious problems and Judge Berger was appointed in case of some unknown factor, he said.

"The government is trying to railroad the opinion of the Canadian public," commented James Wah-Shee of the N.W.T. Indian Brotherhood. He added that he didn't think Ottawa would be successful.

Mr. Drury joins Prime Minister Trudeau, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald and Environment Minister Janne Sauve in the list of federal ministers who in news reports at least have done little to bolster the confidence of northern people that the Berger inquiry represents their first real chance to influence the direction of future Northern development and in effect their own future.

The judge informed reporters prior to the opening of his hearings March 3 that he will not be available for interviews or statements while the inquiry goes on.

But aides say the judge's real concern is that the northern people, which is what the inquiry is all about, will not lose confidence in the hearings and adopt the notion that Ottawa's mind is already made up.

Meanwhile, the press corps at the hearings has dwindled from a high of about 40 to fewer than half that number. Accounts of the hearings are distributed daily across the Territories in all of the main Indian and Eskimo languages by native reporters.

Canadian Arctic Gas Pipelines Ltd., which has applied for a right-of-way across Crown lands for its 2,600-mile pipeline, has lined up an impressive panel of witnesses to begin evidence Tuesday on engineering aspects of the pipeline.

—Deferred sharing: Upon divorce, the spouse with less property would have the right of equalization. The spouse with the larger amount of property acquired during a marriage would transfer either property or the monetary equivalent to the other.

The working paper acknowledges that switching to a system of property equality would be hampered by such things as maintenance payments to women.

It foresees a period of transition being necessary. But it suggests there be a change in thinking of women who today might get maintenance payments and tomorrow might get half the property of a marriage.

The paper says it is talking of more than just divorce or other termination of marriage.

"Marriage is an economic, emotional and cultural partnership. The family unit is the most important institution of our society . . .

Students Request Fees Be Dropped

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Students from 17 community colleges and universities decided during a weekend conference at Brock University to ask the Ontario government to abolish tuition fees, eliminate the loan portion of student grants and increase corporate taxes to pay for additional education costs.

The students at the Ontario Students' Action Conference also will ask the government to remove restrictions on capital expenditures at the post-secondary level and to increase funds for post-secondary education.

The conference was called by Brock students to discuss financial problems faced by universities and colleges in light of provincial education spending restraints.

"The government obviously finds post secondary education an easy target for budget trimming," said Sean Roberts, an executive member of the Ontario Federation of Students. "The Ontario Council on University Affairs said a minimum increase of 10.5 per cent is needed by universities this year . . . to maintain their present level of services."

"The government, however, is willing to spend only an additional 7.8 per cent on post-secondary education."

The government now is spending about $768 million on post - secondary education. James Auld, minister for colleges and universities, says this is a 16.9-per-cent increase over last year's budget.

Been listening to CJBQ on Saturday mornings 9:10 lately? If you have, you're probably hooked on Ross Hawthorne and his Garden Show.

Ross has a delightful manner and an easy, refreshing throught-provoking approach to gardening. His shows are designed to set the "planning mood" rather than to be over-loaded with the specifics of how and how much. We're happy to be sponsoring the "Ross Hawthorne Garden Show" in Belleville and are very pleased with the response we have received from customers old and new.

Incidentally, Mr. Hawthorne is a recently arrived Quinte resident. He does a similar show for a major Toronto nursery and is expanding east into the boondocks of Ontario. He'll be happy to answer any written garden questions directed to the Intelligencer (he does a weekly garden column as well) or to us.

IN MEMORIAM

EVERINGHAM — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Myrtle Agnes Everingham, who passed away March 10th, 1970.

In tears we saw you sinking.
We watched you fade away.
Our hearts were almost broken.
You fought so hard to stay.
When we saw you slipping.
So peacefully free from your pain.
We could not wish you back, mother,
To suffer that again.

—Ever loved and always remembered by Doug, Marguerite, Alverna, Chuck, Bill and Elizabeth.

BROADSTAIRS, England (CP) — Sailors' love calls are giving a sexy flavor to radio-listening in this seaside Kent town. Radio-telephone calls to wives and sweethearts from English Channel ships are picked up by some radios. Authorities say new equipment will help but it is impossible to eliminate all such "interference."

HELL'S ANGELS PAYOFF

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — Residents of this rural mountain community are tired of a band of renegade Hell's Angels motorcyclists that take over a nearby campground every Memorial Day weekend, May 30, on a beer bust. So a county supervisor has proposed that the cyclists be paid off—with $1,000 in public donations—in return for a guarantee that they congregate somewhere other than Bass Lake in The Sierra Nevada foothills.

Chopin's Life Gets Scrutiny

WARSAW (Reuter) — Letters purporting to show Polish composer Frederic Chopin as lewd and vulgar have been declared forgeries after intensive study by police criminologists.

The letters, of which only photocopies are known to exist, have caused controversy in music circles since they surfaced about 10 years ago.

If found authentic, the material in Chopin's letters would entail a complete reappraisal of the character of Poland's greatest musician.

"Chopin was very elegant, very careful about his person," said Helena Wroblewska, an expert on the composer's life. "Where he expressed himself on the subject of women he was sometimes witty and jovial but never vulgar."

The letters showed a different character — a man obsessed with sex and with the carnal aspect of relations with women.

ADDRESSED TO COUNTESS

Chopin was purported to have written the letters to Delfina Potocka, the divorced wife of a Polish count, about 1835. She was a beautiful and talented musician whom Chopin knew well.

His references to her in other letters known to be authentic were friendly, with no hint of the obsessions shown in the disputed letters.

Adam Harasowski, a Pole living in London, is said to have found some of the letters in 1936 among the papers of the late Polish composer Adam Szeligowski, who had not, however, mentioned their existence during his lifetime.

Szeligowski's widow also gave copies to British Chopinologist Arthur Hedley.

Before that, at the end of the Second World War, Paulina Czericka, in Poland, first claimed to have the letters. These have not come to light but the Chopin Institute here has a ledger found among her papers in which she copied fragments of what appeared to be the controversial letters.

The first opportunity to examine the handwriting came when some of the nine known letters appeared in a London music magazine two years ago.

The defence of their authenticity was led by Prof. Mateusz Glinski, a lawyer and musicologist of Detroit, whose arguments appeared to be confirmed by a declaration by a handwriting expert.

This caused a furore among admirers of Chopin and the full scientific apparatus of Poland's police headquarters was brought in to settle the argument.

The conclusion was that the photocopies had been assembled by cutting and pasting together words from Chopin's letters to his family and friends.

The identity of the forger or his motives was left to anyone's guess.

"Some people abroad may think we in Poland want to maintain the image of Chopin as it is known," said Mrs. Wroblewska, head of the Chopin Institute Museum.

"You can be sure that if the original letters existed, we would have a careful look at them.

"But we have no hope the originals will ever be found and only the originals can end this feud definitely."

Gets Scouting Award

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Mark George, 14, of Guelph, is one of the first hemophiliacs to earn Canada's highest scouting award. He received the Chief Scout Award at a special service at Holy Cross Lutheran Church. Mark's handicap, a chronic hereditary condition characterized by a tendency to bleed and an impaired ability for blood to clot, worked hard for the award. A Grade 9 student, Mark is on the school swimming team, plays trumpet in the school band and is a Grade 8 piano and theory student.

LONDON (Reuter)—The Daily Mirror says actor Sean Connery, famous for his screen portrayal of secret agent James Bond, has secretly married a French-Moroccan artist.

The Mirror says Connery, 44, married Micheline Roquebrune, 39, in Casablanca about four months ago.

Connery and his first wife, actress Diane Cilento, were divorced in 1973 after 10 years of marriage.

CLIFFSIDE PARK, N.J. (AP)—Joseph Dunninger, whose performances as a magician and mentalist delighted audiences for about six decades, is dead at 82.

He died at his home Sunday, a day after he had been elected to Hollywood's Magical Hall of Fame.

Dunninger retired from public appearances after a 26-week New York television series, The Amazing Dunninger, in 1967-63 to devote himself to writing about his craft.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

TUESDAY, MARCH 11

ARIES (March 21-Apr. 19) A plan you hope to implement will not be as easy as you led yourself to believe. Be prepared to treat it more seriously.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20) Information that will be passed on to you by a friend won't be fully accurate. Verify the facts through additional sources.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't bank too heavily upon an ally who has let you down before. What needs doing you can do alone. It will just take a little longer.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be very explicit with directions, or someone doing work for you will get things fouled up and it will have to be done over.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Gentle methods that you hoped to use in a business situation won't produce the desired results. Be more firm, but remain fair.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Your mate or partner will have a more practical solution to a problem today than you will. Take a back seat. Listen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The next few days meaningful strides can be made where your career is concerned. Set yourself definite goals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If your better judgment isn't in control at all times today you could impulsively get involved in something that will cost more than it's worth.

Dec. 21) A family matter will SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - be popping up. It will require your cool head and firm hand to straighten out. Don't pass the buck.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be very careful or you may say something concerning a fact a sensitive friend wants kept confidential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) A situation will arise that will require some shrewd thinking on your part; if you use your head you'll profit from it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) One who now wants to help you is confused by your methods. Clarify your aims so you both can work in harmony.

Carrots No Cure For Poor Vision

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a young girl, a high school junior of 16, and I want to join the air force to be a pilot. I am told you have to have 20-20 vision, which I do not have.

Would carrots help to improve my sight? I know this may sound way out, but could you answer this?—Miss F.W.

Not really way out, just a widespread misconception.

Carrots are a good source of vitamin A, which occurs in carrots as carotene. The substance is present in other foods (sweet potatoes and egg yolk are examples) but carrots are particularly high in it. Also, vitamin A is important in night vision, which is dependent on the proper production of what is called "visual purple" in the retina of the eye.

The manufacture of "visual purple' begins the moment a person enters a dimly-lighted room, but without sufficient vitamin A, it will not be produced in proper amounts. The result is impaired night vision.

However, the body needs only a certain amount of the vitamin to produce the quantity of pigment required, and any in excess of that received in a good diet would not help vision. Munching carrots to excess can produce a yellowish tinge in the skin. An examiner might think you were jaundiced.

A deviation from normal daylight vision is usually the result of a refractive error, a physical problem that can be corrected by eye glasses.

You have an interesting career goal for a young girl, and I wish you great success. You have time before you reach the required age for enlistment, so go to an eye doctor and find out if your eye defect is correctible with lenses.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please give me some information about acute intermittent porphyria. That is my doctor's diagnosis, but no one seems to know much about it. Also, what are the chances that it can be inherited by my children? How dangerous are the attacks, and how can one avoid them?—M.S.T.

Porphyrins are pigments that give color to various tissues, such as the red of hemoglobin and the green of bile. Porphyria, the disease, is a disturbance in the body's metabolism of these substances. The term, "acute intermittent," means that your attacks tend to occur with suddenness and at widely varying intervals.

The disorder is inherited, although persons carrying the defect in the genes need not necessarily display the symptoms of the disease.

An attack of porphyria brings abdominal pain, vomiting, weakness and nervousness.

Urinalysis is a method of diagnosis. The presence of the unmetabolized pigment can be detected in standing urine, which will turn a dark brown.

Not much really is known about it except that use of medication such as barbiturates, sulfa drugs, estrogen (as in contraceptive pills) can precipitate an attack. Alcohol, too, seems to cause attacks.

Treatment consists mainly of tranquilizers. Small doses of the drug reserpine, can be used as a preventive.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm in general good health, but recently the doctor took my blood pressure and it was 160 over 90. I have always had pressure of 130.

The doctor has my records for years back, and he said, "Don't worry about it." Do I have anything to be concerned about? I am 71.—G. M.

The pressure reading would be considered borderline but acceptable for one your age. It would be cause for concern in a younger person. You would be wise to have your doctor check it again in a month or so. Since you say you have a history of lower readings, the new level could be only temporary. But it might also signal persistent hypertension.

There is a campaign afoot these days to detect and treat high blood pressure early. This is evident at medical meetings I've attended recently, where the subject has drawn much attention.

Early hypertension gives few warning symptoms, and thus the need for close attention to a slight rise. Your doctor has information which leads him to think that your elevated pressure may be a transient thing. But you would be justified in seeking another check soon, especially since it is causing you concern.

Solar Energy Being Studied

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Engineers from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) will head a team making a design study for a solar energy project on top of a New York skyscraper.

The study will be on the feasibility and economy of using solar energy to operate a dehumidifier in an air-conditioning unit on the 56-storey Citicorp Centre, being built in Manhattan.

MIT's energy laboratory has received a $186,000 grant from the National Science Foundation for the year-long study.

The researchers will also compile operational data on applying the system to existing or proposed buildings. They said preliminary studies indicate solar heat will save five per cent in air-conditioning energy and may also supplement water-heating systems in the building.

Opening lead — K♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Jim: "How about showing some of Terence Reese's hands. There is plenty to be learned from them."

Oswald: "Most of his hands come from actual play and show declarer struggling with an optimistic contract that he can make, but usually doesn't."

Jim: "Today's hand is typical. South's jump go game is a slight overbid. He would have no play against a diamond opening, but West makes his normal lead of the king of clubs. Now South is in business, if he knows what to do."

Oswald: "At some stage of the early play he will bang down the ace and king of trumps to see if the queen drops. It doesn't but if South just makes a preparatory play he can still bring ten tricks home."

The preparatory play is to ruff one of dummys clubs at trick two. Then cash the ace and king of spades and ace and king of hearts. Next comes the play of a low heart. West can't afford to ruff and chucks a club. South ruffs a dummy, ruffs a club in his own hand and leads his last heart. Once more West can't afford to ruff and South uses dummy's last trump. Now he leads dummy's last club. If West has discarded his last club, that club in dummy is a winner; if West hasn't discarded that club, South scores his last trump.

Law of Sea Parley Opens Soon

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Canada's delegation at the fourth UN Law of the Sea Conference opening in Geneva March 17 may be taking part in a final effort to fashion an orderly global treaty for the use and protection of the oceans.

Several countries already have said they will wait no longer than the end of this year to take unilateral action to protect their fisheries by various extensions of territorial seas or economic limits.

The Canadian government, under growing pressure from fishermen and provincial politicians to declare a 200-to 400-mile limit should the Geneva conference fail, is maintaining a wait-and-see attitude.

The Soviet Union and Japan, both of whom depend on access to waters of the Canadian continental shelves for much of their protein, are among countries that would suffer should Canada adopt the 400-mile limit.

The Soviet Union, which assigns about 500 fishing vessels to the northwest Atlantic between Davis Strait off Greenland to Rhode Island in the northeastern United States, also wants unobstructed passage for its merchant and naval ships. A Soviet fisheries spokesman said recently during a visit to Halifax that his delegation will have a new proposal to make at Geneva regarding the 200-mile limit.

Japan is expected to oppose any proposals for 200-mile zones. Forty-five per cent of Japan's fish production comes from within 200 miles of other coastal states, including Canada's Pacific waters.

Conference president Hamilton S. Amerasinghe of Sri Lanka (Ceylon) said there will be no time at Geneva for long speeches, since positions had been clarified and the beginnings of agreement on some issues had shown up, including wide-spread approval in principle of 200-mile economic zones, 12-mile territorial seas and innocent passage through international straits.

He asked delegates to urge their governments to exercise restraint against unilateral action, but admitted that many nations could not be expected to have infinite patience.

Under the concept proposed by Canada, a coastal state would have total management control of all living and inanimate resources to the edge of the country's continental shelves or to a distance of 200 miles, whichever is greater. While 200 miles would enclose most of Canada's continental shelf, the zone would have to extend at least 400 miles east of Newfoundland to take in the Flemish Cap, an important fishing bank and the shelf area farthest from the coast.

Canada wants the power to set fish quotas and tell other countries fishing her continental shelves—about 16 nations—what kind of gear to use and what species to catch.

Ottawa Police Object To Methods Employed

OTTAWA (CP) — Disagreement between senior officers and lower-ranking policemen over how the city should be policed has plunged morale in the force to its lowest point in 20 years, say some police spokesmen.

Ottawa Police Association President Meryle Cameron, commenting on the resignation of 12 policemen since Jan. 1, said the resignations were an indication of the low morale which "has never been worse as far as any of the young policemen can remember."

But Police Chief Leo Seguin disagrees, saying every man who resigned "went for a personal reason. It had nothing to do with dissatisfaction with the force."

Police spokesmen say some members feel the force should be responding to Ottawa's rising crime rate with more effective deployment of men, different equipment and improved firearms training.

Chief Seguin has rejected suggestion that police cars be equipped with shotguns or automatic weapons. "I don't think it would help to reduce crime to have all sorts of high powered guns available" he sail.

One of the most common complaints, says Chief Seguin, is the feeling of some foot patrol constables that they are not effective crimefighters when walking a beat.

Bus Operators See Chaos Under New Law

TORONTO (CP) — An official of one of Ontario's largest school bus companies predicts chaos on the streets of many large cities after the provincial government's school bus regulations take effect April 1.

John Langden, vice-president of school transit for Travelways Ltd., said Sunday that "I can just see the chaos on Bayview Avenue (in Toronto) April 1 at rush hour when a school bus stops and all the traffic in both directions is forced to stop."

"The motorists are going to be furious and I wonder how many are going to know about the new law.'

The law, approved in February, says traffic in both directions must stop on all roads, streets and highways in Ontario when a properly-labelled, yellow school bus is picking up or discharging passengers.

The current law applies only to highways and roads with speed limits of more than 30 m.p.h., allows cities, towns and villages to exempt streets from the law and leaves it to the discretion of drivers whether or not to operate their Do Not Pass signs.

The new law provides no such options unless the bus is painted a color aside from chrome yellow, has the words "school bus' covered over in some way or is stopped at an intersection with signal lights.

C. J. McCombe, counsel to the provincial transportation ministry which drafted the law, said any school or municipality that does not want the bylaw to apply within the community should paint buses a color other than chrome yellow.

"We've tried to make it as simple as possible for a motorist to recognize a school bus," he said. "The prime purpose of the legislation is to protect the safety of the school children."

Harold Kivi, executive assistant to Transportation Minister John Rhodes, said traffic jams can be avoided on major streets by allowing the bus to stop only at intersections with traffic lights. The law prohibits a driver from using the four-way flashers at traffic lights.

Municipal Frugality Is Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's towns and cities will have to "budget with a very sharp pencil" this year, says Premier William Davis.

Mr. Davis, who leads his Progressive Conservative government into a new session of the legislature Tuesday, said the province's economy was his primary consideration and urged restraint from all segments of society

In an interview with The Canadian Press, the premier said his government would honor former Treasurer John White's commitment to pass on part of additional provincial revenues to municipalities but the municipalities "are faced wth some very genuine problems."

He added that the government can take some measures to stimulate the economy but restraint has to be exercised or inflation still a major problem, would be even more difficult in 1976-77.

"We are living beyond our economic means at this moment and the part that concerns me is that if there isn't a greater degree of discipline in all of this we are going to price ourselves out of the world market place."

The premier, who along with members of his cabinet took a voluntary five per cent pay cut earlier this year, said he was all in favor of people being well paid. "I want equity, I want things to move ahead, but there are limitations."

The fifth session of the 29th legislature is expected to be one of consolidation and political tidying-up for the Davis government—not as busy as the last session, in which 137 different pieces of legislation were passed. three party leaders and their followers because it is expected to be the final session before the next election, expected later this year.

Legislation to be passed includes a bill to limit election campaign expenses, a law affecting the province's teachers and probable redistribution of Ontario ridings.

Cong Grabs Cities

SAIGON (CP) — The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong over-ran three more district capitals today, threatened another one and a provincial capital and seized a refugee camp, the South Vietnamese command reported.

"Communist forces have launched a nationwide military campaign in South Vietnam," the Saigon command said. Heavy casualties were reported but no total count was available.

In Cambodia, heavy shelling of the Phnom Penh airport again curtailed the United States airlift of rice from South Vietnam Tuesday a few hours earlier than usual, and about 15 per cent less cargo was delivered.

A spokesman for the U.S. embassy in Saigon said none of the chartered U.S. planes were hit, but shells were landing "too close" to them.

Meanwhile, the fighting in South Vietnam has spread from the central highlands north to the coastal lowlands below Da Nang and south toward the Saigon area.

Hau Duc and Thien Phuoc, neighboring district towns 35 miles below Da Nang, were overrun South Vietnamese officers said.

Duc Lap in the central highlands also was lost, the command reported. Three bases were overrun south of Duc Lap, and a district town farther south, Kien Duc, was reported in danger of falling.

The command said North Vietnamese forces also captured the Buon Hoai refugee camp in the highlands. There was no word of casualties.

Ban Me Thuot, a provincial capital in the central highlands which North Vietnamese forces invaded Monday, continued to hold out with help from 1,000 reinforcements. But reports from the city of 168,000 said North Vietnamese tanks had advanced to within several hundred yards of the city hall.

Nol Names New Cabinet

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian President Lon Nol has accepted the resignation of Prime Minister Long Boret and immediately renamed him to form a new cabinet, political sources said today.

High in the Sky

Hovering like a giant bee, a huge Sikorsky Skycrane helicopter prepares to raise a construction crane tower from atop the CN (Canadian National) Tower in Toronto. Traffic, trains and air travel in the area were halted while the skycrane, brought to Toronto from California, began its first day of 30 days work on the tower, culminating when the skycrane places a 335-foot antenna needle atop the tower, making it the tallest free-standing structure in the world at just over 1,800 feet. Nol Urged To Go

WASHINGTON (AP) — A reluctant Congress is approaching decisions on additional United States military aid to Cambodia amid mounting pressure for the government of President Lon Nol to resign.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott joined other lawmakers Monday in calling for "a change in leadership" in Cambodia to facilitate negotiations for the safety of refugees in Phnom Penh, the besieged Cambodian capital.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield renewed his appeal for the return of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, exiled Cambodian chief of state and nominal leader of the Khmer Rouge insurgent forces.

The congressional debate over Cambodia aid appeared headed for a climax this week in three possible forums.

First, the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on foreign assistance deals today with President Ford's urgent request for an additional $222 million, mostly for ammunition, to enable Cambodian government forces to keep fighting until the rainy season begins around June 1.

Second, House of Representatives Democrats have called a caucus meeting Wednesday to vote on a resolution opposing the Cambodian aid request. A heavy Democratic vote against the aid would end any hope of House approval.

Third, a House foreign affairs subcommittee is to make its recommendation on more aid Wednesday after the caucus votes.

In urging a change in the Cambodian leadership, Scott said the U.S. "ought to exert as much pressure as is necessary" to obtain a transition government in Cambodia.

Ron Nessen, White House press secretary, said later the U.S. government believes Cambodians must decide for themselves whether to keep Lon Nol in office.

Number Of Idle Stable

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate was up only slightly in February, to 6.8 per cent from 6.7, but there were ups and downs by province with the situation getting worse where unemployment already was high, Statistics Canada reported today.

The rate declined in Ontario after going sharply higher the previous month.

Newfoundland, Quebec and British Columbia were worst hit in February.

For men 25 and older, the national average unemployment rate was unchanged at 5.2 per cent. Among younger men in the labor force, one in seven was out of work as the rate went to 14 per cent from 13.3.

Unemployment among women was higher: To 4.1 per cent from 3.6 for women 25 and older and to 10.1 per cent from 9.5 for younger women.

These figures are adjusted to account for seasonal factors. Actual unemployment in February was 839,000 out of a total of 9.71 million in the labor force. The February rate was 8.6 per cent, up from 8.4 in January.

The seasonally-adjusted rate of 6.7 per cent here compares with 8.2 per cent in the United States.

The February rate in Ontario was 5.6 per cent. The previous month the provincial rate hit six per cent, the highest since April, 1961.

Ontario Education Week Focuses on Quinte Area

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

This city of 34,500 people is preparing for the week of April 20 to 26 when educators from across the province will attend 1975 Education Week activities here. Each year one area is selected as the focal point of province - wide observance at this annual week.

Ontario's education minister Thomas Wells will be present at opening ceremonies at Centennial Secondary School April 20. Week - long actiivties will stress the theme of "learning a co-operative community enterprise."

The Hastings County Board of Education Monday night approved a budget of $2,400 for Education Week. The board is not the sole participant in the events. Hastings and Prince Edward Roman Catholic School Board, Loyalist College, Sir James Whitney School (OSD) and the Ontario Business College are also participating in the activities. The total budget for the week is $5,829.

The official party will meet at Centennial Secondary School early Sunday morning, April 20, and will attend a non-denominational services at Albert College.

The party will later travel to Loyalist College where a buffet lunch will be served. The group will leave Loyalist and return to the secondary school after lunch.

In the afternoon Mr. Wells will address the guests. This will be followed by an exhibit and tour of the school's facilities.

Education Week committee chairman Walter Cochrane, an elementary school principal, said Education Week should touch the entire community.

"It will be seen that libraries, churches, cultural organizations, police, health organizations, service clubs, industry, and many other groups will take part in the proceedings," said Fraser Rose, the board's representative on the committee.

The committee has asked that the Hastings county trustees take an active part in the week's activities. There is also a student committee working on the week's program.

Centennial Secondary School will be used as a central spot for displays and graphics, said Mr. Cochrane.

A theme song has been written by local students and will be used by radio stations across the province in April.

Britain To Remain In ECC

DUBLIN (A) — British Prime Minister Harold Wilson completes negotiations today with the leaders of the eight other Common Market governments and is expected to recommend that Britain remain in the European Economic Community (EEC).

Two important matters remained unsettled after the first day of a Common Market summit meeting—a reduction in Britain's contribution to the community's budget and future sales of New Zealand butter and cheese to Britain.

Experts were working on both and an agreement was expected by the end of the day.

Back-to-Work Legislation Is Possibility

While members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) planned to continue selective strikes today, Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said in Ottawa Monday that back-to-work legislation might be enacted if collective bargaining fails to settle the strikes, now in their fourth week.

Bombs Army Barracks Portuguese Air Force

LISBON (CP) — Air force planes bombed the barracks of an artillery regiment near Lisbon today and paratroops surrounded it in what the national radio called "a rising against democratic order." However, a military spokesman said the uprising had failed.

Two propellor-driven planes bombed and strafed the 1st Light Artillery Regiment near the airport, blasting holes in the red tile roofs of the barracks buildings and shattering windows.

"Several men were killed. We don't know how many," said an officer at the scene.

Sources said the fighting involved rival factions of the military, which topped Portugal's 45-year dictatorship last April 25 and has been ruling the country in preparation for elections.

The national radio, which said it was broadcasting for the 5th Division of the Lisbon military high command, called on residents to remain calm and united with the armed forces. The communique said the insurrection "can in no way succeed."

Inventories Cut

DETROIT (AP) — Price rebates and massive worker lay-offs helped United States auto makers reduce inventories by 150,000 last month, leaving them with 1.5 million unsold new cars. Based on the stepped up February selling rate, the March 1 inventory made up only a 67-day supply — slightly more than what the makers consider desirable and down from 93 days worth a month earlier.

Nickel Boost Proposed

Rhodes Will Be Asked to Sanction City Bus Fare Increase

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville Transit Commission Thursday will carry its case to provincial authorities for a fare increase by next month, to ease a 1975 operating deficit feared at close to $250,000.

Marylea Burtt says she will meet with Transportation and Communications John Rhodes to ask sanction for a five-cent increase.

This would mean adults would pay 30 cents for a bus ride, and students and senior citizens 20 cents. Children's fares would remain unchanged at 10 cents.

The BTC is also proposing replacing tickets — thus saving printing costs — by having passengers pay exact fares.

In effect, what the BTC wants is exemption from the provincial government's freeze on public transit fares. Such a move already is being contemplated by the province, which has been subsidizing urban transportation by paying 50 per cent of operating deficits of the municipal systems.

But the mounting cost of the bill forced Mr. Rhodes saying in January the fare freeze may have to be lifted.

So far, no such blanket action has been taken, said Mrs. Burtt.

But the BTC — although final figures have yet to be received from its auditor — incurred a deficit of around $172,000 in 1974, about $4,000 below what its budget predicted, she said.

Increased costs in 1975 could add another $70,000 or $75,000.

To make the point current, the commission today went into conciliation talks involving a new contract for its drivers and mechanics. Some 29 employees, represented by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad and General Workers are involved in the session which took place at the Sun Valley Motor Inn. Details of the demands and counter offers since talks started last November havt not been made known.

The five-cent increase would substantially increase revenue, agreed Mrs. Burtt, although it was difficult to make an exact, immediate estimate. Last year, BTC buses carried more than a million passengers of all age groups.

But the BTC could not keep seeking higher subsidies year after year, she said.

"So what we are looking forward to doing (at Thursday's meeting with Mr. Rhodes) is to get the OK from the Ontario government to increase our fares," said Mrs. Burtt.

The commissioners agreed to the move in February.

Toronto's Transit Commission has already proposed raising its fares — and has had to crackdown on commuters buying up tokens in anticipation of the increase.

Already, BTC passengers are engaged in the same practice, said Mrs. Burtt.

But "they're no going to gain anything," said the commission chairman.

If the fare increase is approved, passengers with tickets already purchased will have to pay the extra five cents.

"We'll honor the tickets as long as they're out. But they (the holders) are still going to have to pay the extra nickel," she warned.

Trenton Council Rejects Capital Works Budget

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — In an unprecedented move here Monday, council threw out its 1975 capital budget afte ra majority of councillors said the $1,463,935 total was both ill-considered and too high.

The budget bylaw died on a 4-2 recorded vote after Councillor Ron Price lead an assault on what he claimed would be a 38-mill increase for the average homeowner if the entire budget was approved.

Disagreement among councillors centred on two main issues: the high cost of the Sidney St. subway, and the 49-per-cent jump in the mill rate for retirement of capital debt in 1975.

As proposed two weeks ago, the budget stood at $1-million-plus, but with the inclusion of water and electrical projects it soared to close to $1.5 million.

It had been expected that councillers would slash heavily into the budget at a closed door session last week, but treasurer Brian Fagan said Monday, only about $67,000 was cut.

Both the treasurer and Mayor Bob Patrick said they could not recall when a capital budget was thrown out of council.

Mr. Price lead the first charge in calling for a tabling motion that would force council to do some "hard, soul searching."

"Council", he said, "has hardly put a dent in the 1975 capital budget."

With industry either shutting down or laying off workers, the taxpayer is already "stretched," he said. Approval of the capital budget — representing an eight mill increase — on top of an expected 20 per cent rise in the current budget, would be a hardship.

Mr. Price's tabling motion, supported by councillor Pete Aziz, was defeated when Mayor Patrick broke a 3-3 tied vote. Councillor Ed Todd voted to table the budget.

Councillors George Greer and Robert Wannamaker both supported budget approval, basing their stand on the need for a new Sidney St. subway.

Gone are the "horse and buggy days" for which the underpass is suited, said Mr. Wannamaker. It's a bottleneck in the fastest growing sector of town, He urged it be replaced now when the cost ($353,000 to Trenton) will be far lower than years from now.

Mr. Greer warned that if council backs down it will again be "penny wise and pound foolish." Previous councils, he said, refused to work on the subway — an election promise — in 1974 — and on curbs and sidewalks.

Now, the town faces "a tremendous debt" because years ago council held back on work.

On the contrary, councillor Peter DeGroot attached the subway as "not a necessity" and worried that in 1978, 37 mills would be needed to retire the capital debt if present spending trends were followed.

In such a long-range picture, it will be "absolutely impossible" for the town to bear the debt. He urged a stop be made somewhere in spending.

Mr. Todd blamed council for its previous lavish spending on the Water St. reconstruction and the buying of $25,000 and $28,000 homes for the project. No hesitation was made then in the town's use of money, he said.

Voting for the capital budget's defeat were councillors Todd, Price, DeGroot and Aziz while for approval were Greer and Wannamaker.

It is expected that the budget will now go back to committee for further consideration and cutbacks. Provincial approval will thus be held up.

Library Stands Pat

TRENTON.— No changes in executive officers of the Trenton Memorial Library board were made at the library's annual meeting this week. Re-elected for a second one-year term is chairman Grant Rathbun. As vice-chairman, Ian Darling remains and as treasurer, Anne Johnston continues to handle finances. Board secretary is Dorothy Davies, chief librarian.

MADOC — The council of the Township of Huntingdon has decided to purchase two one-way snow plows and a 1963 M.M. Tractor and Mower from the Ministry of Transportation and Communications equipment sale during their February meeting. The authorized purchase price was $1,275.25.

Trenton Leases Vacant School for Day Nursery

TRENTON — Town council unanimously agreed Monday to take on an $880-a-month lease for the now - vacant North Trenton School and use the two-storey building for the Trenton Day Nursery.

The day-care centre now is housed at Grace United Church. It cares for 17 children at a $4 per diem rate.

The new facility, expected to be available within two months after town-supported renovations and landscaping are completed, will house 45 children. It is expected the nursery will be allowed to use existing church facilities past the March 31 deadline imposed for its removal.

In accepting the five-year lease, the town assumes 20 per cent of the capital and net operating costs. Including provisions for landscaping and other work, the cost to the town, as estimated by Councillor Bob Wannamaker, is $17,000 in 1975. The sum will decrease in subsequent years.

The lease was arranged by the Hastings County social services department and the board of education.

Yarrow Joins Fire Fighters

TRENTON — Former Trenton volunteer firefighter, Douglas Yarrow of King St. has been hired as the 11th man in the town's fire department, Chief Cecil Ellis told council by letter Monday.

Mr. Yarrow completed a written and practical examinlation, and a driver's test to earn the job over three other volunteer firemen. He will start at the probationary rank at $8,084, a wage scale based on the firefighters' 1973 contract.

Sod Busters

In a hand-over-hand contest up the shovel handle, Stirling deputy-reeve Fred Brandt, left, and Stirling district arena finance committee chairman Jack Bush, see who will turn the ground for a home to be built and sold to raise money for a new arena. At right, Bert Bastedo, finance committee treasurer, and Everett Doxtator, extreme right, representative from minor hockey, look over the blueprints. Many local tradesmen have already volunteered their skills for the project.

Tax Increases Expected

Tweed council was told Monday evening that a 13.5 mill increase was coming for one area of municipal services alone, water and sewage. Here, members of council listen to councillor Robert Coveney, right front, as he reads from his yet-to-be-approved eight-page bylaw. Other members of council are, left foreground, Richard Rashotte, left rear, Elias Wright, centre, Reeve Barbara Allen, and right rear John Clements.

Tweed Councillors Table Proposed Dog Control Bylaw

TWEED — A new dog control bylaw was temporarily tabled in Tweed by council Monday evening until it can be checked by the village solicitor.

Councillor Robert Coveney said "I wouldn't want the dogcatcher going on my property. He shouldn't have the right to go on private property."

Reeve Barbara Allen said "We are asking the man to enforce the bylaw. We must give him the tools to enforce it."

Councillor John Clements said the wording was too broad.

A suggested cat control bylaw from the Ontario Humane Society was filed. Mr. Coveney quipped, "I don't think we should regulate dogs to any extent either."

In other business, councillor Coveney wanted to know what is happening to Tweed's official plan.

Reeve Allen said she is "becoming rather distressed about the delay. The Ontario Municipal Board hearing was supposed to be before the end of 1974."

Town foreman Allan Allore said he is going to put some stop signs in steel pillars and encase them in concrete since some drivers are deliberately running them down.

He said that once someone put a cardboard box over a fire hydrant and a young driver deliberately drove at the box. "It sure surprised him," Mr. Allore told council.

Volunteers Build House For New Stirling Arena

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — Stirling deputy-reeve Fred Brandt has come up with the idea of building a three bedroom brick bungalow complete with attached garage and selling it to raise money for a new Stirling district arena.

The plan has already caught fire. Many trades people have volunteered their services for free and the land on Frankford Road is available for the project.

Mr. Brandt, who is a carpenter by trade, will be in over-all charge of construction. However, when he is not on hand, he is going to have another fully-qualified person on the site for proper supervision, he said in an interview.

Mr. Brandt stresses that the house will be built to National Housing Standards.

Tradesmen from Stirling and neighboring municipalities have pledged their time to excavate, build the foundation, wire the home for electricity, and put up the framing.

"We still require unskilled, semi-skilled and skilled people, plus anybody who is interested in any way to help build this home to raise money for a new arena," the deputy-reeve said.

Mr. Brandt is hoping that major building product manufacturers will see merit in the project and donate their products. He is looking for such items as shingles, wallboard, insulation, bricks, flooring, plumbing and kitchen fixtures, wiring and lighting fixtures, a furnace and a water heater.

"I am hopeful we will have the house finished by early summer," Mr. Brandt said. "I don't want it to drag on. I would like to see a good showing in two months, since everybody goes on holidays in the summer."

"I hope somebody will give me a hand and line up other tradesmen besides the ones who have already volunteered their labour," he said.

Trainer Injured

STIRLING — The trainer for the Stirling Bird's IGA Juvenile Hockey Team was injured in an automobile accident Monday morning.

Frank Hubble, 20, was taken to Belleville General Hospital, and then to Kingston General Hospital.

The accident occurred on icy, snow-packed roads, OPP said. Mr. Hubble was westbound on County Road 38 and was two miles east of Crookston when his car left the road and struck a culvert, causing $3,000 damage to the auto.

Frankford Prepares For Skating Carnival

FRANKFORD — Just over 100 youngsters are now in the midst of rehearsals for the Frankford Figure Skating Club's fourth annual carnival here, now two weeks away.

Club chairman Douglas Smith says club members, 3 to 14 years, will participate in the carnival, planned as a demonstration of skills they have learned over the skating season.

The carnival is scheduled for Saturday March 22 at 8 p.m. at the Frankford arena. It is a two-hour show in which all of the 100 club members will appear at least twice.

Preparations for the event called Skater's World this year, have been under-way for some time, said the chairman. Between 25-30 parents are involved in organizing the carnival, and building sets for the show.

New Sewage Facilities May Raise Tweed Taxes

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

TWEED — It is expected there will be a 13.5-mill increase for sewage and water facilities alone this year, Tweed council was told Monday evening.

Councillor Robert Coveney produced an eight-page bylaw which has been drafted but not yet approved, and read it to council. He said he wanted all water users to be billed once before the high consumption period starts this summer.

Tweed is installing water meters throughout the community. Clerk Heath Jones explained outside council chambers the plan to initiate people to the idea of having to pay for water based on consumption. Those letting their hoses run all night will have expensive lawns, he noted.

"There will be no difference in the rate schedule," councillor Coveney stated. "Residences, commercial and industrial rates will be the same."

The only exception, Mr. Coveney noted, was those persons using the service outside the village. They will pay $1.40 per foot of frontage compared to 70 cents for village residents.

Mr. Coveney said based on a $2,400 assessment, a village resident would pay $160 for an 80-foot frontage, and an outsider would pay $256.

Monthly sewage charges would be equal to the amount charged for the minimum water bill for a month. Half Tweed would be billed one month. Bills would be rendered every two months, and there would be a late payment fee of 10 per cent.

Mr. Coveney said it bothered him that outsiders would have to pay double rates and double footages, but councillor John Clements said it was he who suggested this since outsiders did not have to pay the 13.5 mill increase.

Reeve Barbara Allen said "That is not out of line at all."

Muscling In

So it has been established that Communists are active in the postal unions and are trying to strengthen their influence therein, even to the point of gaining an executive hold.

That is the word from columnist John Harbron and he was quoting the public relations officer for the post office in Toronto himself. The citys central postal station, through which 55 per cent of all mail in Canada, is processed, has known revolutionaries among its employees.

Further, this is in line with Communist subversive practice of gaining control of essential services — and at its extreme, as witness events in Cambodia — engaging in mass murder; elimination of political leaders, intellectuals and anyone else who might be considered opponents of their dirty creed.

Control of the media too is another thing, and this is already well under way in sections of the media in Canada, as where some publications make use of the New York Times' left-wing oriented writers and you get a dual story sequence headed: "Hunger in Cambodia: And Children are Dying" (No argument with that heading) . . . then, the second piece: ". . . And Then There Are Kissinger's Monstrous Values."

That, from a newspaper in one of Ontario's university cities. The universities themselves, have among their faculties growing numbers of left-wing academics whose political posturing emerges consistently in The Globe and Mail for one.

The Soviet Union and China, doubtless very happy with the way their devotees abroad are doing their job of subverting an unknowing and apathetic Canadian public, are busy as ever with their own more overt diplomatic initiatives.

These stories, from The Christian Science Monitor, tell the story: "Soviets Play Influential Role in Guinea-Bissau (the former Portuguese territory in West Africa); "Moscow Woos Maldives for Indian Ocean Base;" and "Mozambique (another colony being relinquished by Portugal) and China Agree to Establish Diplomatic Ties."

And so on.

Of course, why shouldn't they? Doesn't the United States do the same? Yes, it does, but no countries are trying harder (as the contemporary ad might have it) than the Soviets and the Chinese, with long-term objectives which the West must watch with the utmost vigilance.

Grey Area

In our society the "right to know" is one of the basic freedoms. However it does not always work out that way; the public does not always get to know what it feels is its dne, and even allowing for the extent and immediacy of modern communications, there is no such person as a "know-all."

One other basic freedom in this context — and it may be regarded as a corollary of it — is the right to privacy.

Toronto columnist Scott Young illustrated it neatly the other day. He quoted the father of a young man who was with Anne Hearst and Donald Moffett when their car was searched by border officials.

"This has been a long sad story," said Robert Boomer of Grosse Pointe Farms, in a wealthy Detroit suburb," Thank you for calling, but we are not going to say anything."

The answer, short and yet polite, and perfectly within an individual's rights, could have fitted so many situations of the moment — as columnist Young points out — from that of Labor Minister John Munro to those of Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey and Captain Brian Erb.

As Young put it, given such an all-embracing answer: "A deathly hush would spread over the world, and Robert Boomer of Grsse Pointe Farms would win the Nobel Peace Prize."

President Ford says the same sort of thing, in another way, in response to media probing: "It would be inappropriate for me to comment at this time. . ."

Prime Minister Trudeau and any politician worth his salt can be equally — sometimes exasperatingly — non-commital; but there are some questions that deserve to be, and can only be answered, in this fashion. There is a grey area between the public's right to know and individual and corporate privacy and what is, say, politic. It is here that the signs read "No Trespassing."

Computer System Controls Bank Complex

High-rise Fire Risk Minimized by Ottawa Researchers

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Anyone who works in—or even visits—a multi-storey office building has probably had qualms about the possibility of a fire on the upper floors.

Those fears would be heightened in anyone who has seen one of the current disaster films, The Towering Inferno, which dramatizes the dangers of fire in a crowded, very high office building.

Relax—the dangers are not quite as fearsome as Hollywood makes them seem.

In fact, the biggest threat to life in a high-rise would be panic, according to fire-prevention experts.

Canada's National Research Council has earned a high reputation for expertise in smoke control and fire safety in multi-storey buildings.

The NRC has assisted the planners in the design of a typical new office building—Toronto's Royal Bank Plaza, just starting to rise on its way to an ultimate height of 567 feet.

At the heart of the RBP's total life-safety package is a computerized central control system.

Its job will be to co-ordinate sensors, remote panels, control points, data-system capabilities for monitoring and identifying alarm contacts, fire-alarm panels, smoke control, pull stations, heat detectors, smoke or ionization detectors and sprinkler water-flow systems.

The computer will have each type of detector under constant scrutiny, and will sound the alarm if anything goes amiss.

Trained personnel will respond immediately and take care of minor problems such as fire in a waste-basket.

If the fire were more serious the personnel would instruct the computer centre to call the city fire department. At the same time, loud-speakers would alert all occupants of the floor affected and the next two above, and direct them to use stairs to get to the first refuge area below.

Refuge areas are on every fifth floor. In them, fire doors open both ways, in fire-proof corridors independent of office spaces.

These corridors will allow occupants to leave one stairwell if smoke has penetrated it and cross over to the other stairwell.

Fresh air will be pumped in automatically by the RBP's mechanical system, to pressurize the floors above and below the affected area.

Simultaneously, smoke will be extracted through special smoke shafts linked directly to the roof.

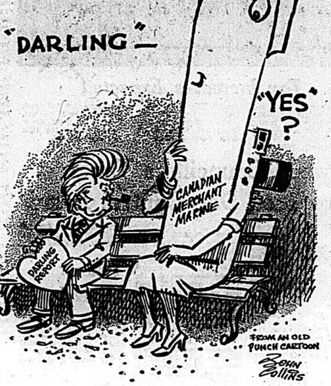
The roofs will hold 15,000 gallons of water in two tanks. That's enough to operate sprinklers throughout RBP by gravity for half an hour.

But the water in those tanks would only be needed in the unlikely event of the failure of two separate systems of pump to supply water to the sprinklers. If one of those systems were knocked out by power failure the other would go into operation using RBP's own generator—which would also keep elevators and other electrical systems working.

Not all buildings under construction are being so elaborately protected against the dangers of fire and smoke, however.

Rolf Jensen, a U.S. consultant, recently warned of a trend toward over-reliance on sprinklers and an increase in flame-spread ratings of interior finish materials, in travel distance to exits, in capacity of exits and in elimination of hoses that could be used by occupants.

Such "trade-offs" could represent an unacceptable gamble with hundreds of lives as fires in crowded business buildings throughout the world have shown.



"Just Darling, Darling"

Differing Approaches

Housing, Government, and Inflation

Peterborough Examiner

The eye levels of Ottawa and the provinces seek different levels on many issus, one of the most crucial being an attack on the housing shortage in Canada.

The provinces want an all-out frontal attack by governments, aimed with particular vigor at low-cost housing. However, the effectiveness of their action depends largely on the budget of Ottawa's Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and they are disappointed by this year's budget.

"If a vote had been taken here, it would have been 10 to one against the nederal budget," said Manitoba Urban Affairs Minister Saul Miller, when the $1.4 billion budget was announced. However, the one vote has a little more muscle behind it than the other 10."

The province's vexation focuses on two aspects of the budget. In the face of an acknowledged housing crisis in parts of the country, the CMHC's capital budget increase doesn't even equal the rate of inflation in the housing industry. Also, the provinces are angered that the amount of money earmarked for moderate-income housing has increased at the expense of funds for low-income housing.

Low-income people are defined as having a family income of $7,000 or less. Last year 24 per cent of CMHC's budget was slotted for programs to provide housing for this large group of Canadians; this year it's 22 per cent.

Provincial governments, at the federal-provincial housing conference in Ottawa earlier this year, pushed for an increase of mortgage money into the housing market, larger federal commitments for the financing of non-profit housing and co-ops, backed with rent-supplements for low-income families.

As it stands, CMHC's policy allows only one quarter of its units to be eligible for supplements, which mean low-income families can afford to rent housing in major urban centres. Ontario has agreed to raise the ceiling of its supplements, and wants CMHC to follow suit, but the federal organization has not yet decided what to do.

Federal officials have given assurances that the Assisted Home Ownership Program and limited dividend program will help low-income families find housing, but the provincial ministers are doubtful. They say AHOP will boost housing for people in the $11,000 to $16,000 income range, but will hardly alleviate matters for the under-$10,000 sector.

Other objections from provincial spokesman are that the number of housing starts planned this year by the federal government, 210,000, is too low, and that strings should not be tied to federal money offered to the provinces for housing.

The ball is now in the court of federal Housing Minister the number of housing starts Barney Danson. His response to the provincial demands for more money was "Anything is possible," and "I'm always hopeful." It's anticipated that he will approach the cabinet with supplementary spending estimates, but many officials doubt his ability to wrench more money free for housing.

In the meantime, from the point of view of the provinces, at least, the housing shortage is made worse by the federal money shortage.

There were 40-50 inches of snow in Connecticutt and western Massachusetts. It began to snow Sunday night, March 11, and by early morning Monday snow was knee high, blocking all traffic. It was two to 15 deep on Broadway by noon. It stopped snowing Tuesday and traffic was back to normal by Friday. 400 died.

Capital Punishment Advocates Find a Rallying Point in PC Member from British Columbia

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — John Reynolds, the blunt-speaking Progressive Conservative MP from Burnaby - Richmond - Delta, hardly knew what he was getting into when he told a constituency meeting Dec. 27 that some people should hang.

Mr. Reynolds, 32, has become the rallying point for those Canadians who want the government to stop commuting death sentences for killers of policemen and prison guards. At the moment, the tall, dark MP is being squeezed out of his office by the growing mound of written support.

"It's coming in from all over Canada. I have more than 100,000 signatures here already and they're pouring in."

He says he will accept petitions until March 28 when they will be tabled in the Commons, the mere formality of which will be an exercise in muscle.

The petition being circulated across the country asks the cabinet to give more consideration to the royal prorogative of commuting death sentences. Since 1968, when the present law was enacted, all 10 Canadians scheduled to hang have had their sentences commuted.

"It's cabinet right to commute these sentences, says Mr. Reynolds, "but in many cases there were no recommendations for mercy.

"They're not doing this on the grounds of mercy; it's because they are abolitionists."

Mr. Reynolds used to be an abolitionist, too. "But when I see the way society is going I think we have to do something. And someone has to stand up and say so."

Just about all MPs say they can feel a growing trend in favor of capital punishment across the country, and many say that if the issue were brought before the Commons now there is little doubt that a tougher approach would be taken, he says.

But there is unlikely to be an opportunity for such a debate until 1977 when the current five-year trial period expires on the existing law.

"What I am doing is a non-political deal," says Mr. Reynolds. "Somebody has to take these views before the Commons.

"People all over the country want something done, but no one is saying anything here because the matter isn't before the House."

Sexual Habits of Young Canadians

Kingston Whig-Standard

Ignorance about sex can be cured by education. But what can be done to avert unwanted pregnancies in a generation of teen-agers afficted not so much by ignorance as by carelessness, stupidity and the indifference of a permissive society?

A recent study on the sexual habits of Kingston teen-agers, undertaken by two Queen's University students, doesn't offer all the answers. But it certainly underscores the fact that our society has a lot of thinking to do on the subject before the soaring incidence of unwanted pregnancies in young adults (some very young) is curbed.

The study encompassed some 446 Kingston teenagers, male and female, age 13 to 19. Consider some of the statistics:

Twenty-four per cent of females age 13 to 15 said they have had sexual intercourse more than five times.

More than 63 per cent of all males and 35 per cent of all females interviewed have had sexual relations.

About 75 per cent said methods of contraception were discussed during sex education classes at school.

The knowledge at all age levels about the Pill and condoms was "relatively good".

And yet ...

At least 70 per cent of those (both sexes) who have experienced sexual intercourse did so without using a contraceptive device.

Why?

About two out of three girls said they took no precautions because the event was spontaneous.

About 83 per cent of the females age 16 to 19 took the risk of intercourse without contraception under the delusion of the "it-can't-happen-to-me" syndrome.

All of which is clear enough, although collectively the situation can pose something of a nightmare for the parental guidance councillor.

Should a child reaching puberty, for instance, be told everything there is to know about contraception? Should every 13-year-old be put on the Pill as a matter of practice? What does a parent say to a 15-year-old girl (much less one 13) who wants to go on the Pill or procure some other contraceptive device — not necessarily because she is having sexual intercourse, but because that possibility is there as clearly as is the possibility of resulting pregnancy without contraception?

Statistics provide little guidance or even insight here. The simple fact is that few parents are willing to promote contraception if they think it will encourage promiscuity. (Does the Pill become a ticket to fool around?) On the other hand, no parent wants to see a 14-year-old pregnant.

Since no concrete answers to these and other questions surrounding the sexual revolution exist, parenthood which is candid is hard to fault. Burying the issue, certainly, only invites unguided experimentation. And, of course, the old demon-and-damnation stuff is laughable in the context of an informed generation.

Short of locking a girl (or a boy) in a closet, honesty still seems the best parental policy.

Soft Water Link in Heart Attacks According to British Scientist

Universal Inquirer

CHICAGO — There is now reasonable evidence that drinking of soft water is an additional factor in causing heart attacks, says an article in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Just how soft water works in the body to add to the risk of stroke and heart attacks is not clear, but statistics comparing death rates in large geographical regions show that the rates from heart attacks and stroke are higher in soft water areas than in regions drinking hard water, or water with a substantial load of mineral salts, says Dr. Andrew G. Shaper, a British medical scientist.

It would be premature to suggest that all soft waters should be hardened, he says, although it might be reasonable to urge caution on those with hard-water supplies who wish to soften their water.

"In particular, those in hard-water areas who do soften their water supplies might regard it judicious to leave one tap still producing hard water for drinking."

Although the cause of soft water's effect on the circulatory system is not clear, Dr. Shaper suggests that two factors may be involved: (1) High blood pressure is more prevalent in soft-water areas, and (2) there is some factor that affects the heart muscle directly.

Drinking hard water will by no means assure prevention of stroke or heart attack. Soft water is added to the other traditional risk factors — high cholesterol in the blood, smoking cigarettes, obesity, lack of exercise and high blood pressure.

Japanese doctors made the first observation relating soft water to heart attacks and stroke in 1957, and other studies subsequently have added additional evidence, he says. He points to an experience in Monroe County, Florida, in which the local water supply was changed from soft rain water to hard well water. Death rates from cardio-vascular disease dropped from a range of 500 to 700 to a range of 200 to 300 only four years after the increase in the water hardness.

Dr. Shaper is a member of the scientific staff of the United Kingdom Medical Research Council's Social Medicine Unit in London. He previously was a visiting professor of medicine in Uganda.

Auden Memorial at Westminster

BBC London Letter

W. H. Auden, the major English poet who died just over a year ago at the age of 66, was honored recently by the dedication of a memorial stone in the Poets' Corner of London's Westminster Abbey.

The service was conducted by the Dean of Westminster in the East Transept of the Abbey where the area that has become known as Poet's Corner is situated. The first poet to be buried there was Geoffrey Chaucer whose remains were moved there from outside the Abbey in the 16th century.

Other famous poets were buried there in the 16th and 17th centuries and gradually the area became known as Poets' Corner with its commemorative busts and plaques. So now Auden joins the distinguished company of writers in Poets' Corner — to the left of his memorial is the one to Byron and below it, T.S. Eliot.

After the singing of the anthem, the Dean invited Britain's Poet Laureate (the Queen's appointed poet) Sir John Betjeman, to unveil the Auden memorial stone. Sir John walked very slowly to the stone where he laid a wreath of laurel leaves as the prayers of dedication were said.

Poets' Corner, brilliantly lit by arc-lights for the benefit of the photographers was noisy with the whirring and clicking of cameras.

After the dedication, one of Britain's most famous actors, Sir John Gielgud, read lines from two of Auden's best-known poems, New Year Letter and In Memory of W.B. Yeats and it was interesting to observe how even Gielgud's exquisitely modulated voice stumbled over some of the deliberately uneven rhythms of Auden's verse.

Cambridge Pair Win Acquittal

MONTREAL (CP) — A week-long jury trial has resulted in the acquittal of a Cambridge, Ont., couple charged with importing 4.4 pounds of cocaine estimated by police to have a street value of more than $100,000.

James Stankiewicz, 22, and his wife Amalia, 20, had each been charged with importing and possession of the drug for trafficking purposes following their arrest in downtown Montreal Nov. 9, 1973.

The defence claimed at their trial before Associate Chief Justice James K. Hugessen of Court of Queen's Bench that the two were ignorant of the contents of the suitcases, which they picked up at the airport as a favor for an acquaintance.

Grant Refused

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis turned down a request Monday from Paul Godfrey, Metropolitan Toronto's chairman, for another $7 million toward the $84-million operating loss of the Toronto Transit Commission (TTC).

The Leishmans each were fined $500 while the Smiths, who have made formal application in Alberta to adopt the baby, were fined $250 each.

Tunisia Gets Loan

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has agreed to provide Tunisia with a $55-million loan for construction of the Sidi-Saad dam, the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) said Monday. The 50-year, no-interest loan will be used to finance preliminary studies and management for the $90-million project, to be undertaken by Canadian engineering consultants.

TORONTO (CP) — Transit riders may pay higher fares by April 1 if a motion by Kenneth Morrish, controller from the borough of Scarborough, is approved today by Metropolitan Toronto Council.

Toronto Transit Commission (TTC) officials have said the increase likely would not begin before May 1, but Mr. Morrish said Monday he sees no reason for waiting.

Deacon Will Retire

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Deacon, deputy leader of the Ontario Liberal Party, has announced in a letter to constituents that he will not seek re-election in the next provincial election.

Mr. Deacon, member of the legislature for York Centre, cited pressures on the stock brokerage firm founded by his father—F. H. Deacon and Co. Ltd.—as the main reason for his decision.

Trees Cost $52,000

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition Association has billed the Ontario government $52,000 for the loss of 66 trees, removed to make way for the Go-Urban elevated test track, which was to be built on exhibition grounds but later cancelled. The money will be used to distribute young trees around the site.

Payment Stopped

TORONTO (CP) — E. B. Griffith, chairman of the Toronto Harbor Commission, said in a report Monday that payments on a $7,171,000 dredging job will be stopped until the commission is able to learn whether the industry has been inflating its charges.

The report to commission members said the job, awarded two years ago for work in the harbor's eastern entrance, is nearly finished and the commission had paid for almost all of it except a holdback portion of about $400,000.

Antenna Goes Up

TORONTO (CP) — The first three sections of the CN Tower's communications antenna stabbed the sky Monday toward the 1,800-foot level of what soon will be the tallest free-standing structure in the world.

After the Sikorsky Skycrane, a $4-million helicopter, raised the sections to a platform, high-rigger ironworkers started to tighten the first of 30,000 bolts required as the mast rises 330 feet.

The 88-foot orange helicopter made eight lifts Monday.

Canadian Arrested

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — A 42-year-old Canadian man was arrested Friday by Montego Bay police and charged with possession and attempting to export marijuana.

The suspect was identified as Garnet Douglas Stafford, Brampton, Ont., who had been on the island for nine days.

Critics Answered

MONTREAL (CP) — A Hydro-Quebec executive has challenged critics of the controversial $12-billion James Bay hydroelectric power project to stop complaining or find another way to serve Quebec's electrical needs.

"James Bay is a Godsend for the population of Quebec and it's about time that the critics start working on some other subject," said E. A. Lemieux, general manager of finance and accounting for Hydro-Quebec.

Police Probing Pickering Deals

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police are investigating whether any wrongdoing was involved in government acquisitions of properties in the North Pickering area, a provincial police official said Monday.

F. R. Blucher, chief inspector with the force's community services branch in Toronto, said in an interview the investigation was ordered about a week ago by John Clement, acting solicitor-general.

Mr. Clement heard complaints at a special sitting of the cabinet here last Feb. 12 from some residents of the North Pickering site that they were pressured into selling their properties at low prices.

The government had wanted the land for a residential development but since has abandoned those plans. The residents told the cabinet that many persons chose not to fight because they felt expropriation was inevitable.

Government-appointed appraisers, the residents claimed, told them land values would not increase with expropriation. But they said those who held out were given more for their land and the persons who co-operated felt they were cheated.

Monday, Insp. Blucher said the police investigation is intended to determine whether "there has been some law broken—some criminal act committed."

Insp. Blucher said police have been questioning the residents for about a week.

National Newspaper Awards Are Announced

Donald Dutton, Toronto Star photographer, is the only repeat winner in the annual Canada-wide competition for work done by employees of daily newspapers and news agencies, or for photos and cartoons published in daily newspapers.

His moving photo of the funeral of two murdered New Brunswick policemen won the spot news photography award, the same category in which he shared top place in 1973.

Other 1974 winners:

Resource Tax Draws Grit Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario Liberal, opening Senate debate on the government's massive income tax bill, criticized Ottawa's proposed resource tax provisions Monday.

Senator Salter Hayden said the federal-provincial squabble over resource revenue "means that the resource industries are being made to bear an intolerable fiscal burden."

Senator Hayden, Senate banking committee chairman, said he agreed to sponsor the bill in the upper house "because the advantages of having this bill are greater than some of the disadvantages."

He was concerned about the provision requiring resource companies to pay federal tax on their provincial royalty payments.

"At issue is what constitutes a fair share of resource revenue," Senator Hayden said. "I suppose that is a judgment that has to be made."

Senator Hayden, 78, suggested that the contentious provision either be changed or suspended until after the federal-provincial energy meeting next month.

Finance Minister John Turner has conceded that the petroleum and mining industries would be over taxed as a result of the government's proposals, Senator Hayden said. However, he said Mr. Turner felt that the over-taxation was not the fault of the federal government but rather that of the provincial governments.

Judge Thinks Beating Made Man Informer

TORONTO (CP) — Judge B. Barry Shapiro, in charge of a royal commission investigating alleged brutality at the Toronto jail, suggested Monday that guards may have made a prisoner become an informer by putting him in solitary confinement.

"I can see duress being exerted on someone even to the extent of informing on someone,' the judge said.

Testimony indicated a prisoner was segregated for about four hours last spring. The prisoner said he was beaten senseless by guards as they took him to the cell and was released after telling guards where fellow prisoners hid drugs they smuggled into the jail in their shoes.

Since the drug-smuggling incident, most prisoners are no longer allowed to wear their own shoes. If an exception is made, the shoes are examined by a fluoroscope, a machine used in some airports to examine baggage for weapons.

Denies Interference

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand denied Monday that there were delays at the political level of investigations into harbor-dredging contracts in Hamilton and the St. Lawrence River.

Appearing frustrated at the persistent questioning following his explanation, he told reporters: "You're concerned with entertainment and beating the other guy with a story. We're concerned with justice."

It was a weekend newspaper story that rekindled the fires of the dredging controversy Monday. The story said the investigation in Hamilton was delayed at least six months and possibly a year while the RCMP waited for "political permission to proceed."

Hamilton Thieves Get 50 Passports

HAMILTON (CP) — The operator of Daniel's Travel Agency said thieves who broke into the agency's office Sunday escaped with several hundred blank airline tickets and 50 passports worth a potential $250,000.

"We are dealing with hundreds of thousands of dollars," Daniel Padovani said in an interview Monday. "The more I look, the higher it goes."

Police said the thieves also ran the Canadian Pacific Airlines (CPA) tickets through the agency's validation machine, making them good for one year anywhere in Canada. CPA has blacklisted the tickets and agents have been warned to watch for them.

"They (the tickets) can even be turned in for a refund," Mr. Padovani said. "You could write in anything from $300 to $2,000 on them, making them worth a fortune."

Budget Will Deal With Housing, Energy

TORONTO (CP) — The next Ontario budget will deal with housing, energy supply, inflation and Canada's position as a trader in a more competitive world market, says Darcy McKeough, provincial minister of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs.

He told the Canadian Club Monday that Ontario needs more housing starts, a federally-instituted program to control increasing energy costs and recognition by provincial wage-earners that "rising rates of pay are clearly a contributor to the inflationary pressures."

He said he senses low morale in the Canadian business community, partially due to uncertainty about what policies will be introduced by different levels of government.

"Quite frankly, I think the business community wants to be reassured that citizens and governments in Canada of the 1970s have an understanding of the problems of business and some appreciation of the contribution business makes to society."

Speech from Throne Will Not Give Details

TORONTO (CP) — The fifth session of the 29th Ontario legislature opens today with what is expected to be a brief speech from the throne.

Sources say the government is to set down its thinking only in general terms in the traditional opening-day address, to be read by Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon. Detailed plans for what is expected to be the last session before a provincial election likely will be lacking.

Queen's Park observers forecast an election this fall or possibly as early as spring although the Progressive Conservative government by law does not have to go to the polls until 1976.

Premier William Davis, who says he has not yet made up his mind on when to call the next election, nevertheless has said the government will come out fighting against its critics, and has voiced repeatedly his general attack on what he sees as the prime concern—the state of the province's economy.

$8,000 in Hashish Missing from Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa police estimated Monday that a cache of marijuana and hashish missing from provincial court vaults here is worth about $8,000.

About 1½ pounds of marijuana and hashish, evidence in a number of court cases, has been missing from a safe in the provincial court offices for at least a month, police say.

Police said Friday that an investigation began Feb. 14 into the missing evidence and has been continuing with the co-operation of provincial court officials.

Richardson Issues Denial

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson was called upon Monday to deny another alleged slight—this time against the French language.

The minister emphatically denied an alleged slur against native people last week. Both allegations were contained in an article in Macleans magazine.

The English-speaking minister denied Monday in the Commons an allegation in the article that he opposes the federal government's bilingualism policy.

The situation is this. Husband is transferred to a new job a great distance away. The family decided to sell their home. If it is not sold prior to the husband's departure, should the wife and children remain behind or accompany him to the new location and try to sell an empty house?

Speaking as a REALTOR — not a marriage counselor — I must advice that the choice will be a matter of finance versus emotions. Why?

Experience shows that an empty house is tougher to sell and brings less money. A house devoid of furniture loses its charm and appearance of livability. Scars and blemishes show up. Empty rooms look smaller without furniture.

On the average, an empty house will bring about 5 to 6 percent less. In some cases, discounts of up to 10 percent are not unusual. Also, selling time is longer for an empty house despite the paradox that the buyer can move in almost immediately.

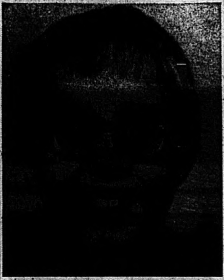
Today's Child

By Helen Allen



TOM

Ask Tom about his greatest interest and the answer will be hockey. There's baseball too but just as a pleasant way to occupy the warm weather till hockey time comes again. Tom plays hockey and his favorite television programs are hockey. He likes the games at the local rink and the pro games and he knows all the Big Teams' names and players numbers.

Tom is not a great reader but loves to read about hockey.

It goes almost without saying that he 'd like to have a career in hockey, preferably as a goalkeeper.

A tall, sturdily build boy of 12, Tom has blonde hair, blue eyes and fair skin. His glasses are for near sightedness. He is having some orthodontic work done. The Children's Aid Society will continue to pay for this if the cost is in the way of Tom's adoption.

French Canadian in descent, Tom is English speaking. He is in opportunity class, working at the Grade four level. He is not academically inclined but is co-operative and conscientious, always doing his best at whatever he undertakes.

With a happy, pleasant personality, he gets along well with people of all ages. He's polite and friendly with adults, friendly and generous with children. He loves animals.

Tom needs parents who will appreciate his lovable, sensitive nature and not worry about scholastic performance.

To inquire about adopting Tom, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2.

Ann Landers

Yo-yo Twirling Record Not Such a Crazy Thing

Dear Ann Landers: Is the world having a mass nervous breakdown or am I losing my buttons? I read in the papers where an 11-year-old kid in Lexington, Ky., just broke the world's record for yo-yo twirling. It seems he had read somewhere that some kid twirled a yo-yo for 52 hours and this boy was sure he could beat him. So, he ate a hearty meal and proceeded to do this crazy thing. His father and mother clocked him and invited a couple of neighbors in as witnesses to sign an affidavit.

Fifty-three hours later the kid quit. He had broken the world's record. His mother couldn't get him out of bed the next morning to go to school. He was "too tired." So she let him sleep.

What do you think about stuff like this? In our day we didn't have time for such nonsense. Remember?—Class Of '40

Dear Class: Yeah, I remember. In our day the kids were too busy for such "nonsense." They were swallowing goldfish and sitting on top of flagpoles.

If you could read my mail for one day you'd discover that many 11-year-olds are into worse things than yo-yo twirling. Don't knock it.

Dear Ann Landers: A 24-year-old mother who lives next door has asked me to advise her and I don't feel qualified. Will you help me?

Our children are the same age—four. Her son will not eat. He looks healthy but she's sure he's starving to death. She has punished him, taken away his toys, yelled her head off—nothing works. I ignore my child's eating habits and have no problem whatever. On days when he doesn't eat very much I just take the food away. What should I tell this nervous wreck next door?—Easy Going In Lubbock

Dear Easy: Part of the answer is in your letter. The other part is in your signature. Your neighbor is "yelling her head off" while you are "Easy Going in Lubbock."

If that young mother would ignore her son's refusal to eat, he would soon develop an appetite. Not eating is a great way to get attention.

Dear Ann Landers: I was fascinated by the letters from women who produced only girls and the counterattack by those who gave birth to only boys.

Since my wife was one of three girls and each of her sisters had three girls, one of our daughters, after having produced two girls, became concerned about her chances for having a son. I did some extensive research and here are the facts as printed in The Statistician, a journal of the American Statistical Association.

Discounting the chance of multiple births and the slight preponderance of male over female births, the study showed that the chances of any particular birth being female were 50-50—irrespective of the sexes of preceding children.

The odds are the same as flipping a coin. If the tosses are made correctly and heads comes up 50 times in a row (most unlikely, but possible), the chances for heads on the 51st toss are only 50 per cent.

This satisfied my daughter and I now have two fine granddaughters and two wonderful grandsons. May others be so fortunate.—Mr. N. of Vienna, Va.

Dear Mr. N: From your mouth to God's ears. Thanks

Doris Clark

Moderate Habits Keep Weight Off

Daily physical activity is a very important factor in your plan to lose weight. Exercise will aid blood circulation. Work it into your daily routine; if you work, walk up and down several flights of stairs when you arrive or leave your office building; or take a half-mile walk each day.

Here are some general tips on losing weight:

— Don't fry food — broil it or bake it

— Remove fat from meat

— Drain oil from canned fish

— Remove skin from poultry

— Drink skim [illegible]

— Don't skip meals

— Eat smaller portions of all foods

To maintain your correct weight, once you have reached it, be moderate in your eating habits. Moderation is the secret of many weight reductions followed by maintenance of the correct weight.

And remember, don't just depend on our advice to help you with weight loss. See your doctor; he is the best person to help you.

— from Consumer Contact, Department of Consumer Affairs for Canada.

Dear Doris: Some nights there is not one program on TV that I care to watch and I am thankful that I can still enjoy reading, although I went to school more than 50 years ago.

The readers we used always had a moral in the stories and poems. So we learned from our reading to be content, to be obedient, and we learned love of country.

Our school books came from Ontario and the United States. Grade five Canadian history had an American slant and our teacher had a background of United Empire Loyalists. So we had it from another side!

I read how some students reach university who can neither read nor do mathematics. At 75 I can still figure out my income tax, and do my own return.

Many Changes.

Dear Many: Well, good for you! A child who does not enjoy reading misses a very great deal; and I would not surrender the filing system in the back of my memory which contains so many delightful poems.

As for the teacher whose history book had an American slant and whose heart was loyal to the British Empire — she must have been one mixed-up kid! It ought to be a world-minded, well-informed and understanding person who attempts to interpret history for young minds.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Crochet - It's an Art Form

"I went to all the art shows with Craig and felt there must be some way I could express myself, too," says Diana.

"I thought and thought and realized that crocheting and knitting were my strong points, so — —"

The end result, wallhangings by Diana, is now on display at Corby Library along side Craig's paintings.

Diana — she only uses one name — says that her inspiration came one day while she was relaxing.

"I'd crocheted all the usual things up to that point — baby clothes to pot holders."

She began experimenting with large one-dimensional crocheted shapes then searching, along with Graig, for a way to hang them.

Eventually they settled on notched dowling which she stains. She crochets the hanging directly onto the frame.

The final touch — brightly dyed unspun wool, called tops, which she weaves through open spaces to add dimension and texture.

The hangings have been successful — "I sold one the first time I displayed them" — and she's been kept busy with orders for more.

"I like it because it's something you can pick up and work on and you're still being creative.

"It's second nature to me."

Hazel Clare and her plane.

She Teaches Them to Fly

No one at the Bancroft Flying Club asks "Why not?"

There's no question in their mind that their female flying instructor Hazel Clare is a top-notch teacher.

Ms. Clare is currently teaching 19 men and women who hope to obtain their private pilot licenses. A pilot herself since 1955, she is employed by the Orillia Flying Services to train prospective pilots.

Prior to her arrival in Bancroft, Ms. Clare was a private pilot for a construction company in Timmins. She flew the executive plane which took company employees and clients to construction sites.

Enthusiastic about her new teaching job, Ms. Clare is also instructing seven fledgling pilots in Harcourt, west of Bancroft.

At the completion of their course, student pilots will take a flight test with Ms. Clare and an inspector from Orillia. They will also write an examination set by the Ministry of Transport.

Bancroft has a large number of private pilots, a fact that Ms. Clare attributes to the excellent flying club facilities. Bancroft's central location in Hastings county, and a positive attitude in the community towards flying.

Interest in aviation is not limited to Bancroft, however, Ms. Clare says that a ground school is operated at Loyalist College by the Orillia Flying Services organization, and in Barry's Bay an airfield is being prepared for a future flying club.

It's Easy to Learn Crochet

Can you learn to crochet?

Aureen Richardson, who teaches an evening crocheting course for Loyalist College, says she can teach a novice to crochet within two weeks.

All it takes, after all, is a hook — they cost less than a dollar — and some yarn. You can crochet with anything from fine mercerized cotton—its cost has doubled in the last few months sadly — to great fat rug or craft yarn. Yarn labels often carry gauge information to tell you how many stitches to the inch. You can even crochet a rug with strips of rag!

From the fine doilies your grandmother crocheted to rugs to ponchos, what you crochet is limited by your imagination, only.

Work on a large afghan at home in the evening or carry a hook and a little yarn in your purse to make up individual square or round units — call them Granny squares! — to piece together later for garments or home decorating accessories.

There are only three basic movements to crochet from which you can construct dozens upon dozens of patterns either according to written instructions — magazines, books, are sources, as are yarn companies — or your own fancy.

It's faster than knitting but uses more yarn; beginners should be cautioned to buy all yarn for one project at one time because dye lots vary slightly. (Yarn labels, as well as listing content, tell the dye lot number so that you can match skeins.)

Before beginning any project, you should work up a four-inch square to practice tension and check your personal gauge; if you have fewer stitches to the inch than your pattern specifies, use a hook one size smaller; more stitches, use a bigger hook.

Before you begin, memorize the two dozen abbreviations necessary to read your patterns — and begin crocheting!

Men Make Better Grades

OTTAWA (CP) — Males are better at economics than females. That is the finding of a recent Queen's University study reported in the latest issue of the Canadian Journal of Economics.

Dr. R. W. Crowley and Dr. David Wilton, two economists and former professors at Queen's, attempted to analyse what students learned in an introductory economics course. Parallel studies in the United States and Britain substantiate their results.

Dr. Crowley suggested in an interview that the poorer showing of female students may be due to environmental factors rather than natural ability.

He said lower expectations for girls on the part of their male professors may result in lower achievement.

Other girls might be enrolled in only one economics course to broaden their general knowledge or to make up a credit. Because they were not pursuing careers that require extensive knowledge of economics, these girls might be less motivated to earn high marks.

Dr. Crowley is director of the urban economy and environment group at the ministry of urban affairs, and Dr. Wilton works for Statistics Canada.

Or Just for Fun

"We've had a tremendous response."

Aureen Richardson, a math and English teacher at Quinte Secondary School, has found students in her first crocheting class more than slightly enthusiastic.

"We have 19 enrolled and they're a tremendous group that come and share things and ideas." The group meets weekly at Belleville Collegiate Institute.

It's the first time Mrs. Richardson has taught crocheting professionally, but she's been at the craft since she was eight.

In the class, beginners and experienced crocheters work and produce bookmarks, edging for pillowcases, afghans, sweaters — and even learn hairpin lace and tatting.

Everyone gets a new pattern every week.

"It's been tremendously rewarding for me," Mrs. Richardson says.

CHRIST and MOSES

Many people in so-called Christian nations seem to have the belief that Christ's teachings are contrary to those of Moses; that the teachings of Moses were cruel and unyielding, an eye for an eye and a life for a life, while the teachings of Christ are love and compassion, which is generally misconstrued to mean soft sentimentality.

The laws Moses gave to the people of Israel he said he got from God, and the people acknowledged that they were from God: "And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the Lord commanded him. And all the people answered together, and said, 'All that the Lord hath spoken we will do' " (Ex. 19: 7, 8). At that time Israel was one nation of twelve tribes. Some time later when the people became dissatisfied with being governed by judges, and wanted a king, God gave them a king and fixed the line of succession in the tribe of Judah (1st Sam. 8: 4-7; 2nd Sam. 3:9, 10; Jer. 33:21). Later, because of heavy taxation by the king on the ten tribes, represented by Ephriam (1st Kings 12: 13, 14), the ten separated from Judah and formed a nation of their own with their own king, and God said the division was of Him (1st Kings 12: 20, 24). The Anglo-Saxon-Celtic nations are the descendants of the ten tribes. At the time of Christ's return the two sections are to come together as one nation again, with Christ as King (Ezek. 37: 15-28).

In Exodus, Leviticus and Deuteronomy we have recorded for us God's many commands to His people through Moses. These commands were given to develop the people, not only individually but as a nation, and to prepare them as a nation to receive the promised Messiah when He should come. They were also to protect them as a nation from falling into the corruption of the nations around them.

The history of both the ten tribes and of the two tribes is one of forsaking God's law, with brief interludes from time to time when they partially repented and partially returned to it. And this course they are still following today. God's law is no longer recognized in our Anglo-Saxon-Celtic lands and in Judah and hence we are experiencing nothing but corruption, trouble, war, poverty, crime, ill-health and sorrow.

God, then, was the Author of the law given through Moses.

Jesus said: "As my Father hath taught me, I speak these things" (John 8:28). "For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak" (John 12: 49).

God, then, was the Author of the teachings of Christ.

If the teachings of Christ contradict the teachings of Moses then God lied to one or the other, but the Scriptures say that God cannot lie: "In hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie, promised before the world began" (Titus 1:2). "God is not a man, that he should lie; neither the son of man, that he should repent; hath he said, and shall he not do it? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?" (Numbers 23:19).

Nor is He a God of confusion (1st Cor. 14:33).

The ordinances of the law given through Moses, that is, the sacrificial rites and ceremonies, Paul said were abolished by Christ, for the simple reason that Christ by laying down His life daily in the service of God provided a new and better sacrifice — Himself — a new and better way. "Having abolished in his flesh the ermity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances" (Eph. 2:15). "Then verily the first covenant (the law) had also ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary . . . which was a figure for the time then present, in which were offered both gifts of sacrifices, that could not make him that did the service perfect, as pertaining to the conscience . . . but Christ being come an high priest of good things to come . . . who through the eternal spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God" (Hebrews 9: 1, 9, 11, 14).

Christ did not abolish the law as it pertained to the principles of righteousness and justice, nor the moral laws, nor the laws pertaining to the health and welfare of the people. If it was wrong to lie in Moses' day it was wrong to lie in Christ's day and it is wrong in our day. If it was wrong to steal in Moses' day it was wrong to steal in Christ's day, and both Moses and Christ taught this.

Christ said, "Do not kill" (Luke 18:20). But in saying this He said He was quoting Moses who had given it as a commandment to Israel as part of God's law to them (Exodus 20:13). This is a commandment to the individual and does not in any sense have application to the nation as a nation and those therein in positions of responsibility in the discharge of the duties governing that nation.

Christ said: "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead" (Luke 16:31). "For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me: for he wrote of me" (John 5:46). And the Apostle Paul, without question a faithful follower of Christ said: "Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come" (Acts 26:22).

Christ bore testimony to the life and experiences of Noah (Matt. 24:37), to Jonah (Matt. 12:39), to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob (Luke 13:28), to Solomon (Matt. 6:29), to Elijah (Matt. 11:14) and others, as did also the apostles in their epistles.

Clearly both Old and New Testaments comprise one book, the word of one Author — God — and His revelation of Himself to man. "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent" (John 17:3).

The Energy, Mines and Resources tower, 580 Booth St., Ottawa at 10 p.m. The cleaning staff has finished for the night and it's easy to tell who is working late — their floor is still lit up. The building was designed 10 years ago, during the years of energy affluence, and has only one independent light switch per floor. But soon even that will change; quarter-floor lighting is being installed and unnecessary lamps removed. The heating has also been turned down for a further saving.

From 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. and on weekends, the lights are turned off in this Government building.

That saves about $900 a week.

Why should Canada start saving energy in 1975? Because we've been such spendthrifts that if we don't change our ways, some resources will soon be in critically short supply, others will cost a fortune.

We can all pitch in. Here's how the Federal Government is taking the lead, with ideas that will work for all of us:

AT THE RATE we're gobbling up energy, we'll need twice as much in 12 years, about four times as much by the year 2000.

The simple truth is that we have been incredibly wasteful. Only the United States uses more energy per person than we do.

Our goal must be to cut expected 1985 energy consumption by at least 20% — and there's plenty of evidence to show that it can be done with little pain and many benefits.

Here's how the Federal Government is putting its own house in order:

1.

Big cars are on the way out.

The mighty automobile guzzles 15% of Canada's annual energy bill. The ones with 8 cylinders and weighing over 3,000 pounds are the worst offenders.

The new policy of the Treasury Board is to buy and lease smaller, compact models. And the speed limit for all Government vehicles is now a gas-saving 55 mph.

Workers who leave their own cars at home and switch to car pools, can save up to $200 a year. To encourage the idea, Government parking spaces will soon be allocated on the basis of number of regular riders per car.

All equipment is now bought with an eye to operating costs — not just the price tag.

When New York City employees went shopping for window air conditioners they got a surprise. The one with the highest price turned out to be the best value — when annual operating costs (mostly energy) were added in.

The Government is now using this lifetime cost measurement when choosing cars, trucks, utility vehicles, appliances and office equipment. Hopefully industry and the public will do the same.

Perhaps before too long Canadian manufacturers will tell us as much about a product's energy needs and operating costs as they do about styling.

3.

Paper is working harder than ever.

The pulp and paper industry is the largest single consumer of industrial energy in Canada.

To save paper, the Government is moving to more double-sided printing, more offset work and less photocopying, and tighter controls on distribution. They're also going to recycle more waste paper and purchase recycled paper.

If we all move to recycled paper we'll conserve both energy and forest resources.

Government buildings across Canada are on an energy efficiency drive.

Cut-backs on lighting, heating and cooling can save a lot. The Department of Public Works has recommended a maximum heating temperature of 70 degrees during the day, 65 at night. Lighting in unoccupied space and exterior lighting is being reduced. Add to that lower lighting levels, less ventilation, less cooling in the summer and the savings will be about 18%.

Employees are urged to turn off lights and equipment not in use, watch for dripping hot water taps, open and close drapes to make maximum use of natural light and sunshine. Small points, perhaps, but the total savings can be big.

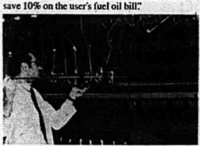
More money and men for research.

We have to invest in ideas. That's why research such as the Blue Flame Project is so important. A division of Energy, Mines and Resources Canada is now testing an ingenious Air Swirl Generator which "costs about $1.50 and could save 10% on the user's fuel oil bill."



The same people are working on an Automotive Pollution Elimination Device to deliver more miles-per-gallon and cut pollution.

And over at the National Research Council, they're working on Canada's woefully out-of-date insulation standards.

These are just a few of the energy conservation research projects and many more are planned.

A new computer is "tuning" buildings.

The fancy title is Energy Systems Analysis (ESA); proof of what it can do is in the John Carling Building near Ottawa's Experimental Farm.

This 12-storey building was put through ESA which simulated factors affecting energy consumption: lights, work schedule, humidity, window glass, wall structure, climate, ventilation, heating and cooling systems. From the computer's answers, engineers were able to "balance" the heating and cooling systems. The result was an energy saving of 20 cents a square foot — or $100,000 a year.

As you'd hope, the program is quickly being expanded to —

(1) improve energy efficiency in all federal buildings

(2) set design guidelines for governments and industry

(3) serve as a resource for all Canadians involved in design work: provincial governments, architects, engineers, consultants.

Those who are close to the computer predict a potential energy saving of $60 million a year from Government buildings alone, and $300 million a year from all commercial buildings in Canada. A hefty return!

Make a commitment to conservation.

The goal is to commit an ever-widening circle of Canadians to conservation thinking. The pebble in the pond principle. That's why a series of seminars was held last fall to acquaint Canadian architects, engineers and designers with the problems. That's why the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs has started the CANTAG program to help us understand the energy requirements of products before we buy.

We can all pitch in. A commitment to conservation — in our homes, cars, offices, factories — will pay immediate dividends. By reducing the rate at which we consume our resources, we'll also improve our environment and way of life.

Hastings LIP Project Suspended Due to Internal Problems

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

One of Hastings's biggest Local Initiatives Program (LIP) projects has been temporarily suspended with little hope of revivial for its workers.

Information officer Corinne Nemy, a Canada Manpower Centre (CMC) spokesman in Toronto, confirmed Monday the $20,328 Low-Income People project in Belleville has been suspended at the sponsor's request.

Project sponsor Terry Miskelly, a Belleville resident, was unavailable for comment but today, volunteer Bureau director Ruth Burrows said Ms. Miskelly would continue the program for the bureau on a voluntary basis as she did before the LIP grant was approved.

The project, designed to aide poor families in the Belleville area, employed six workers.

The project established a general counselling service for low income families in the areas of housing, clothing, and furniture. Several sharing programs have been established.

The CMC spokesman said the regional office is now conducting a "routine audit" on the project and the results will not be known for sometime.

The spokesman denied poor management was responsible for the folding of the project, which began in early December and was expected to conclude mid-May.

The spokesman also said internal conflicts will probably prevent the project from being revived. She would not elaborate.

One project worker, Valerie Johnston, from Trenton, said the project was achieving some success and that other staff members concurred with her evaluation.

Project co-ordinator Barbara Heller, from the CMC Job Creation Branch in Toronto, refused to discuss the suspension and referred all questions to the information branch.

Miss Johnston, 23, said "there were several internal hassles" since the project began. She said she could not elaborate at this time.

The CMC spokesman said the project sponsor was unable to carry on with the project.

"However, the project was a good idea and from all reports it was achieving some success," explained the spokesman.

Hastings county has 10 LIP project on the go. The federal government is spending more than $14 million on similar projects in Ontario.

Ellis Suspects Arson In Gilbert Hotel Blaze

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Arson is suspected in a five-alarm fire that gutted the century-old Gilbert Hotel in downtown Trenton early this morning.

Trenton Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said today the hotel has already had three fires that were confirmed as arson and "I can safely say this is the fourth one".

The chief said he plans to call in the Ontario Fire Marshal's office to confirm his suspicions.

Firemen from six area fire halls fought the blaze in 13-degree temperatures for four hours before bringing it under control at 5 a.m. this morning.

An estimated 25 lodgers escaped from the 43-room hotel at the corner of Dundas St. West and Murphy St., shortly after 1 a.m.

No injuries were reported by fire officials.

Only one man was taken to hospital for smoke inhalation after he repeatedly entered the smoke-filled building.

A Trenton Memorial Hospital spokesman said this morning John Noakes, the superintendant of the hotel, was treated for smoke inhalation and released. He was later seen back at the fire site, carrying coffee to ice-caked firemen.

Police took 15 minutes to evacuate the adjacent Quinte Hotel on Murphy St., and 14 apartments over stores on Dundas St. West as far east as Front St.

Chief Ellis said the blaze started on the first floor in the rear of the three-storey hotel near an old kitchen. It swept up a stairwell and across to the roof.

Firemen were able to confine the blaze to the rear half of the building.

Fire officials made no damage estimate. Losses due to smoke and water damage are extensive.

Part-owner of the hotel, Earl Steinburg, estimated damage at least at $340,000. He said he bought the hotel with his brother in 1968.

He did not know whether or not the building was insured, since the hotel property is in the process of being sold.

The Quinte Hotel, immediately to the rear of the Gilbert, also suffered smoke and water damage as firemen fought flames from a roof of the hotel.

Three aerial ladder trucks battled the blaze, two from Belleville, and the third from the town fire department.

Trucks were also called in from Frankford, Sidney township and CFB Trenton.

The fire was first reported to the Trenton fire hall by the graveyard shift dispatcher for Graham's Taxi on Murphy St., diagonally opposite the hotel.

Chief Ellis also had a brush with the blaze before it broke out into a full-blown fire.

Chief Ellis said that late Monday he left the town hall, directly opposite the hotel, shortly after 1 p.m. At the time he smelt smoke but was unable to find its source and went home.

He had just completed presenting his annual fire department report to town council. Two hours later the fire call came into the fire hall.

During the fire, hoses snaked across Murphy, Elgin and Dundas Sts. and deep puddles of water and glare ice on the pavement made walking difficult.

Coffee was supplied to hotel residents and firemen by Ted Kanellos, owner of the Jet Restaurant, opposite the burning hotel, and the Salvation Army Citadel on Elgin St., around the corner.

Several nearby buildings were without electricity for most of the night after Ontario Hydro crews cut power to the hotel. Gas to the hotel was shut off 20 minutes after the fire was first reported.

Thieves Quench Thirst

It seems robbery gives some thieves a thirst, or so it would appear from a city police report.

Police said today unknown thieves broke into the Canada Dry Bottling Ltd. warehouse on Church St. S. at 7:30 a.m. Monday taking a portable radio and two cases of softdrinks.

Entry was gained by breaking a window of an overhead door. Value to the softdrinks was set at $10.40 but there was no value placed on the radio.

Report Stresses Need For More Firefighters

TRENTON — For at least the fifth time in as many years, Chief Cecil Ellis asked council for additional manpower to bring each fire department shift to a three-man strength.

The chief's request was among four recommendations he made in his annual report to council here Monday.

Lack of manpower, says the report, forces a situation in which no one mans the fire hall if two fire trucks must be sent to a fire.

"Regardless of how soon a man is sent back to the station, there is a period of time that the hall is empty. And if a second call was to be received, there would be no one at the station to answer it," states the chief.

Chief Ellis said that with the increase in buildings and population, additional men are "essential for the continued efficient operation of the department".

He also asked for $1,000 in radio equipment to simplify communication among firemen at a fire, and a deluge nozzle.

Six new tires for a fire truck are also needed, since the present tires are 15 years old and "due to their age should no longer be considered safe for an emergency vehicle."

Council took no action on the report and indicated it would be considered when the current budget comes before councillors.

Three Held In Car Theft

Three Sarnia youths have been charged with possession of a stolen vehicle following their arrest in the city today.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie identified the trio as Deborah Elizabeth Chernoff, 20, Michael Doran, 18 and Jo-Ann Leclair, 17.

He said a routine morning computer check of a vehicle revealed it had been stolen in Sarnie.

The vehicle was stopped at 5.10 a.m. on North Front St. by Constables Cecil Herron and Daryl Wagar and the arrests made.

Secretary Pay Increase Approved by Board

A continuing education agreement between the Hastings County Board of Education and Loyalist College has done little to improve the status of secretaries in Bellevile.

At Monday night's meeting, the board of education approved a new agreement with the college which will give night school secretaries $2.71 an hour. The minimum wage now is $2.25.

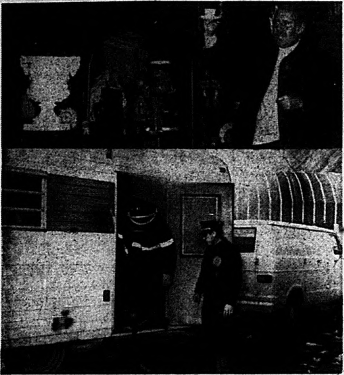
The agreement, negotiated by board and college officials each year, spells out the manner in which night school courses will be conducted. It also gives a salary schedule for the various personnel.

Belleville trustee Richard Williams, an instructor at Loyalist, objected strongly to the agreement saying the secretary's hourly wage was "very low and not a good incentive".

Acting director of education L. F. Reid said the listed wage was an oversight on his part. Several trustees objected to the discussion on the grounds that the agreement should not be renegotiated at the board level.

The Loyalist College board of governors has not yet approved the agreement.

The board finally approved the agreement on the grounds that the board approach Loyalist College in an effort to bring the salaries in line.



Meanwhile

Auctioneer O. H. Rudolph was in the middle of auctioning off antiques and pieces of art at the Four Seasons Hotel Monday when told that his trailer, used to transport his wares from the Toronto-based Galleries La Fayette, was on fire. He cooly went on with his work, not checking on the situation until the auction was over. Apparently, the only damage seemed to be to one antique table and a mattress in the trailer.

Hectic Night

Firemen repeatedly interchanged Scott Air Paks, a breathing apparatus, and plunged back into the burning Gilbert Hotel today in search of fire victims. Of the estimated 25 hotel lodgers, none suffered serious injury during the four-hour, five-alarm blaze that gutted the three-storey building valued at $340,000 by a part-owner.

Seminar Aids Curators In Historical Teaching

A convention involving both federal and provincial museum officials winds up today at Glanmore House.

Curator Marten Lewis said Monday the convention, which began Sunday, is in the form of a seminar sponsored by the Ontario Museum Association on the subject of Orientation To History.

He explained the seminar instructs museum people "in techniques on how to interpret historical sites, artifacts and events to the visiting public."

It is also designed to demonstrate and teach skills or working with volunteers (unpaid staff), added Mr. Lewis.

Officials present include Robin Ingalls, executive director of the Canadian Museum Association and Dorothy Duncan, museum advisor for the provincial ministry of colleges and universities.

Instructors include Mr. Lewis, representatives from Black Creek Pioneer Village and Toronto Historical Board members.

WATS Line Cuts Board Costs

The Hastings County Board of Education has instituted a WATS Line (Wide Area Telephone Service) which should result in a savings of about $2,400 a year.

Acting director of education L. F. Reid told board members Monday night the WATS Line will apply only to numbers in the area code (613). This will allow the board toll-free calling to the major centres of Ottawa, Kingston and Bancroft.

Mr. Reid also informed the board members the intercom system at the Ann St. education centre has been removed. He said this will also result in a savings of about $2,400 a year to the taxpayers.

Counsellor Not Truant Officer

The Hastings county Board of Education voted Monday night to hire a full-time attendance counsellor and terminate its contract with the Children's Aid Society.

Acting director of education L. F. Reid, said, in an interview after Monday night's meeting, the attendance counsellor would not be a truant officer.

"An attendance counsellor establishes a preventive program which will help attract students back to regular classes," explained Mr. Reid.

He said absenteeism is just a "symptom" of another problem and it would be the job of the counsellor to rectify this.

Mr. Reid said just about every board in Ontario hires an attendance counsellor. The position will be advertised later this week.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance in a 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Monday, March 10 — at the Four Seasons hotel parking lot for a fire in a trailer at about 3 p.m., minimal damage.

Tuesday, March 11 — 1:30 a.m. to assist Trenton firefighters in Gilbert Hotel blaze.

All-woman Jury Surprises Judge

Supreme Court Justice William A. Donohue receceived a personal surprise Monday during first-day proceedings in spring assizes at the courthouse here. For one civil case, the six-person jury chosen was composed entirely of women, the first he has seen in his 10-year career on the bench, he said.

"But maybe it's appropriate since this is International Women's Year," remarked Justice Donohue. Monday's opening marked his first visit to Belleville.

Engineer's Blood Contained Alcohol

NAPANEE — More than 27 witnesses are expected to be called during the coroner's inquest into the Dec. 20 head-on collision of two Canadian National trains near Napanee.

The inquest began in Napanee Court House this morning with Dr. Peter King presiding.

Dr. Hugh Smart, chief pathologist at Kingston General Hospital, told the coroner's inquest this morning he personally had conducted autopsies on the three victims and that laboratory tests had been requisitioned on both engineers.

Dr. Smart said 80 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood were found in Mr. Boyles blood and urine. No evidence of alcohol or barbiturates was found in Mr. Mortimore's body. The lab tests were conducted by the forensic science laboratories in Toronto.

Dr. Douglas Alkenbrack, the original coroner on the case, said each of the three died "from massive crushing injuries."

More detailed testimony is expected surrounding forensic laboratories reports.

Maurice Sims, a public relations spokesman for CN said the courthouse has been booked for three days beginning today and "if needed, another two days have been put aside for next week."

Warrant Issued For Rape Suspect

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of a Smiths Falls man charged with rape who is believed to have skipped the country.

The warrant was issued Monday by Supreme Court Justice William A. Donohue after a grand jury returned a true bill in the case against 26-year-old Gerald Alan Giberson during spring assizes at the courthouse here.

Giberson is charged with the rape of a 17-year-old Toronto area girl last July 30. The alleged incident occurred at about 11.30 p.m. on Colborne St. in Tweed.

Originally from Illinois, Giberson was arrested and charged at 2.15 a.m. on July 31 at Park Place Motel in Tweed. A preliminary hearing was held last Oct. 22.

The jury, composed of four men and three women deliberated for about two and a half hours before returning with its decision.

After Giberson did not respond when called, his lawyer, W. D. Chilcott, told Justice Donohue, "I cannot help the court any more as to his whereabouts."

CROWN Attorney Glen Deline said afterwards it is suspected Giberson is in the United States. He had requested a warrant for "apprehension and extradition."

Deline told the court that over the past weekend, "I received information he would not be available for trial." He said Giberson was employed by Bell Canada.

Five Reach 100 Points for an NHL First

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins has moved into top spot in the National Hockey League's scoring race as a result of a seven-point performance last week.

Statistics released today by the league show Orr with 38 goals and 80 assists for 118 point, three more than teammate Phil Esposito. Orr's goal total breaks his own NHL record for most goals in a season by a defenceman set in 1970-71 and equalled a year later.

Esposito has a league-leading 55 goals to go along with 60 assists for 115 points. He had a goal and three assists in Boston's three wins last week.

Tied for third spot with 102 are two members of Montreal Canadiens—rightwinger Guy Lafleur and centre Peter Mahovlich.

Lafleur, back from an extended layoff due to a broken left index finger, scored two goals and two assists in his return to action Friday night against Washington Capitals and had two assists Sunday as Montreal defeated New York Rangers. The former Quebec Remparts junior star has 46 goals and 56 assists.

Mahovlich picked up 11 points in the four games played last week by Montreal, including two goals and three assists Sunday. He now has 32 goals and 70 assists.

In fifth spot is Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings with 100 points on 38 goals and 62 assists. This marks the first time the NHL has had five scorers with 100 points or more.

Bobby Clarke, Philadelphia Flyers' team captain, is 10 points behind Dionne with 23 goals and 67 assists.

Meanwhile, the members of Buffalo Sabres French Connection line are appear on their way to enjoying the finest seasons of their careers. Rene Robert, out of action with a heel injury, is seventh in the scoring race with 37 goals and 51 assists for 88 points, five more than his personal high set last year.

Leftwinger Rick Martin, who missed seven games with torn thumb ligaments, has 42 goals and 38 assists for 80 points, just six less than his best campaign last season. Gilbert Perrault, with 31 goals and 48 assists for 79 points, is just nine points away from his personal high set last season. The Sabres still have 13 games to go.

The Los Angeles Kings goaltending duo of Gary Edwards and Rogatien Vachon have combined for a 2.27 average while Bernie Parent of the Flyers leads with nine shutouts.

The penalty leader is the Flyers Dave Schultz with 391 minutes.

Oilers Upset by Blades

Only Group Leaders Classed as Shoo-ins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With less than a month to play, only the leaders of the World Hockey Association's three divisions, Quebec Nordiques, New England Whalers and Houston Aeros, appear to have playoff berths locked up.

If the WHA playoffs started tonight, Quebec, Toronto Toros, New England, Cleveland Crusaders, Houston, Phoenix Roadrunners. Minnesota North Stars and San Diego Mariners would be in on the post-season play.

Minnesota Fighting Saints and San Diego Mariners would occupy the two wild-card playoff berths while the other six teams would qualify because they are either first or second in their division.

But the WHA schedule has almost four weeks to go and Edmonton Oilers, Vancouver Blazers, Winnipeg Jets and Chicago Cougars all have solid chances to displace some of the eight teams now occupying playoff positions.

The Oilers did nothing for their chances Monday night when they dropped a 5-3 decision to Baltimore Blades, who have the second-worst record in the WHA.

In the Eastern Division, New England has a 15-point lead over Cleveland, but the Crusaders are threatened for second place by the Cougars, who are out of the running for a wild-card berth.

Seven teams in the other two divisions are in the eight for either second place or a wild-card berth. Toronto, runners-up in the Canadian Division, and Phoenix, second in the Western Division, each have 74 points.

Minnesota is next with 70 points. San Diego has 67, Edmonton 65 and Vancouver and Winnipeg 62 each.

Aside from trying to make the playoffs, the teams which still have a chance for post-season play are jockeying for advantage in the playoff pairings.

The first-round playoff matchups will send the qualifier with the most points against the least, the qualifier with the second-most points against the qualifier with the second-least, and so on.

The Canadian Division remains by far the strongest in the league, at least on paper. Canadian Division teams have won 29 games more than they have lost, Western Division teams have 10 more wins than defeats and Eastern Division teams have 39 more losses than victories.

In Monday's game at Baltimore, a crowd of 2,477 saw the Blades break a 3-3 tie in the third period with goals by J. P. LeBlanc and Steve Richardson, with Richardson's scored with 24 seconds to play after Edmonton yanked goalie Ken Brown in favor of a sixth attacker.

Earlier, the Blades scored two power-play goals in 10 seconds, Alain Caron connecting while the Oilers had two players in the penalty box and Tom Serviss while Baltimore had a one-man advantage.

Gary Bredin was Baltimore's other scorer. Eddie Joyal scored twice and Ray McKay once for the Oilers.

Tonight's schedule has Winnipeg at New England, Phoenix at Toronto, Minnesota at San Diego and Edmonton at Chicago.

21 Powerplay Goals

Another Record For Bobby Hull

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets picked up four goals and four assists last week to move three points ahead of San Diego's Andre Lacroix in the World Hockey Association scoring race.

Statistics released by the league Monday show Hull with 112 points on 60 goals and 52 assists. Lacroix, who has a league-high 78 assists, picked up a goal and six assists to extend his point streak to 28 consecutive games.

Hull surpassed his 58-goal career high with his 58th and 59th against Phoenix, did not score against San Diego, then added his 60th in Winnipeg's 6-5 overtime win over Minnesota.

Both of Hull's goals in the Phoenix game came on power plays, giving him a league-high 21 for the season, a record.

Quebec's Serge Bernier, still a threat for the scoring leadership, had a five-point week to reach the 100-point plateau.

Third - place Bernier has 46 goals and 55 assists for 101 points, seven ahead of Ulf Nilsson of the Jets and eight in front of Larry Lund of Houston Aeros.

Wayne Rivers of San Diego is in sixth spot with 83 points on 47 goals and 36 assists, a point ahead of Minnesota's Mike Walton.

Anders Hedberg of Winnipeg and Gordie Howe of Houston—who will be 47 at the end of this month—have 77 points each for a share of eighth place.

Penguins on Thin Ice

NEW YORK (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Monday night the financially-troubled Pittsburgh Penguins are going to have to row their own boat because the NHL can't bail them out.

The NHL's board of governors, after several months of meetings, still hasn't decided on the future of the Oakland and Pittsburgh franchises, now in their eighth year of operation.

The governors continued their meetings today after an initial but indecisive five-hour session Monday.

"We are still in the consultative discussion stage about a number of moves which have been suggested or offered," Campbell said in an interview after the Lester Patrick Awards dinner here.

The NHL president lent more urgency to the Pittsburgh situation than the one in Oakland, where the league is operating California Golden Seals and losing millions of dollars a year.

In Pittsburgh, "time is not on our side," Campbell said. "The Pittsburgh situation must be resolved in some fashion while we're here."

The basic problem in Pittsburgh is finding enough new capital to restructure the club's debts and make it completely viable, Campbell said.

He disclosed that the Penguins need an infusion of "a very considerable amount of new capital."

It would involve far more than selling off 20 per cent of the club's stock. "That wouldn't begin to do it," the NHL president said.

The trouble the NHL has to face is directly involved with future expansion. Seattle and Denver both were awarded conditional franchises for the 1976-77 season. But the groups granted the franchises want to start up next season.

Various options have been considered by the NHL's expansion committee, including moving the Seals to Denver and the Penguins to Seattle to fill the gap next season.

But the governors must act on transfer of property rights and a unanimous vote of those present and voting is needed to approve a franchise shift.

Ivan Mullenix, president of Denver Spurs of the Central Hockey League, pledged to the expansion committee on Feb. 26 he is willing to meet all the NHL requirements to purchase the Golden Seals and move them to Denver.

But Mel Swig, a San Francisco businessman who heads a group of potential buyers, wants to keep the Seals in the area.

Campbell said the NHL has given financial assistance to Pittsburgh which the club owners, led by president Thayer Potter, have not been able to liquidate.

"That by itself is not so serious. The club itself is a viable entity in our opinion and we want to preserve it that way so that with a new debt structure it can be completely viable."

Playoff Picture

MONTREAL (CP) — With less than a month remaining in the 720-game National Hockey League schedule, 11 teams are virtually assured of berths in the post-season Stanley Cup playoffs.

Going into tonight's action, the only team now in a playoff berth which has a chance of being dislodged is New York Islanders, who are third in the Patrick Division with 73 points, eight more than Atlanta Flames. The Flames have a game in hand.

However the Islanders are only four points behind New York Rangers and points mean more than just a place in the divisional standings this season.

With the expansion of the league to 18 teams, the league has divided into two conferences with each conference split into two divisions. Now 12 clubs are eligible to qualify for the post-season competition, three from each division. Last year, with 16 teams and two divisions, four teams in each division were eligible for playoff berths.

The top three teams from each division qualify for the playoffs with each of the divisional leaders drawing a bye from first-round play.

The remaining eight teams participate in four best-of-three series with the winners advancing to quarter-final activity.

The pairings for the first-round series are decided by the point totals of the teams involved. The club with the most points meets the team with the fewest, the squad with the second highest point total takes on the club with the second fewest, the third-ranked team plays the sixth-ranked squad and the fourth-rated team tackles the fifth-rated club.

The winners of the first-round series advance to the quarter-final with points accumulated during the season again determining the pairings.

Of course, the winners of the quarter-finals meet in the semi-finals the team holding the most points getting the extra home game in the best-of-seven set. The same holds true for the finals.

That Stickwork Is Out!

Don't class fighting with violence in hockey.

A questionable statement? Perhaps.

But let me explain.

Invariably, it's the guy who drops his gloves and descends upon his adversary with righteous fury after being on the receiving end of a buttend, spear or high stick who bears the brunt of the punishment when penalties are meted out.

While I agree the official in charge of the game has no way of catching all the infractions that lead to on-ice fisticuffs, I am also well aware that too often, no attempt is made to single out the culprit who provoked the fist-throwing episode.

Why can't game officials confer when these outbreaks occur? Surely the player who is man enough to drop his stick and retaliate with his fists when some goon has tried to carve him up with the lumber deserves some consideration.

By branding the fighter as a troublemaker who deserves suspension while looking the other way when fouls of a much more serious nature are becoming more and more commonplace, are we not asking for trouble?

It has always been my contention that a player who responds to a spear with a punch in the nose to the stick-wielder, is following proper procedure.

To lean on the fighter who has been provoked by an obvious foul is wrong if we're going to hand out lighter sentences to the instigator.

Sure, there are those players who will fight with no provocation, but for every one of those, there are dozens of others who bare the knuckles only when they've had their bells rung with a stick over the head.

Should the fellow felled by a high stick reply in kind? I think not.

Should he shrug his shoulders and let it go? Many times, in the heat of a rugged game, that is easier said than done.

And the culprit receives the same treatment the bully in the schoolyard deserves.

Buttends, spears and some high sticking infractions are deliberate attempts to injure. The guilty players should be expelled from the game and handed stiff suspensions.

I'll take fighting over stick swinging any day.

A crackdown on the boob who uses his stick as a weapon is long overdue.

You say steps have been taken in that direction?

In some instances, you are absolutely right. But too often, we're condoning the actions of a few wood choppers who don't have any place in the game of hockey.

Let's rid the sport of them.

They are certainly not hockey players.

Lose in Overtime

Lions Settle For B Title

ST. ISIDORE DE PRESCOTT (Special) — Belleville Lions Major Midgets had to settle for the B championship in the annual tournament here on the weekend when they were shaded 1-0 by Arnprior in sudden death overtime, in the grand championship final.

After dropping their first start to Brockville 1-0, Lions marched to the B title with a 6-0 defeat of Vanier Flyers and a 3-2 squeaker over Ottawa West.

Randy Hutchinson and Clint Riendeau each fired a pair of Belleville goals in the defeat of Vanier. Checking in with one each were Tom Belch and Paul Hipkin. Mark Meehan chalked up the shutout.

Belch potted the winner in the win over Ottawa West. Sandy Waterson and Calvin Pope fired the other Belleville goals.

When it came to selection of game stars, Lions fared very well.

Goalie Meehan made it to the three-star selection in the overtime final; Hipkin and Belch were named in Game 3; it was Belch and Meehan in the second game, and goalie Allan Portt in the club's first start.

Top Four Squads Win in Openers

The top four teams in the Gas House Hockey League's regular season got off on the right skate as the loop opened first-round playoff action Monday night at Memorial Arena.

Stanley Structures whipped Constellation Carpets 8-1; Belleville Generals outscored Art's Esso 7-1; Rollins Lumber nipped Jim's Pizzeria 3-2, and Chuckwagon Foods turned back Yardmen, 3-0.

Mike Goegan sparked Stanley's with a three-goal, two-assist performance. Russ Harrington and Ron Fuller each clicked for a pair of counters and Rob Harrington had one. Bob Wludyka, Frank Wiles and Bob Mulvihill each earned two assists.

Ken Kerik finished off a three-way play with Myles McDonnell and Wayne Andrews to deprive Stanley's Vern Whalen of a shutout.

Bill Van Soelen, Steve Truelove and Hyalie Brant each had four-point nights for Generals. Van Soelen clicked for a pair of goals and added two assists while Bryant and Truelove were each good for one and three. Dave Skelton was a two-goal shooter while Peter Delanty rounded out the winners' attack. Bill Dudgeon took a pass from Chuck Conigan for the Esso team's lone counter.

In Rollins squeaker over Jim's, Don Bowry was the big man with a pair of goals. Dale Tummon had the other marker for the winners. Checking in with two helpers each were Scott McLaren and Bill Lynch. Fred Stickle and Jack Card took care of the Pizzeria scoring.

Gary Sero looked after all the scoring in Chuckwagon's 3-0 win over Yardmen. Grant Sage picked up two assists. Although the scoresheets don't offer confirmation of the fact, it would appear Joe Scanlan was in goal to post the shutout.

Rollins Trips Bantams

Belleville Rollins Major Peewees had little trouble romping to a 13-3 exhibition win over a Belleville Minor Hockey Association minor bantam house league squad, Saturday.

Rollins got two goals each from Steve Slaughter, Charlie Doran, Greg Horwood, Louis Crawford and Danny Rose. David Semark, Jamie Robertson and Tony Parks had the others.

In the playmaking department, Robbie Soule earned three assists with two each for Slaughter, Horwood, Robertson and Parks.

Eleanor Kinnear (left) of Belleville Archery Club and Ottawa's Dawn Monroe show results of shootoff made necessary when they finished in a tie for first place in eastern Ontario zone freestyle archery championships Sunday. Eleanor shot a nine and Dawn, an eight. But Ottawa archer may get title for scoring more golds (bullseyes) during competition. She had 10 to Eleanor's nine. The women finished in a points tie at 503.

Who Wins the Tie? — Jury Still Out

Jerry Monroe of Ottawa won the eastern Ontario zone freestyle archery championship at Ben Bleecker Auditorium here, Sunday, scoring 548 points out of a possible 600 to finish three ahead of another Otawa archer, Rick Mallett.

According to Floyd Armstrong, president of the Belleville Archery Club, the jury's still out on the matter of the woman's freestyle championship holder.

Belleville's Eleanor Kinnear tied at 503 with Dawn Monroe (Jerry's wife) and in a special shootoff, gained the edge over the Ottawa archer. Eleanor's shot was good for a nine. Dawn shot an eight.

A Canadian Press report gives the title to Mrs. Monroe since she had more golds (bullseyes) than the Belleville shooter. It was 10-9 in that department.

But Armstrong is not convinced the title should be decided on that basis in the event of a tie.

Final scores from across the province should be tabulated and prepared later this week and the decision on the eastern zone women's freestyle championship should be reported then.

A Kearney brother and sister entry from the Belleville Club topped their divisions. Donna Kearney scored a 316 in the junior girls' freestyle while brother John came up with a 99 in the Cadet barebow competition. Cadets are under 12 years of age.

Other Ottawa winners were Patti Thompson with a 429 in the intermediate girls' freestyle; Clinton Shewchuk, 546, intermediate boys' freestyle; Scott McKercher, 524, junior boys' freestyle, and Tracy Cadorette, 493, in the men's barebow.

Jim Fitzhenry of Trenton, a member of the Belleville Club, was third in the men's freestyle with 536.

Rick Matheson led the Roger Drake-coached team Monday with three goals. Dave Lewis was right in step with two while Scott Poole, Brian MacKintosh and Bob Cameron shot singles.

Ed Szczur was a two-goal man for the losers. Rounding out the home team socring were Harry Forbes and Tom Brown.

"After Sunday's game (a 10-7 win at home) I never had any doubt we'd wrap it up Monday," observed coach Drake.

"I just had that feeling", he said.

The semi-finals coul dopen as early as Saturday night in Trenton but dates will not be confirmed until later this week. Birt's will meet the winner of the Richmond Hill-Owen Sound set. Richmond Hill has the lead in that series with two wins and a tie in three starts.

Georgetown will hook up with either Riverside or Oak-Ridges in the other semi-final matchup.

Gerry Desjardins' Future Hangs in Balance

NEW YORK (AP) — The jump by goalie Gerry Desjardins from the World Hockey Association to Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League took a new turn Monday night when it was learned that the WHA is investigating a possible conflict of interest involving the move.

At the centre of the inquiry are Ron Roberts, Desjardins' representative, and reports that Roberts accepted a $10,000 fee for delivering the 30-year-old goalie from Baltimore Blades of the WHA to the Sabres.

The WHA's general counsel, Claude Young, said Monday in a telephone interview from his Los Angeles home that the possible conflict had arisen because Roberts also is the representative of the league's players' association.

"And I am concerned with the problem of possible conflict of interest," Young said.

"A major decision was made with regard to the Baltimore franchise in conjunction with Mr. Roberts as representative for the players association," Young said. "I am concerned that what may be happening with this one hockey player may be at the detriment of the entire league and its players."

Roberts was not available for comment Monday night, nor was Desjardins, who did not accompany the Sabres to Los Angeles for the first game of a West Coast road trip.

The episode began last Monday, with the announcement that New York Islanders had traded the NHL rights of Desjardins to Buffalo for future considerations. At the time, the goaltender was playing for the Blades, who had started the WHA season as Michigan Stags.

By Tuesday, Desjardins had arrived in New York to join the Sabres for Wednesday night's game against the Rangers. He and Roberts claimed his WHA contract had been breached when the Stags were taken over by the league and moved to Baltimore.

He dressed for the game against the Rangers and was scheduled to play Sunday night against the Pittsburgh Penguins, but was pulled from the lineup before the contest.

Ron Andrews, NHL director of information, said in a telephone interview Monday the goalie was benched at the request of the league, which "had to make sure he was a free agent."

NHL president Clarence Campbell confirmed Andrew's explanation, saying: "Until I'm satisfied that he is a free agent, Desjardins can't play in the NHL."

Punch Imlach, the Sabres' vice-president and general manager, was not available for comment.

Barrie Midgets Sharp In Tie

MOSCOW (CP) — Left winger Robbie Coulson's goal at 3:42 of the third period gave Barrie, Ont., a 3-3 tie with the Soviet national midget team in an international exhibition hockey game Monday.

It was the best performance by the Barrie team—which won the national midget tournament at Oshawa, Ont., last January—in three games of a six-game tournament.

Last Saturday, the same Soviet club, made up of the country's top 16-and 17-year-olds, whipped the Canadians 6-1. In the first game, Canada rallied to tie the Spartak midgets 5-5.

Centres Robert Garner and Peter Trzecak scored the other goals for Canada before 4,300 fans at the Sokolniki Arena. Centre Sergei Tukmachev led the Russians with three goals, one in each period.

The key to Canada's success was goaltender Doug Keans who put on a brilliant performance. Soviet officials said after the game that the Russians outshot the visitors 23-11, but Canadian officials said the 16-year-old netminder blocked twice as many drives.

The Soviets opened the scoring at 11:07 of the first period when Tunmachem cut in front of the net, faked Keans to one side then tucked the puck into the open side.

Garner evened the score at 1:38 of the second with the teams each a player short. Breaking in on the Russian goal after taking a lead pass from defenceman Bradley Tambly, Garner's 50-foot slapshot caught goaltender Dmitri Curoshin by surprise.

Canadian captain Mike Gibb and Michael Tretjakov of the Russians were off for roughing when Garner scored.

Less than seven minutes later, Trzecak put the Canadians ahead 2-1 at 8:00 of the second when he took defenceman Dave McCullough's centring pass and rifled the puck past Curoshin.

The Soviets tied the score at 10:18 and took the lead at 1:3 3 of the final period when Tukmachev scored his third goal by pulling Keans to one side and putting the puck in the other corner.

Coulson scored the final goal when he picked up Garner's rebound off a slapshot from the point.

Keans' biggest stop occurred in the second period when Treajakov was robbed on a wrist shot from close in. Tretjakov raised his stick to indicate a goal, only to realize that Keans had reached back with his glove hand to catch the puck in the air.

Keans gave a lot a credit to a different catching glove he used for the first time in the series.

"I guess you could say I felt more comfortable with the big glove, but the other one I used in our first two games was okay. I just changed tonight for a reason I really can't explain. It's just one of those things."

Keans said 'the team played well in front of me . . . the five-man box we set up worked really well for us controlling the puck in our end of the rink." The defence cleared "the guys out of the way in front of the net and that gave me lots of room to see."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, March 12

You'll awaken interest regarding your plans if you're a bit mysterious about them. Reveal just enough to whet others' appetites.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20) Something you're presently hoping for will be delayed through no fault of your own. The delay is temporary and will be rectified.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't stand in another's shadow today or the credit you should receive for an achievement will be stolen by the grandstander. Speak up.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An embarrassing situation can be avoided if you don't pretend to know about something you don't know of.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be very careful with anything material belonging to another. Don't lend without the owner's consent what was entrusted to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An agreement with another will be broken unless you're both very fair regarding its terms. Compromise is called for.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't allow minor setbacks careerwise to upset you. They will be overcome shortly by more fortunate circumstances. Just hang in there.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22) One with whom you've had differences should be avoided socially today. This person may pull one of her old tricks.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 21) Don't wait too long to wrap up a delicate situation or the control will slip from you. Someone else will be calling the shots.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could easily be talked out of a good idea by one who will plant doubts in your mind with her negative comments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 2 - Feb. 19) Be careful in financial dealings today or you'll suffer some loss that could be averted. Count your change. Get receipts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your intentions will be good but your drive will be minimal. Things you plan to do today are likely to be postponed.

Electrolysis: Good but Tedious

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please give me a frank and honest opinion concerning electrolysis in hair removal? Is it as easy and dependable as the advertisements say it is, or is it really a hassle and undependable?—T.Y.

Frankly and honestly, electrolysis is the only way to remove hair permanently. A tiny wire needle is used to conduct a mild electrical current to the hair root to destroy the individual follicle. In the hands of a skilled technician the method is clean, safe, and effective. I prefer it above others. The chances of regrowth are remote.

But is it a hassle? That depends upon how you define that word. Electrolysis is a tedious procedure. You must remember it is one hair at a time which is being destroyed. This can take time and become rather expensive.

To find a qualified electrologist, ask your doctor. He should be able, especially if he is a dermatologist, to provide a list of qualified practitioners, or one in whom he has particular confidence. Look for one who uses the initials "R.E." after his or her name. This stands for Registered Electrologist.

You can also write to the Directory of Professional Electrologists, 30 E. 40th St., New York, N.Y. 10016, for a listing of registered electrologists state by state, including Canadian provinces.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What can I do for an enlarged heart and emphysema? What causes them, and can I take some medication to cure these problems?—S.H.M.

You have two problems here that may be somewhat related. Enlargement of the heart is caused by the organ's attempt to adjust to chronic strain. The strain can be brought on by diseased valves within the heart, from high blood pressure of long standing or (and this bears on your case) from a chronic lung disorder such as emphysema or fibrosis, a scarring of the lung.

The enlargement doesn't always mean an inefficient heart. To the contrary, it often means that the heart muscle is working hard to overcome forces opposed to it, such as those represented by a lung disorder such as emphysema.

Emphysema means a loss of elasticity in the lung spaces. It can cause enlargement of the right chamber of the heart, the side that pumps blood to the lungs. Thus you can readily see the connection between the two problems.

Treatment of the enlarged heart usually goes back to the underlying cause—and the treatment of emphysema, which is probably your problem, can be quite complex. Smoking must be stopped. Medication is usually prescribed to relieve spasms of the bronchial tubes.

Other measures can be taken to make breathing easier. As in so many diseases that are, in effect, incurable, control is the key word.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 72 and disgustingly healthy. About three weeks ago I awoke to find that I had expelled quite an amount of clear blood, which had started to coagulate. It was from the rectum.

There has been no repetition since this experience. I would appreciate your thinking on this surprising event.—Mrs. I.M.H.

Your single episode of bleeding is unusual. You need to find out for sure whether the bleeding was from the bowel or from the vagina. A stool sample would tell whether you are still having subtle bleeding (that is, blood in the stool not apparent to visual observation).

Gross bleeding, the kind you describe, is an ominous sign, and of course makes one think of cancer. It should not go uninvestigated. There are other possibilities, though, so, for heaven's sake, don't scare yourself to death. Another cause could be diverticulosis of the colon, of a number of non-malignant rectal disorders or blood problems.

You should have a thorough check-up.

Big Warehouse

TORONTO (CP) — The central warehouse for Dominion Stores Ltd. is as big as 36 football fields, store officials say.

Security men ride bicycles on their rounds and fork-lifts stack cartons 20 feet in the air.

The warehouse stores all goods going to stores in Central Canada.

In one corner, a huge, locked cage holds merchandise damaged in handling. No official is prepared to estimate how much damage is incurred—that's information which may help the opposition.

"It's just so insignificant," one official said. "Our handling procedures are just so beautiful, it's not really a point."

Store officials refuse shipments of damaged goods but damage incurred in the warehouse means the product is sent to the returned goods room where six men work full time trying to sort and repackage it.

Store managers, who buy from Dominion in much the same way an individual store owner buys from a wholesaler, do not want damaged goods.

Each store is a separate profit centre and selling a damaged product would reduce its profit.

The damaged goods at the warehouse are either thrown out or sold at a discount, warehouse manager William Ruttle says.

He said Dominion has never sold damaged goods to charitable or non-profit organizations because "it would end up as a real madhouse."

Tax Concession

SNODLAND, England (CP) — Roger Pillar has won a cut in property taxes because of wolf-whistles. He told authorities in this Kent town that every time his wife dons her bikini to sunbathe on the lawn, men in the adjoining factory gather to stare and whistle. This embarrassment has reduced the taxable value of his property, he argued.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Four hearts wheels in easily against any lead but a heart. However, West did lead a heart. East held the first trick and continued the suit. South went up with the ace.

Terence Reese asks, "What should South do next?"

His answer is a surprising one. He says, "He should lay down his hand and claim the contract before he can make a mistake."

Before you go any further see if you can figure out the play which must win against any combination of adverse cards.

Here it is:

South cashes dummy's ace and king of spades and ruffs a spade. East has to follow, but it makes no difference. If East ruffs in any time, there will be no way for him to lead a third trump to draw dummy's last trump.

South's next play is to take his king of clubs. Then he leads a club to dummy's queen and ruffs dummy's last spade. Now he leads a club to dummy's ace and ruffs dummy's last club. Here again East is helpless if he ruffs in on dummy's club ace or six. South scores his 10th trick and contract with the ace of diamonds.

Data Bounced Off Satellite

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Rick Martin, 24-year-old technician, bounces electronic facsimile messages off the moon for fun and off a National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) satellite for work.

Martin is a volunteer crew member aboard Jacques Cousteau's converted minesweeper, the Calypso. The ship, in a research project with NASA and Texas A. and M. University, cruises the Caribbean measuring marine productivity and pollution in the sea.

Aboard the Calypso is Martin's bouncer, a Xerox Corp. telecopier unit. As the NASA satellite makes a daily pass over Calypso's position, sketches, graphs and other data from the Cousteau team's research are placed in the facsimile device and bounced off the satellite to receiving units at Texas A. and M.

The faithful reproduction permits precise analysis and compilation that would be impossible if the data were sent by voice.

A Dubious First For Sox Manager

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It may be only spring training, and early spring training at that, but manager Darrell Johnson of Boston Red Sox is in mid-season form.

The Red Sox dropped a 7-3 decision Monday to Houston Astros and balks by Boston rookies Steve Barr and Mark Bomback played a large part in the outcome.

Barr's balk came in the fourth inning and, along with Bob Watson's two-run double, helped the Astros take a 3-0 lead. Two innings later, Houston picked up two more runs with the aid of Doug Rader's double and Bomback's balk.

It was all too much for Johnson, and when umpire Joe Brinkman called the balk on Bomback, Johnson stormed out of the dugout, protesting violently.

En route to Brinkman, the Boston manager kicked dirt on umpire Andy Olsen and Olsen promptly thumbed him out of the game, earning the Boston manager the first ejection of the spring.

Thus inspired, the Sox rallied for three runs but it was too little, too late.

In Monday's other exhibition games, Philadelphia Phillies defeated New York Mets 7-3; Baltimore Orioles pounded Texas Rangers 10-0; Minnesota Twins edged Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3; New York Yankees topped Atlanta Braves 4-3; Chicago White Sox whipped St.Louis Cardinals 8-3; Cincinnati Reds shaded Kansas City Royals 2-1; Detroit Tigers dumped Pittsburgh Pirates 7-6; Montreal Expos got by Tokyo Giants 4-3 in 10 innings and Chunichi Dragons clubbed a second Detroit squad 14-7.

The Phillies made it four victories in as many outings on the strength of two-run doubles by Greg Luzinski and Jerry Martin. Baltimore jumped on Texas right-hander Jim Bibby for six runs and eight hits in three innings.

Jerry Terrell walked, took third on an error and raced home on a fielder's choice with the winning run in the eighth inning for Minnesota.

Lou Piniella homered and Ron Blomberg and Eddie Leon hit run-scoring singles in the Yankees' win over Atlanta. The White Sox won for the first time in four tries behind doubles by Bucky Dent, Bill Melton and Brian Downing.

Pinch hitter Arturo DeFreitas doubled home one run and scored the other in the eighth to lift Cincinnati past Kansas City. Aurelio Rodriguez belted a two-run double and Gary Sutherland homered to help Detroit down Pittsburgh.

Barry Foote—Timely Hit

Expos Shade Tokyo Giants

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Barry Foote's bases-loaded single in the 10th inning Monday gave Montreal Expos a 4-3 exhibition baseball victory over Tokyo Giants.

The Expos loaded the bases with one out on a pair of walks and an error by third baseman Masaru Tomaita before Foote singled to centre.

Tokyo led 3-0 after a run in the third inning on Takashi Euda's single and two in the sixth on a double by Kazumasa Kono and a single by Tadashi Yazawa.

Held to one hit through five innings by starter Kazumi Takahashi, the National League Expos got a run in the sixth on a double by Pepe Magual and a single by Tim Foli and two runs in the eighth on Mike Jorgensen's single.

Schoolboy Curling Championships

History Repeats for Velanoff

EDMONTON (CP) — Dave Velanoff of London, skip of the inconsistent Ontario rink which shares the lead after three rounds of the Canadian schoolboy curling championship, shrugged off tributes Monday night for his vital shot in a narrow 8-7 victory over New Brunswick.

After burying his last rock behind cover to force New Brunswick skip Blake Gilks of Fredericton into a costly miss, Velanoff acted like a young man who had seen the whole thing before—which, in fact, he had.

"It's exactly the shot I made to win the Ontario championship," said Velanoff, who defeated Joe Dark of Kingston in a sudden-death final.

"You put the rock behind something and hope for a miss."

The result left Ontario tied with Alberta and Manitoba, the other unbeaten rinks in the 12-team competition, although the Prairie squads had an easy time in the third round.

Alberta skip Barry Gowsell of Calgary led his crew to an abbreviated 12-2 triumph over the Territories entry led by Jim Ramsden of Whitehorse, Y.T., and Jim Quinn of Flin Flon directed Manitoba to an 8-3 victory over Prince Edward Island's scrappy rink, led by Bill Jenkins of Charlottetown.

The other unbeaten rink is the Nova Scotia crew, sparked by Scott Saunders of Lunenberg, which rallied in the late stage for an 8-4 triumph over Newfoundland's Jeff Thomas rink St. John's.

Saunders has played only two games. A first-round match with Quebec delayed because Nova Scotia's late arrival will be played Thursday morning.

Northern Ontario skip Da Leskinen of Red Rock fell out of the unbeaten ranks when outlasted 6-5 by the British Columbia entry and hot-shooting skip Dave Johnston of Prince George.

In the other third-round match, Barry Ness of Ormstown led Quebec to an 8-7 extra-end victory over the Saskatchewan rink led by Earl Garratt of Regina.

In the second round, Alberta ed New Brunswick 6-5, Saskatchewan nipped Prince Edward Island 8-7, Manitoba squeezed past B.C. 5-4,, Nova Scotia bounced the Territories 7, Northern Ontario thumped Quebec 11-2 and Ontario downed Newfoundland 8-5.

British Columbia ended the third round in a deadlock with Northern Ontario at 2-1 while Quebec had one win and a loss. Saskatchewan had one win in three starts while the Territories, Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island were winless.

A large number of the day's outstanding shots were turned in by Johnston. The six-foot-six shotmaker came through with a rare triple-takeout early in the Manitoba match, where his only glaring mistake came on a difficult angle-raise that gave Manitoba two in the eighth end.

In the third round, he spent most of his time looking at two or three Northern Ontario rocks, but produced a series of clutch shots.

An All-London Final Shaping Up in Soccer

LONDON (Reuter) — Prospects of an English Football Association Cup final between Leeds United and West Ham United, the favorites for the trophy, were wrecked by today's semi-final draw.

West Ham United came out of the hat for the April 5 semi-finals against Leeds or Ipswich Town, who replay their tied quarter-final match Tuesday. In the other semi-final, second division Fulham will meet Birmingham City.

The draw brought the possibility of the second all-London soccer final in the history of the Cup—Fulham vs. West Ham. The only other all-London final was between Tottenham Hotspur and Chelsea in 1967.

Leeds and West Ham have not met in the Cup since 1930 when West Ham won 4-0. In clashes this season, each team won its home game 2-1.

West Ham beat Ipswich Town 5-1 in the third round of the Cup in 1950, and in their only league match so far this season, at West Ham in October, the London club won 1-0.

Birmingham and Fulham have met three times in the competition since the Second World War, with Birmingham winning each time away from home.

The semi-final matches will be played on neutral grounds.

After the draw, betting on the cup was: 9—4 Leeds, 5—2 Birmingham and West Ham, 8—1 Fulham and 9—1 Ipswich.

CAPITAL AND LABOR

Housing Target Will Be Achieved

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner said Monday the federal government will meet its objective of 210,000 new housing starts this year despite a slump in the house-building industry.

"One of the government's priorities is to . . . achieve a rate of housing starts equivalent to 210,000 a year," Mr. Turner told Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) in the Commons.

A Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. report released earlier Monday said the house-building industry has had its worst winter in eight years. Builders started construction on 21,522 housing units the December-to-February period, almost one-half the number of starts a year earlier.

Miss MacDonald said "total government spending has increased by 28 per cent while the capital budget for housing has been increased by only 12 per cent . . . which indicates the low priority the government places on housing needs."

Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca) said high mortgage rates have contributed to the slowdown in housing construction and asked if the government plans to force mortgage rates down.

Mr. Turner replied that mortgage rates have declined by as much as two per cent in the last couple of months.

Also the government would provide rental and mortgage subsidies of up to $50 a month for low-income families under a bill now before the Commons.

Munro Leaves Hospital

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro left hospital here Monday after an 11-day stay and will be returning to the Commons soon, a spokesman said Monday.

Mr. Munro entered the National Defence Medical Centre Feb. 27 after being under steady opposition fire for several days in connection with the Hamilton Harbor dredging scandal. He was reported suffering from exhaustion.

The 43-year-old minister had discussed resigning with Prime Minister Trudeau but the prime minister suggested he seek medical attention and take a few days rest.

The spokesman for Mr. Munro said he could not elaborate on the short, one-sentence statement that he has left hospital and will be returning to the Commons soon.

He said he could not say anything at the moment on whether anything has been found medically wrong with the minister.

Kenneth Elliott, a former Hamilton Harbor commissioner, and another man have been ordered to stand trial on charges linked to the same case.

George Kerr resigned last month as Ontario solicitor-general to defend himself against allegations of wrongdoing in the Hamilton Harbor case.

MacEachen Won't Promise To Oppose PLO

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen refused Monday to give assurances that Canada will oppose representation by the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) in Middle East peace talks.

He told Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) the matter is hypothetical because no date has been set for such talks.

Mr. Brewin said the recent attack by Palestinian commandos on a Tel Aviv seashore hotel was an attempt to sabotage the mediation efforts of U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger who is seeking a new agreement between Israel and Egypt.

He said the PLO claimed responsibility for the raid.

Mr. Brewin said in an interview that the operation casts doubt on the suitability of having the PLO represent the Palestinian people if Geneva peace talks resume.

'Politics' Asserts Marchand Of PC Charge Against Him

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand dismissed as politics Monday Progressive Conservative criticisms that he tried to use charges of racialism to sidetrack attacks on his department.

"They think it's good politics as far as English Canada is concerned," he told reporters after the majority government survived a non-confidence vote in the Commons. "It's very beneficial to them because people don't like . . . racism."

The vote was on a Conservative motion which said the government has not developed a cohesive national transportation policy. The motion was defeated 113 to 86 by the majority Liberals with all opposition members present voting for it.

But while the general debate Monday was on transportation, the focal point remained some remarks Mr. Marchand made Friday during debate on another Conservative motion on transportation.

He said then that he hoped opposition MPs would not follow the lead taken by some reporters who criticized certain cabinet ministers just because they were French-Canadian. There had been no such criticism up to that point.

Asked outside the Commons to elaborate, he replied Friday:

"If you look at the House, who is attacked now? Chretien, Jean Marchand, Yves Pratte and a few others."

Monday, Mr. Marchand said he is sorry if his remarks were taken to mean that some opposition MPs are racists.

Claude Wagner, the senior Quebec Conservative, said Mr. Marchand's remarks smack of paranoia and that the transport minister owes Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield and his party an apology.

Mr. Stanfield said he intends to raise Mr. Marchand's remarks today in a question of privilege. However, Commons Speaker James Jerome has ruled previously against questions of privilege dealing with comments members make outside the Commons.

Mr. Marchand told reporters his department is still in the mess it was late last year.

"Its a very demanding department; it's the most demanding department I've known," he said. It was a complex structure with a score of interlocked agencies that made the job of developing a national transportation policy all the more difficult.

"I don't know if it's necessarily too big, but maybe there should be a junior minister who could sign papers. . . ." he replied. "This is something we're looking into."

It wouldn't be a new idea. There used to be an associate defence minister until the position was abolished in the mid-1960s.

14 Persons, 12 Firms Charged

Dredge Contract Charges Laid

OTTAWA (CP) — Fourteen persons and 12 companies ranging from Montreal to Vancouver, have been charged with fraud in connection with federal dredging contracts.

The charges were laid by the RCMP here today in a dramatic extension of the Hamilton harbor scandal that has rocked Ottawa in recent weeks.

Among the companies charged is Marine Industries Ltd., in which relatives of the wife of Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa have a substantial interest.

The charges are conspiracy to defraud the federal and Ontario governments and the Hamilton Harbor Commission.

Those charged were being arraigned later today in provincial court here.

The identities of the firms and persons charged were read off by the RCMP at their A division office in downtown Ottawa.

More than $4 million is said involved.

Charged are:

Gerard Filion, St. Bruno, Que., former president of Marine Industries Ltd., and Louis Rochette, St. Bruno, executive vice-president of the company.

Bruno DesJardins, Baie d'Urfe, Que., and Jean Simard, Laval sur le Lac, Que. Simard is a vice-president of Marine Industries and of J. P Porter Co. Ltd. Inc. and Richelieu Dredging Corp. Inc. DesJardins is his law partner.

Harold McNamara, Toronto, president of McNamara Corp., Ltd.; Sydney Cooper, Toronto, president of C. A. Pitts Const. Ltd.; James Jarrell, Toronto, senior vice-president of C. A. Pitts.

Hugh A. Martin, Vancouver, president of Marwell Dredging Ltd. and chairman of the board of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd.; Frank Hamata, Richmond, B.C., president of Sceptre Dredging Ltd.; Albert R. Gill, Richmond, senior vice-president of Sceptre.

Ezra Sansibar, hometown not given, president of Construction Aggregates Corp. and Jason Hydraulic Pumping Ltd. of Hamilton, Ont.; Albert Goldfarb, vice-president of Construction Aggregates and Jason Hydraulic.

John McDonald, North Vancouver, president of Dillingham Corp.

John E. Bahen, vice-president and general manager of Peter Kiewit and Sons, Toronto.

These corporations are charged:

Marine Industries, Montreal; McNamara Corp. Toronto; J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., Montreal; Richelieu Dredging, Montreal; C. A. Pitts Engineering Construction Ltd., Toronto; Dillingham Corp., North Vancouver; Sceptre Dredging, Richmond, B.C.; Peter Kiewit Sons Co. of Canada Ltd., Toronto; Jason Hydraulic Pumping, Hamilton, Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd. (formally T. C. Gorman Nova Scotia) Toronto; Aldermond Ltd. (formerly Canadian Dredge and Dock Ltd.), Toronto; Marwell Dredging Ltd., Vancouver.

The charges are laid in Ontario because that is where the federal contracts were signed.

The charges are the result of thousands of hours of investigations by the RCMP commercial and fraud section, mostly based in the Toronto O Division.

Mr. Munro took to hospital last week to rest after opposition pressure on him following disclosures that his name was mentioned in preliminary hearings of the men charged in Hamilton.

Voluntary Restraints Advocated

Ontario Throne Speech Urges Price-Pay Curbs

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government, stressing its concern for the economy, called for voluntary price and wage restraints in its throne speech Tuesday.

The six-page statement of government policy, one of the shortest in Ontario history, outlined only generally the tack the Conservative government intends to take in the fifth session of the 29th legislature.

Few specific programs were mentioned.

But Premier William Davis told a news conference "these will become apparent as weeks go by."

"For the first time in many years the long prevailing prosperity and buoyant growth of the province of Ontario has been challenged," Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon read in the speech

The government also announced its intention to hand down its response in an April 7 budget—two days prior to a federal-provincial conference on oil prices

In addition, the government promised to seek co-operation of police and the public to ensure safety of its cities and streets.

Other plans included:

—Creation of an office of provincial ombudsman;

—A promise to encourage home-ownership in Ontario;

—Assurance for farmers that the government plans to introduce measures to keep them in farming;

—A promise to extend benefits and services for the elderly and compensate those on social benefits hard hit by inflation; and a promise of more opportunities for women in the provincial civil service coupled with a hold-the-line policy on over-all government hiring and administrative costs.

Liberal leader Robert Nixon said the lack of "specific policies and promises meant "the Conservatives are bankrupt of ideas."

He said he was looking for government leadership in problem areas of housing, inflation and unemployment.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, said he found the throne speech "virtually without substance" except promises to create an ombudsman, help farmers and give hope to the elderly.

CP Rail Unable To Tidy Tracks

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Canadian Pacific Rail's maintenance crews are so thinly stretched in the region involving Belleville, the company has problems keeping a tidy right-of-way, a city official said Thursday.

The railroad, in keeping costs down, doesn't have the manpower to properly keep up the appearance of its route which skirts Belleville waterfront, says city manager Wilbur Purcell.

"They don't have the staff around to clean it up," he told the city's parks board.

Maintenance men are spread from Smiths Falls west along the entire CP region which includes Belleville.

The parks board has been anxious to improve the esthetic appearances of the CP's route that flanks the main traffic artery of East Dundas St.

Part of the property is a city-owned right-of-way and the parks department wants to improve it with sodding and flower beds.

But the city has repeatedly requested the railroad to "clean up" its own portion of the route and "we're still waiting for a reply to that", said Mr. Purcell.

One suggestion for the parks department re-beautification scheme has been ruled out by the railroad.

The department had considered planting trees as part of the scheme. But railroad officials, while signifying willingness to co-operate with the re-beautification plan, objected to trees because of interference with sight lines.

The federal government is applying to prosecute about 500 members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) who the government says may have participated illegally in selective strikes which PSAC representatives said may be stepped up throughout the country.

The treasury board said in a news release in Ottawa Tuesday that on any day since the strikes began more than three weeks ago, as many as 293 PSAC members designated essental to public safety and security have walked off their jobs illegally.

The board is applying for consent to prosecute from the Public Service Staff Relations Board

Arena Use Donated For Goegan Memorial

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Memorial Arena which hockey-player Fiori Goegan often set ringing with triumphant shouts — has been made available for a benefit game in his honor.

The 48-year-old member of the one-time world championship Belleville McFarlands died Feb. 24 during a Gas House Hockey League game.

Thursday, the recreation-arena committee endorsed a suggestion it charge no rental fee for the benefit game in his tribute. The proposal came from Gordie Bell, a teammate as goaltender for the 1959 world-beating McFarlands.

Goegan came to Belleville to join the team in 1958 and stayed on after it was disbanded, raising his family and becoming active in youth programs here, particulary hockey.

The game has been set for April 12 — the night before it's estimated the 1974-75 ice season will close out.

Consumer Index Up 8 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index was up eight-tenths of one per cent last month but Statistics Canada says seasonal items—fruits and vegetables—caused most of the increases in food, the big consumer budget item.

With the exception of clothing, all major components of the price index moved up at about the same rate as the over-all index.

In the same month a year ago, the price index was up by a full percentage point and Statistics Canada said the main difference is that food prices were moving up more rapidly at that time.

Fresh fruit and vegetable prices were up 5.9 per cent on average last month.

Beef prices, however, declined by 6.5 per cent to about their mid-1973 price level.

Sugar, which still is double its price of a year ago, has declined 23 per cent from the peak price of late 1974.

Canteen Profits Down As Wages Move Higher

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Increased labor costs with recently unionized employees were a major factor in lower canteen profits at nearly all city recreation facilities, Clifford Belch, city recreation director, said Thursday.

Despite an increase in gross sales, the net profits were down at the five canteens run by his department, Mr. Belch told the recreation-arena committee. Prices were later increased in line with quality and what the traffic would bear, he indicated.

Actual net profits, with 1973 comparisons in brackets:

Memorial Arena $7,893 ($11,922); Dick Ellis Rink, $4,942 ($6,463); Ben Bleecker Auditorium $632 ($1,629).

The sole exception: Quinte Skating and Tennis Club, which showed $208 profit compared to $131 in 1973.

Trudeau Says Time May Come When Labor Must Be Curbed

LONDON (CP) — Legislation to curb the power of organized labor might become inevitable unless labor is "prepared to behave very responsibly," says Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada.

In an hour-long BBC television interview Tuesday night, Trudeau said it is difficult to assess whether monopolistic power held by corporations is more dangerous than that held by labor.

"I guess the monopoly of large industry is more dangerous in the sense that I think the monopoly of labor has been created as a reaction, to be able to fight large industry and make monopolistic labor groups," he said in the interview, taped earlier in Ottawa.

Both forms of monopoly hampered government planning and the free choice of citizens, but "I think that we have by and large legislation now on our statute books to curtail unfair competition or price fixing and so on."

"There is not much legislation to curtail monopolistic power of labor," Trudeau said. "I think unless labor itself is prepared to behave very responsibly in setting the parameters of the economy, such legislation may become inevitable."

He did not specify what action he would consider irresponsible, but he said that so far most union wage claims have been an attempt to catch up with rising prices and profits.

These claims contribute to inflation "but I don't judge this to be irresponsible," Trudeau said.

Trudeau Wants Britain in ECC

LONDON (CP)—Any doubt about Canada's desire for Britain to remain within the European Economic Community (EEC) was all but erased Tuesday by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Commenting reluctantly on what is a burning issue here, Trudeau said he has had "no great cause" to alter his ideas on the matter since he expressed support for Britain's entry to the Common Market two years ago.

Irma la Douce Has New Friends

PARIS (CP) — The dawn of new social and moral attitudes has changed the lives of street-walkers in Paris and in other large French cities.

The Canadian tourist of 10 years ago could not avoid being struck by the number and brashness of prostitutes hawking their wares in well-defined quarters of the cities.

Today, the flesh trade is much less obvious as fresh blood has brought new marketing methods.

The number of prostitutes has not decreased. Police estimate it at between 20,000 and 30,000.

But the new recruits are younger and, because they are more spread out, less visible.

The old pros facing stiff competition and reluctant to stray from their traditional stamping grounds, have lost the carriage trade. Their clientele is mostly working-class.

Police raids last summer showed the new breed has forsaken the heart of the city for the boulevards and the suburbs.

French youths hardly patronize the trade any more.

AGENCY AIDS GIRLS

"The young find in their own social circle today what their fathers had to look for on the sly," said Judge Marcel Sacotte of the Paris Court of Appeal.

Sacotte is also vice-president of an agency that helps young prostitutes break out of the trade.

Of particular concern to Sacotte's group and to the authorities is the rapid rise of part-time prostitutes.

They are mostly penniless minors whose craving for the easy life is sharpened by the occasional expense-paid trip to the mountains or the seaside with a rich customer. Their taste for luxury means they usually charge higher prices than the professionals and eventually end up working full-time to make ends meet.

Deseronto Centre Now Taking Shape

DESERONTO — Young Bradley Baldwin took a look Tuesday at the project which will alter recreation patterns for himself and many others in this area.

It's the town's new community centre, the outline of which is visible with the latest construction phase advance.

The steel skeleton for the centre's roofs and walls now is in place over the future centre's major facility — the rink where five-year-old Bradley can join serious league hockey.

Work on centre, which began with ground-breaking late last fall, is aimed at a late-May deadline, although actual completion may depend on what other extras may be required, indicated Don Jackson, engineering superintendent at the site.

The project, costing about $350,000, is being funded by federal provincial and community-raised funds.

A current campaign launched in November, has raised about another $10,000 to date said its chairman Clarence Zieman. Hopes are to collect another $20,000 in the district.

New Playground Proposed

Parks and recreation officials will investigate a request for planning playground layout and landscaping for a child development centre. The centre is planned for 225 Bridge St. by a group of volunteers and professionals — Children's Services Committee of Belleville and District — which would include project for youngsters with emotional and handicap problems.

Picton Residents Polled:

Are Town Hill Parking Meters Needed?

PICTON — Town council has voted to re-install parking meters on Main St. near the Town Hill. The decision to replace the meters only a few months after their removal to ease traffic congestion has prompted mixed reactions among motorists and merchants.

DUNCAN D'ESTERRE

BUD COURTNEY

DEAN HOWARD

RANDOLPH CLAPP

LAVERNE BANNISTER

Mr. D'Esterre, a Picton jeweller, with a shop at the top of the Town Hill says meters should be re-installed with a parking ban during rush hours.

"We haven't enough parking. People complain there is no place to park," he said.

He added the merchants in the Town Hill area deserve some consideration and described removal of the meters as "a dirty shame".

Meters should be replaced near the Town Hill says Mr. Courtney, an employee of the Picton public utilities commission.

He says several merchants on Main St. have complained of loss of business since the meters were removed, making it difficult for customers to halt near the stores.

Mr. Courtney observed it is inconvenient to walk back to the stores that now lack nearby parking facilities.

A student at Loyalist College, Dean Howard of Picton thinks removal of the parking meters permitted smoother traffic flow.

"Now you can pull over and keep on going," he said, referring to the extra traffic lane created by removal of the meters.

He says meters would slow down traffic, especially during the tourist season when the streets are busier.

A Main St. merchant and former town councillor Randolph Clapp says he estimates "conservatively" that he has lost 60 per cent of his trade since the meters were removed. Customers can find nowhere convenient to park.

Mr. Clapp says the meters should be re-installed with a rush hour parking ban.

"Why they want to insist on making a city out of this town I cannot figure out," he remarked.

Mr. Bannister, an employee of the Picton public utilities commission says traffic has moved more smoothly on Main St. since the meters were removed to create a third lane and they should not be re-installed.

He added there is some illegal parking in the area of the Town Hill and this should be stopped.

He says he feels if meters are re-installed a rush hour ban on parking should be enforced.

Leadership Program Aims At Leisure Activities

For information on the following project contact Wendy Neale.

Officially, it's the Provincial Institute Leadership Development Program. Simply, it's one of the Ontario government's ongoing answers to offset mounting social demands of leisure time.

Its objective: To recruit and improve skills of those who can help guide leisure activities within their own communities.

Credentials for participation are broadly based. They include:

— The professionals and their local aides. Those already involved in recreation with municipalities or schools.

— The amateurs. Those already practising their leisure talents in arts or other community club and group activity.

— The untapped. Those who know they have a skill but need it shaped and refined before they can dynamically direct the talent of others.

The program now the jurisdiction of the community and social services ministry, demands one week for three successive summers in leadership training.

Successful completion brings a ministry leadership certificate — proof that the graduate is trained to teach a specific skill in the community. The demand can involve adult night school courses, local recreation programs or volunteer community projects.

The program, in vogue some years, already has trained hundreds of graduates.

This year, the institute is centred at Kemptville Agricultural College June 9-15. Registration fee, including room and board, is $75. But applications must be in by March 31.

That's where Wendy Neale enters the scene. Working out of the ministry's sports and recreation buruca in Belleville, she is co-ordinator for organizing program participation in eight counties in the Belleville — Kingston region.

Since January she's been travelling the area drawing attention to the program.

Response is beginning to mount, she says.

Need for such training is increasing as leisure time expands and demands become more sophisticated. But people seeking involvement with recreation activities also require someone of "dynamic" personality, obviously trained in their skill, as a teacher, she says.

Officially, the ministry terms the situation this way: "Leadership . . . is the number-one component of a quality program . . . good leadership will give to a program a quality that the most excellent equipment and facilities with poor leadership cannot hope to achieve."

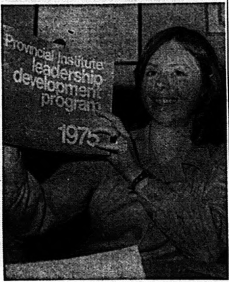
Such is the expansiveness of social leisure needs and demands for matching resources. Wendy thinks such training courses could become more widely dispersed and locally-centred.

She emphasizes the program is designed for people with a particular talent or skill — or already involved in community work.

"It just can't be somebody who says 'I'd like to get involved'."

But either she, or the staff at the bureau, are available to discuss the program with all interested.

The telephone number is 968-3255.



Residents Begin Drive For Pool Support

PICTON — A group of Picton and Prince Edward residents concerned for the future of the proposal for a community swimming pool has organized a public opinion poll in support of the project.

Ballots have been published in the local press stating "I think the proposed county swimming pool makes sense. I support it."

Readers are urged to sign these forms and return them to Dr. Ben Cechard.

The advertisement notes opinions of persons opposed to the pool have been read. There now is a need to learn how many support the project.

"We know how many are in favor but we would like to show our elected representatives just how many," says the ad.

The ad has been financed by a group identified as "concerned citizens" who are not connected with the swimming pool committee.

"We just believe a county pool is a desirable objective," notes the group.

Salary Talks Next Month

Bloomfield—A three-member salary committee of the Prince Edwad board of education is expected to negotiate with the county's 250 elementary and secondary school teachers shortly after the Easter vacation.

Committee chairman Mrs. Ruth Hart says secondary school teachers already have approached the committee. No communication has been received from the elementary teachers as yet.

The teachers' contract expires August 31, 1975.

NEW CURRENCY

PORT MORESBY, Papua New Guinea (AP) — Papua New Guinea's new currency, to be known as the kina, will go into effect in late April, Finance Minister Julius Chan announced.

The provincial government again is running a one-week training program for those who can play community leadership roles in community leisure-time projects. For information participants can call its Belleville region co-ordinator Wendy Neale of the community and social services ministry's Sport and Recreation Bureau in the city.

Store Hours Need Push

Should there be a uniformity of store hours in the province?

A great many people who formed an organization last year called PUSH (Provincial Movement for Uniform Store Hours) obviously thought so.

The provincial government has been lobbied in this regard, but appears unwilling to take a position. And small wonder.

When one talks about "uniformity" in store hours, what is really being discussed is "control" of individual businessmen. A law would tell a store owner that he could not do business with the public at other than specified times.

Trenton town council opened themselves a can of worms when they passed a special bylaw permitting 10 p.m. weekday closings for a chain department store that will be located in a new shopping plaza.

But existing town businesses do not have the same prerogative. By law, they must close shop weekdays at 6 p.m.

Moreover, many of the downtown merchants do not want longer store hours. They say, as do others throughout the province, that extra hours mean extra staff, less time off, and lower profit margin.

Taking a superficial view, one might argue that dictating store hours seems to go against the grain of the free enterprise system.

On the other hand, it has long been a recognized principle that all levels of government occasionally need to act in what they feel are the best interests of businessmen AND customers.

Perhaps only certain types of retail outlets — pharmacies, for one example — should be given carte blanche insofar as store hours are concerned.

Perhaps chain stores will have to be told that, no matter what their company policy, they will have to conform with existing municipal regulations.

One thing is certain. Without some provincial legislation, some merchants may find themselves being forced out of business because they are too small to afford more staff, or because municipal bylaws force them to close while a competitor just outside town limits is not bound by those regulations.

While they're working on the problem, our Queen's Park representatives might also consider another way to keep the corner store in business.

Quebec's long-standing practice of giving neighborhood grocerias — but not the big supermarkets — permits to sell beer seems to have had positive results.

But one doesn't peddle booze in a downtown clothing store, and the provincial government should be acting to ensure that ALL businessmen are given a fair chance to offer their goods to the consuming public.

Editorial Page Gets New Look

Editorial pages are said to be one of the least-read sections of newspapers.

That should not be the case, since many of the opinions and ideas expressed on those pages affect the daily lives of those people who might be more interested in the sports, or women's columns.

Beginning today, The Intelligencer is changing the format of its editorial page in the hope that a more appealing appearance might increase its readership.

Tell It to the Judge

It is possible to feel dishonest while obeying the law.

Put yourself in the shoes of the bewildered city motorists who received a $12.50 parking summons in the mail from Trenton the other day.

Checking the summons, he was forced to admit he was guilty of illegal parking on the date mentioned.

But there was one item missing. The driver had never received the original $5 parking violation.

Perhaps it was not properly affixed to his car by the police officer; perhaps some playful child removed it and made it into a paper airplane.

In any event, the cost of his crime had more than doubled before he even knew he had committed it.

A check with Trenton police got this reply: "Tell it to the judge." In this sort of instance, we are informed, the wheels of justice are too far advanced to stop. The accused might drive 12 miles to Trenton, leaving his job for what could be several hours of provincial court, then hope the judge believed his story about never having received the original ticket.

A favorable ruling could mean that our hapless motorist would get off with paying the $5 fine.

Meanwhile it would cost him $25 in gas and time off work to vindicate himself.

There is one option. "A penalty of $12.50 . . . may be paid out of court if the form of plea of guilty on this summons is signed. . ." Our friend paid the fine, although he knew in his heart he was only guilty of $5 worth.

All of this is not to suggest that illegal parkers should be caught red-handed by police or meter maids just as speeders or impaired drivers.

But surely there is a greater onus for any form of law enforcement than the casual sliding of a piece of paper under a windshield wiper.

The present system leaves itself open to too many forms of abuses. You've heard of the "beverage room switch" technique. The motorist who, upon leaving a pub, finds a parking ticket on his windshield merely places it under the wiper of a nearby vehicle.

The hope is that the other driver will be too tipsy to even read the ticket and merely send in his payment.

Parking is too big a business to leave to chance.

Belleville parking violators put $18,545.10 into the city treasury last year. Surely some of that could have been used in postage to inform motorists by mail of their parking transgressions.

What About Formative Years?

Parents are continually reminded by psychologists that their children require most attention and affection during their younger "formative" years.

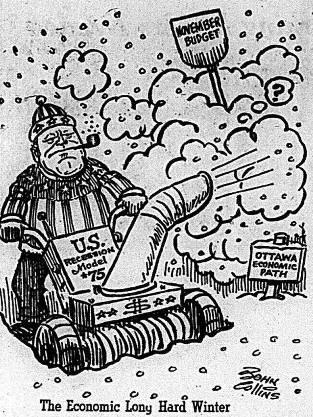
Bearing this in mind, there is something to wonder about in the Hastings County Board of Education's enrolment figures for the current school year.

There will be some 22,000 pupils attending county elementary schools, and they will be taught by 600 teachers.

But the 8,800 secondary school students will have the benefit of 500 instructors.

This means there will be one teacher for every 16 high school students, while the ratio is about one to 36 in the elementary grades.

Either our elementary school teachers are very talented or they are very overworked.



The Economic Long Hard Winter

If Party Rallies PCs Could Win

By DON O'HEARN

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — As the fifth, and almost certainly the last, session of the 29th legislature gets underway conversation naturally is centering on the public opinion polls.

On top of the surprise poll of a few weeks ago which showed the Liberals running well ahead of the government there now has been a further poll which reported the Liberals actually increasing their lead to nearly 12 points.

And the conjecture on all sides is what this actually may mean.

It certainly doesn't mean the Liberals will win the election when it is held.

There are many developments which could occur between now and then.

The government might come up with an appealing program, though the chances of that appear less and less.

Or the Liberals might make some prize boobs (Leader Bob Nixon, for example, appears to be favoring giving school teachers the right to strike. A move which would have doubtful acceptance in the public mind).

But it also does mean that running as far ahead as they apparently are the Grits do have a real chance of ending the long term of PC power.

Forecasting elections is always a risky business.

Even though a party may be well ahead in the popular vote the number of ridings it wins can depend on the distribution of its vote.

In this regard it was interesting to see the Liberals apparently ahead of the other two parties in the big cities.

These major centres have been its greatest weakness and evidently it is overcoming this.

There also is the question of the scare element in the undecided vote.

It is said that a great many Conservatives are deserting the party and will abstain from voting in the election.

But if they see the real possibility of a party defeat they could go through last minute changes of mind and rally round.

Envoy to Peking Possibility for Richard Nixon

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Richard Nixon, now stripped of the staff allowed him temporarily under a piece of U.S. legislation called the Former President's Act, is, we are told, hankering after a new role.

He is recuperating from his severe phlebitis and other related ailments which suddenly had smitten a once very healthy president at the time of his demise. Some very gloomy and, one suspects, hateful press commentators said he would not have the will to recover from them.

But there he was last week, still unrepentant, still not a word about the calumny of his presidency where Watergate was concerned, as a guest of honor at a luxurious testimonial dinner in a luxurious place, the home of publisher Walter Annenberg, an old Nixon friend, the man Nixon made U.S. ambassador to Britain.

Maybe it wasn't meant to be a "testimonial" dinner per se. But some of the elite there, including a paunchy Frank Sinatra, made it so by still saying nice things about Richard Nixon.

The former president's main concern might be financial rather than any restoration of a public role which he is reputedly seeking.

A Dec. 27 act of Congress set Mr. Nixon's transition allowance at $100,000 with another $100,000 allocated for the period Feb. 9 (the day he resigned) to June 30, 1975.

The recent act of Congress based on the 1958 act which was designed to make former presidents financially secure for life, puts the former president in a personal financial squeeze.

It appears that $55,000 of Mr. Nixon's $60,000 a year presidential pension (which he would not have received at all if Congress had impeached and dismissed him), must come from the second $100,000. And a limit of $96,000 is placed on all U.S. government services from which he benefits but does not receive directly.

Mr. Nixon's still-serving marine corps military aide, Col. Jack Brennan, is quoted in New York Times as estimating that this leaves Mr. Nixon with only $45,000 for expenses including the pay of his four remaining staff members.

And worse, says Col. Brennan, he will have a meagre $7,000 left for postage and long-distance phone calls, the latter a vital element to Mr. Nixon who has been contacting friends all over the country by phone.

And then he still owes $460,000 in federal and state of California income taxes, about $130,000 in unpaid legal fees and has a newly-negotiated $500,000 mortgage on his Pacific Coast mansion.

All in all, it might be shortage of money, more than anything else which could project the former president into seeking, believe it or not, a government job.

And when you were president of the United States, any such job, no matter how high in the spectrum, like ambassador to the People's Republic of China which tantalizes him, would have to be a minor post.

This bizarre and demeaning revelation of the former president's finances and secret hopes for a "comeback," strongly suggest we have not heard the last from Richard Nixon.

As long as Mr. Ford is president, he will maintain, without admitting it, a watchdog role over his mentor and the man who selected him for vice-president.

There may still be a Richard Nixon to "kick around" to borrow his own famous phrase from the early 1960s, if Ford or someone else agrees to let him come back in some capacity or other into American public life. Unlikely yes, but not impossible.

Automation Plays Role In Telephone System

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

It was 101 years ago that Alexander Graham Bell made his first telephone call, in Brantford, Ont.

Some telephone users would dearly love to return to that August day in 1874—when there were no busy signals, no wrong numbers, no officious secretaries to pretend that Mr. Jones is in a meeting while they try to find out why you want him.

But as the second century of the Telephone Age begins, telephonic communication appears to be on the verge of some mind-bending break-throughs.

What has been keeping it on the verge, and preventing it from breaking through, seems to be a deep-seated public reluctance to accept new ways.

"Many people simply do not like talking to a machine," said Barry Presement, managing director of Acuphone (Ontario) Ltd. of Toronto.

"They would prefer to talk to a totally unqualified, totally inept temporary secretary rather than a machine that records the exact words of the party they are calling." Mr. Presement wrote in an article for CA Magazine.

But for those willing to make use of today's technology in telephone - related communications systems (TRCS), the opportunities are striking.

Overcome your reluctance to talk by telephone to a tape recorder, and you can:

—Leave a message for anyone who calls you while you are away from home or office. This can be a simple statement as to when you will be back, or a commentary on the day's developments for your clients.

—"Stack" messages from others, while you concentrate on finishing an important task without interruption.

—Have your calls redirected automatically from your office to any phone in the world.

Mr. Presement tells of a land develop who is often in Florida, but would rather have clients assume he is in his Toronto office; any calls to the Toronto office are automatically redirected to his Miami office when he is there—something like having a 1,700-mile extension phone.

A more common use is in the one-person office with a TRCS unit that takes messages whenever the office is unattended.

The growing trend toward flexible working hours will increase the use of such systems. If an executive and his secretary work 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., for example, they would almost certainly need facilities to record calls coming in before 11 a.m.

His Honor Judge Wills, an enthusiastic member of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club says he would like to see the Canada Cup race revived — which would bring the United States and Canada closer together in water racing. There are two sloop-rigged yachts on the Bay which are eligible to challenge: Tremaire of Belleville and the Cara Mia of Kingston. This challenge will be considered at the meeting to be held at the yacht club in the near future.

Belleville Retail Merchants' Association held their monthly meeting on Monday evening. Reports were given by delegates to the 32nd Annual Convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, held in Toronto in February. It was decided locally to ask the government to exempt the retail trade from the provisions of the Unemployment Insurance Act — since employees of stores were more permanently employed than other workers — and in the meantime the matter is to be studied with the idea of evolving an alternative.

A total of 40 new recruits were secured for the Argyll Light Infantry last evening — the first night of recruiting. The Battalion is reported to be about one-third full at the present time. The nominal strength is given at 225, all ranks.

Belleville Needs Sidewalks

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

May I please use your editorial page to thank the Canadian Post Office on behalf of the citizens of Belleville for discovering a way to get sidewalks constructed here. For a city of this size Belleville must surely be among the very worst for sidewalks. My family and I have lived in Windsor, Burlington, Oshawa, Peterborough and Scarborough before Belleville but have never been exposed to such a serious neglect of sidewalk construction.

Since the city is actively looking for Centennial projects may I suggest some decent sidewalks on at least one side of some of the busier thoroughfares, such as Avondale Road. This street is a bus route and the city has seen fit to reduce the speed limit to 25 m.p.h., in an attempt to reduce the hazard to pedestrians. A sidewalk along this road would make the trip to school safer for many west end children, eliminate the expense associated with police radar control of Avondale Road, and possibly improve the appearance presented by the unsightly ditches on both sides of the road.

I suppose, however, that Avondale Road won't get sidewalks because that street is the same as it was last year, and the year before that, and the year before that... At least this is the quality of logic that Mrs. Jeffrey is presenting to Mr. Mackasey in Ottawa about Sidney Street.

Please, Mr. Mackasey, terminate mail delivery on Avondale Road before one of my children or someone else's is injured.

Fate of Nursing School

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I am writing this letter to solicit your help.

The Quo Vadis School of Nursing now in its eleventh year, espoused policies geared to the mature student. The community colleges have since 'taken over' the nursing schools in Ontario.

Yesterday our Director of Nursing Miss M. McKenzie was forced to resign. Is there nothing we can do to stop the 'phasing out' of our school by Humber College.

On Wednesday, March 12, the ex-students are having a mass meeting at the school in Etobicoke to protest such a procedure.

Interest on Wage Demands

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Such is the power of compounding wage demands that if an employee making $10,000 was granted a 20 per cent increase every year on a one-year contract — his salary in the fifth year would be $29,859 ballooning in the 10th year to $74,099. Anyone for Minister of Finance?

New Board Members Elected in Bancroft

Careful budgeting and a reduced residence program resulted in a surplus of $363 for 1974, according to the financial statement of the Hastings County Children's Aid Society read at the annual meeting Tuesday night.

An audience of more than 100 CAS staff, members and municipal representatives gathered at North Hastings Senior Elementary School in Bancroft to hear 1974 reports and to elect officers to the CAS board for 1975.

Retiring board chairman Allan Bronson stressed that CAS membership is now open to all Hastings county voters except for CAS staff. From this membership the following board was elected:

Municipal representatives Peter Aziz, Wallace Dever, Brian Knudsen, Tom Barton, Frank Graham and Russ Holly; foster parents representative Orville Badinsky; lay members (for one-year term), Ernest Belch, Ralph Blatchford, John Irwin, Leo McKenney, Mary Sills and Robert Yager; (for two-year term) Brian Bennett, Jack Bush, John ay, Nan Morgan, Harriet O'Brian, Mavis Simmons and Betty Meeker. Past chairman Allan Bronson will also serve on the new board.

Brunelle Assesses Needs of CAS

The ways in which social change has affected the Children's Aid Society were examined by Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services, in his speech to the annual meeting of the Hastings County CAS Tuesday evening.

"In the last 10 years alone, there have been dramatic changes" he said.

"We must assess the areas of change which significantly affect the CAS role. We must ask ourselves how we can mobilize our scarce resources to meet our major concerns."

Mr. Brunelle cited the redefinition of sex roles as one of the social changes that has affected CAS policy.

"We are reviewing the child welfare act as a result of new dual parental responsibility," he said. "We are considering single parents — their number has risen 30 per cent in five years — as a top priority issue.

"We are including more counselling to help families adjust to this change. Increased government funding will allow CAS staff growth in order to provide more family guidance."

Another change mentioned by Mr. Brunelle was the decline in the number of babies needing adoption, and the rise in the number of teen-agers needing CAS care or counselling.

The growing emphasis on preventive services is a recent and common feature of Children Aid Societies across the province, said Mr. Brunelle.

"I am pleased to announce that a government grant, to cover the cost of a child care workers for 10 months, will assist this CAS in its preventive projects."

A committee has been formed within the community and Social Services ministry in response to the Hansen report, to assess and question the various changing roles of the CAS, he said.

Director Kerr Describes 'Past Year of Change'

Highlights of CAS services in Hastings county were noted by Director Bruce Kerr in his annual report. He noted that less costly group care facilities had been instituted; that the adoption department, now a separate functioning unit, placed 49 children in adoption in 1974; that 60 divorce investigations were carried out; and that consultation and counselling services in all areas were increased.

The need for greater financial support from the province was stressed by Mr. Kerr. Funds are especially needed, he said, in the care of delinquent children, a growing CAS responsibility in addition to the traditional protection of neglected children.

Mr. Kerr credited out-going board chairman Allan Bronson with hundreds of volunteered hours spent serving the Children's Aid Society.

Try These Good-for-supper Casseroles

The definition of what exactly a casserole is — or isn't -- usually comes down to a few generalizations.

It gets baked in the oven in a heavy pot or casserole dish.

It has several ingredients, and usually one of them is a starchy food such as rice, noodles or macaroni.

It most often provides a complete meal so that is has the advantage of being easy to serve.

But perhaps its best-known feature is that it provides a marvellous hiding place for otherwise rejected — but still tasty — leftovers.

Cooked meat, fish or fowl can all find new status when mixed with a flurry of curry, paprika, ginger or pepper, a dash of this and a cupful of that.

Leftover vegetables, such as beans, cauliflower, carrots and boiled potatoes or small amounts of corn, peas, asparagus or broccoli, can become super ingredients for tasty casserole.

Put any of these together with cream of mushroom soup, a little onion and some grated sharp cheese. Baked with a topping of cheese and crisp crumbs, this casserole provides a perfect accompaniment for a simply prepared meat dish, with hard - cooked eggs, chopped and added, it can serve as a supper itself.

Here are a number of recipes for casserole meals. With all of them, your own — and your family's — taste can play a decisive role in the seasoning that you use.

Chicken Casserole

two cups cooked chopped chicken one cup diced celery
½ cup chopped onion
¾ cup frozen peas
¾ cup frozen corn
one cup cooked rice
one cup cooked rice
1 ½ cups white sauce or one can cream of mushroom soup
parmesan cheese

Combine all ingredients in a two-quart casserole. Cover and bake at 325 degrees for 25 minutes. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese and bake uncovered an additional 10 minutes until cheese is melted.

Mediterranean Casserole

¾ lb. ground beef
one egg
½ cup bread crumbs
one can whole tomatoes
one green pepper
two ribs celery
one large onion oregano
basil
½ cup raw rice

Combine ground beef, bread crumbs and egg with oregano and basil to taste. Form into small meatballs, about the size of a large walnut.

Meanwhile, heat tomatoes to simmering. Brown meatballs in a skillet in a little oil. Preheat oven to 375. Remove meat balls to an oven proof dish with a lid.

Cut green pepper and onion in rings, chop celery into large pieces. Brown in skillet and remove to casserole. Heat and stir rice for three minutes in same skillet until transparent. Add rice to casserole and pour hot tomatoes over. Cover and bake for 25 minutes.

Aunt Louella's Casserole

one lb. hamburger
one can or pkge. chinese noodles
one can cream of mushroom soup one can mushrooms or eight ounces fresh mushrooms one large onion, chopped five stalks celery, chopped one cup walnut pieces (or almonds)
salt and pepper
parsley, thyme and rosemary OR soy sauce, ginger and allspice
worcestershire sauce
¼ cup dry sherry (optional)

Turn the oven to 350 degrees. Brown the hamburger in a frying pan and drain off the fat. Add the mushrooms, celery, onion and nuts to the meat, and mix before adding the mushroom soup (undiluted). Season with salt, pepper and worcestershire sauce to taste, and add whichever combination of seasonings you prefer.

Add the sherry when you transfer this mixture to a casserole dish, mixing in half the noodles at this time. Then cover the casserole with the remaining noodles and bake the dish for half an hour or until you can see it bubbling.

Country Style Tuna Casserole

1¼ cups (1 pound) fresh, shelled lima beans four cups (about 6 whole) sliced summer squash (frozen zucchini, thawed)
¼ cup highly polyunsaturated margarine
¼ cup flour
two cups buttermilk
½ tsp salt
¼ tsp. nutmeg
two cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna
one cup (4 ounces) shredded Mozzarella cheese

Heat salted water to boiling in large saucepan; add limas and cook for about 10 minutes, then add sliced squash an cook 15 minutes longer. Remove from heat and drain.

Meanwhile, make sauce by melting margarine in medium saucepan, blend in flour, then gradually stir in buttermilk. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. Sprinkle sauce with salt, sugar and nutmeg.

Combine drained limas, squash, sauce and tuna in 6-cup casserole. Sprinkle with mozzarella cheese. Bake in 400 degree oven 15 to 20 minutes until heated. Recipe makes 4 to 6 servings.

Ann Landers

They Want to Help Their Boy

Dear Ann Landers: Our 19-year-old son is making his father and me crazy. Greg was always extremely handsome and had a great many friends, both male and female.

Age the age of 17 he announced he no longer believed in God because "God hasn't done anything for me lately." He now is into something called Karma which is part of an Eastern religious cult.

During his seconnd year of college Greg sought the help of a psychiatrist who, it turned out, was gay, so he quit going. (At least thats our son's story.)

Also during his second year of college Greg asked permission to bring a girl home for Christmas vacation. He said they were "in love." My husband and I were so thrilled we allowed them to sleep together in his room. Greg said they were sleeping together at school, so "why sweat it?"

Our joy was short-lived when we received a call from the girl last week saying Greg had fallen for a guy and was dragging him along on their dates. She was calling it quits.

We want our son to be happy and will accept him either straight or gay, but I have a feeling he can, with the proper help, lead a normal, heterosexual life. Is there any way we can help our boy?—Troubled Parents

Dear Parents: You can do nothing to help your son except let him know you love him, no matter which road he chooses to travel

Obviously, Greg is bisexual. His preference may change again from guys to girls or he might be a switch-hitter for the rest of his life. But if he wants to be straight he'll have to get intensive therapy. It's a long, difficult, unsure, and expensive undertaking. But others have made it and perhaps he can, too, if he wants to badly enough.

Dear Ann Landers: For 17 years I've been married to a man who refuses to discuss family problems although his mother is one of them, his brother is another, and our three children are being raised as if they were fatherless.

I've tried every conceivable approach, from "Dear what should we do about . . ." to, "You really must help me make this decision," and finally, "For God's sake, give me a hand with this problem."

Either he continues to read the paper or he'll mumble something that sounds like, "I can't think of a thing . . ." He is a brilliant businessman and I know he has a lot on his mind these days, but who doesn't? What can I do?—High Blood Pressure

Dear H.B.P.: After 17 years you are not going to change your husband so you'd better accept the realities of the situation before you pop an artery.

Get some counseling and pay someone to listen to you. It's cheaper than a stroke.

Dear Ann Landers: A woman I work with asked me to make a condolence call with her tomorrow evening. I asked, "Who died?"

She said, "A cousin, twice removed. I hadn't seen her in four years but I'll get to see lots of relatives and they'll have a very nice assortment of food."

I told her I'd feel out of place. She insists that when people are grieving they are glad to see anybody Should I go?—Miss Q

Dear Miss: No. You'd be out of place. What's more, that clod who invited you must be short on activities and long on spare time.

Reading to Blind Student Gives Purpose to Volunteer

A few days ago I told you about a certain volunteer helping an almost-blind girl through college by reading English classics to her.

What a beautiful kind of volunteer work! Considering the fact that she is also the mother of a family, works full time herself, prepares dinner and then gets out to do her voluntary job, you can see that she is no slouch.

She says she gets more kick out of doing this than anything. To quote her, "I have to have a purpose; not just idle visits and chatter". The almost-blind girl is not the only person she helps with studies. She also has a male student, completely blind, who is studying something like theoretical mathematics.

She quips that in one way or another she is getting a high class university education.

Dear Doris: I'm 18 and taking a teacher's course. Last year I fell in love and at Christmas I got an engagement ring.

Then my fiance began to date a 16-year-old from the town he works in. I confronted him with it, we made up, then broke up again later, he asked for his ring. During that six weeks I lost 10 pounds, couldn't eat, was continually sick to my stomach.

Now he comes some week ends, and it all sets me crying and heartsick again. If anyone looks at me, at times, I get choked up. He says he wants his freedom but that he still loves me. He needs time.

Doris, I love him. Why should I when he has hurt me like this?

End of My Rope.

Dear End of My Rope: I'm sorry — dreadfully sorry. You have taken a lot of hurt.

This young man wants to have his cake and eat it too. He is enjoying his young new date, and has not the discipline to stay with his promise to you. The engagement ring was premature.

Now is the time for you to straighten your spine and tell him you cannot see him again. If at some future time you are still free, and he wants to come back with serious intentions, you will consider it then.

A few years from now you may reflect on this period of your life and realize that he was merely a pup and that his was a puppy love. Being more mature and serious, you were ready for something more stable.

Dear Doris: I have about 200 books I would like to give away. They are all hardbound and an assortment of fiction, non-fiction, children's books and some reference books.

There are about 20 Reader's Digest Condensed Books, some of which I have read again after a lapse of 20 or 30 years. These never lose their appeal and I feel would make good reading matter for a mission school library or a small hospital.

I enjoy your column. I like your attitude and your approach to the problems of our young people.

Helen.

Dear Helen: In some parts of the world, reading matter is extremely scarce, and World Literacy of Canada, 692 Coxwell Avenue, Toronto, Ont. M4C 3B6, would be more than glad to tell you where; as well as how to send your books.

Also, Indian reservations in Canada have libraries which operate on extremely small budgets. For information about this write to, the Indian Centre, 210 Beverly Street, Toronto, Ontario.

(Have you asked Doris about your dilemma? Perhaps she can suggest a Canadian resource that will help. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Retailer Of Year Fined $1

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Alastair McBride, previously named Kingston's retailer of the year, has been convicted under the Lord's Day Act of keeping his store open on a Sunday last November and fined the minimum penalty of $1.

Judge P. E. D. Baker said Monday the minimum penalty was sufficient because Mr. McBride's corner store is "a family-involved business" and the Sunday opening did not involve a substantial number of employees.

Mr. McBride, chosen retailer of the year by the Kingston Ad and Sales Club, said Tuesday he intends to continue opening his store Sundays.

"People depend on corner stores on Sundays when they run out of milk, baby food and other necessities," he said. "I really believe that the police department and the judges realize this but the politicians whose duty it is to update the laws have failed to keep pace with the times."

Police Chief Roland Smith said that unless complaints are filed, police have no intention of prosecuting other businesses which open Sundays.

Trudeau Interviewed on BBC

LONDON (CP) — The personal life of Prime Minister Trudeau got a thorough airing here Tuesday night in an hour-long BBC television interview.

Trudeau's childhood, his political and philosophical development and the influence of his marriage all were presented to British television viewers in the prime-time telecast, taped last month in Ottawa.

"I think if there is any one constant in my thinking it is to be against the establishment or the accepted ideas of the day," he said, adding later this attitude might be connected partly with his father's death when Trudeau was only a child.

"Probably I lost the object of my revolt in the family and didn't have to fight my father, so I went out and fought other people like my teachers, or the church, or politicians or whatever happened to be established."

Trudeau said his discipline always tended to be self-imposed and he considered himself "a loner" in his formative years, which affected his political life for a time because he did not consider himself "a team player."

"I think when I went into the 1968 campaign, it was with this spirit. You know, obviously I would like to win, but (I was) rather relaxed about the possibility of not winning.

"This perhaps created what appeared to be a devil-may-care attitude which caught on. . . . It's only in later elections that I realized that I had been prime minister, that I had some things I wanted to see done and that I could be a leader, reasonably make cabinet work and reasonably behave in Parliament and in the country."

The prime minister said his marriage four years ago to Margaret Sinclair, in her 20s, has helped him "understand new values" and the interests of young people.

He acknowledged that the marriage also has put pressure on his wife, who spent several days in hospital last fall for treatment for depression.

"I think husbands, particularly when they are as busy as I was, are not as sensitive to that as they should be. Hopefully, we learn."

Maclean's to Publish Fortnightly in Fall

TORONTO (CP) — Maclean's, a monthly Canadian magazine, announced Tuesday that it will begin publishing every second Monday and introduce a 16-page news section, as of Oct. 6.

The magazine, founded in 1905, said in a news release that it will open bureaus across Canada, in Washington and in London, England, and said it eventually will expand its news section to include United States and international news as it affects Canadians.

Donald G. Campbell, president and chief executive officer of Maclean-Hunter Ltd., said Tuesday in a speech to the Advertising and Sales Club of Toronto that he hopes the move will have a positive effect on Canada's magazine industry.

"A truly Canadian magazine is something which many people in this country have wanted for a long time. To truly meet the needs of all Canadians, this magazine will have to be outstanding."

He said the magazine would not "duplicate the daily newspaper," but would "offer Canadians a snapshot of the meaning and direction of the events that shape our lives.'

Mr. Campbell said bylines will be used on all major stories and the magazine also will publish five major features in each issue, including a profile of a famous person.

Peter Newman, editor of MacLeans, said in a statement that the "new Maclean's will be less concerned with the running account of events than with an evaluation of the kind of times the events add up to and, that established, how to respond to them."

Paintings Recovered

PARIS (Reuter) — Fourteen stolen paintings, among them works by Courbet, Van Dongen, Renoir and Pissaro, have been recovered after a six-month inquiry, police said Tuesday. The paintings, stolen from two Paris art galleries last September and October, were found in a Paris apartment.

Farmers to Get Subsidy Plan by May

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Agricultural Minister William Stewart said Tuesday the province's farmers may expect some form of subsidy program to become effective before May crops are planted.

He said in an interview that controls to stop the loss of Ontario farmland to urban growth and development must be part of any plan to sustain agricultural production.

The minister also said a subsidy program may be federal or provincial or a combination of both.

The government's throne speech Tuesday promised measures to provide Ontario farmers with a "reasonable assurance of the profitable, continuing operation of their vital enterprise."

Premier William Davis told a news conference that farmers require "some security of a reasonable return on their investment so we can get the farmers to stay on the land."

Meanwhile, in London, Ont., the president of the National Farmer's Union accused the minister of laying an election plank with his promises to farmers.

"There's nothing new in the idea that governmints undertake attractive programs in election years" said Walter Miller of Tara, Ont.

And Art Haas, secretary of the Middlesex County Federation of Agriculture, said Mr. Stewart is "taking a calculated risk" in offering the program before an election.

Mr. Stewart said his ministry is studying a voluntary farm assurance fund to which both farmers and the government may contribute.

"We want to see exactly what the federal government's bill will mean for farmers before we decide precisely what action we should take.'

The Federal Agricultural Products Stabilization Act, recently given first reading in Parliament, guarantees farmers minimum earnings equal to 80 per cent of their average earnings in the last five years.

M. Stewart, who will be in Ottawa next week to meet with federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, said if the federal program does not guarantee enough, Ontario will supplement it.

Investing Controls Due Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Tuesday he hopes federal and provincial officials can agree on a new set of foreign investment controls "within a few weeks."

These are the controls Mr. Gillespie had planned to have in effect before the end of last year.

The Foreign Investment Review Act, passed in December, 1973, contained two parts. The first, covering takeovers, now is in effect and the second, covering expansion of foreign-controlled firms is yet to be proclaimed.

The delay has been caused by a federal commitment to get provincial agreement on rules for applying the legislation when it is implemented.

'Deprogrammer' Denies Catholic Abducted

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — A man who terms himself a religious deprogrammer said in an interview Tuesday he is able to disprove charges that he abducted an Orangeville, Ont., woman from a Roman Catholic community house.

Ted Patrick said Debby Dudgeon, 21, came to his San Diego Calif., home voluntarily because she wanted to get away from Bethany House near Orangeville "to think for a couple of weeks."

Miss Dudgeon, now back in Bethany House, said Monday she was abducted last fall to be deprogrammed by Mr. Patrick. She said her parents hired him to make her recant her Roman Catholicism and return to the United Church faith and her home.

She said she later agreed to spend two weeks at Mr. Patrick's San Diego home on the condition she be allowed to attend mass and call her friends at Bethany House.

Mr. Patrick, a former assistant to California's ex-governor Ronald Reagan, says he has deprogrammed as many as 48 religious cultists in one week. He said Miss Dudgeon spent her time in San Diego visiting tourist attractions.

He said he has proof she rented cars in her own name and was free to go to a nearby Roman Catholic Church. He also said he has tape recordings of all her telephone conversations.

Provincial Games Pose Problem

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville alone could not accommodate the thousands attracted to the city by Ontario's winter or summer games.

But there is one solution — if the city gets either of the games for its 1978 centennial year:

The overflow could be housed in surrounding communities and bused to the centres of sports activities in the city, Clifford Belch recreation director, said Thursday.

Both parks and recreation officials have been contemplating the community problems posed by such events — estimated to involve up to 2,000 participants aside from visiting spectators.

The city's convention bureau has indicated Belleville alone could not handle such numbers, the parks and recreation-arena committee were told Thursday, by Mr. Belch.

The possibility of programming the games into city centennial celebrations was first debated in January when the community and social services ministry sounded out city hall on holding the games in 1975 or 1976.

Although the city has made no formal application for a 1978 event, Mayor Robin Jeffrey recently wrote the ministry to indicate Belleville's interest in the possibilities.

The way the situation stands now: The mayor said she had this week received a reply from Robert Secord, director of the ministry's sports and recreation bureau, saying the city's letter is being kept on file "for future reference".

"So he doesn't say yes or no," commended Joan Guthrie, recreation - arena committee member.

Under His Wing

Robbie Guarasci is just one of family of six which have shouldered responsibility for welfare of this pigeon. It's been living with them since they found it injured near their Diamond Crescent home in east-end Belleville during storm last Friday.

Handicap Centre Suggested

A small centre for the day-to-day treatment of handicapped children may be necessary in Belleville, says District Nurse Grant Young.

Mr. Young told Belleville Rotary Club this week a long-term problem is that the services of therapists at Belleville General Hospital are not being used.

The Rotary Club is one of more than 20 service clubs which support the work of the Ontario Scoeity for Crippled Children.

Mr Young said there are a lot of people requiring treatment for periods of perhaps a couple of weeks and for this kind of day-to-day work he thought there should be some facility.

Other programs either in being or in the offing, which Mr. Young outlined, include a baby-sitting centre, and starting in September, a day nursery.

Transit Strike Looms As Talks Break Down

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Conciliation talks between Belleville Transit Commission (BTC) and its 23 union employees broke down Tuesday and a bus strike now threatends the city.

Lawrence St. Pierre, a spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad and General Workers (CBRGW) representing the employees, said today "we are not fooling around and if we have to prove it to the city then we'll strike."

BTC manager Lewis McMullin confirmed today conciliation talks have broken down but added "hopefully we can get it settled before a strike."

Bus service in the city was temporarily disrupted Tuesday night between 6.15 and 8.45 p.m. while drivers and mechanics attended a union meeting.

It was the first service disruption in the city since talks began last November. The union's three-year contract expired Dec. 31.

"Union members voted overwhelmingly to give me a mandate to solve this matter," said Mr. St. Pierre, from the Sun Valley Motor Inn where talks took place.

Mr. St. Pierre said the union set its minimum wage increase at $1 an hour across the board. "This figure didn't even budge them (BTC)," he added. At one time the union was asking a $1.46 across the board.

Bus drivers now earn $4.45 an hour while the mechanics earn $4.75. The BTC wants a two-year contract while the union is seeking a one-year contract.

The conciliator, from the department of labor, in Toronto, left after talks broke down. He now will prepare a report for the government.

Mr. St. Pierre said the union can legally strike seven days after the report is handed down.

He said the 23 bus drivers and mechanics fell behind with the former three-year contract.

The BTC now operate 18 buses in its fleet.

My Patience Ran Out

Tishobia, a nine-month-old Doberman Pinscher, ran out of time as well as patience Monday afternoon on Bridge Street. Actually, the parking meter had just been struck by a motorist. The dog's owner, Bruce Prindle, 28½ Meyers Street, tied the young dog to the broken portion.

Lease Renewed

The city's parks board has approved renewal of the lease for the CNRA ballfield with the Canadian National Recreation Association of Belleville. The renewal is for one year.

Rec Reps. Gather

A conference of the Ontario Municipal Recreation Association East Central Zone will be held in Picton April 19, the city's recreation-area committee has been told. An earlier OMRA session is scheduled for Cobourg April 12.

Members Suggested

At its next meeting, city council will be asked to appoint Ralph Wilson of the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron to the city's Harbor Improvement Committee. Also, Doug Row will be suggested as a replacement for Bruce Lynch, to represent the Downtown Improvement Association.

Proper Presentation Museum Seminar Topic

A three-day seminar emphasizing the Human Approach of Orientation to History, sponsored by the Ontario Museum Association, concluded Tuesday at Glanmore House here.

It was one of several seminars being held this spring by the association to better acquaint museum people throughout Ontario with various facets of museum business.

Jean Van Nostrand, training co-ordinator for the association, said subjects included the importance of authenticity in interpretation of exhibits, historical information and costumes.

Also discussed were the pros and cons of costumes versus uniforms or street clothes worn by guides and interpreters, she said.

Workshops were conducted which involved impromptu interpretations of objects by seminar students, added Mrs. Van Nostrand.

Other subjects were hiring staff, training programs, day-to-day supervision of personnel, uniforms, costumes, street clothes, security and the involvement of the visitor in tours, demonstrations and participation programs.

'Super Bird' Adopts Diamond Cres. Family

As far as the Guarasci family is concerned the welfare of Super Bird is their pigeon

And it'll stay that way until Super Bird — which, despite its spectacular name is actually a pigeon — decides it's time to leave.

But unless it's incurably bird-brained, the pigeon might just have second thoughts about winging away from the doting Guarascis.

The family has been fussing over their feathered find since last Friday night.

That was the storm-whipped night when Domenic Guarasci, an Ontario Hydro employee spotted the pigeon in the roadway near his 16 Diamond Cresc. suburb.

The bird had an injured wing Mr. Guasaci brought it home

It became an instant hit with the family, that includes Greg 4, David, 6, Robert 7, and Jean, 8.

"He's become quite a household pet," says Cathy Guararci. "He even sits and watches television."

Between times, Super Bird — the name selected by the family youngsters — is comfortably ensconced in a specially-built bird-box in the kitchen. Three, it's fed a diet of popcorn seeds, bread and peanuts

"He doesn't seem to want to go," says Mrs. Guarasci.

When its wing heals the family will offer Super Bird its freedom "to see if he wants to go".

"But, if he wants to stay — well keep him," she says.

Centennial Lighting Sought

City parks and recreation officials will meet with Belleville's minor baseball representative following complaints over absence of lighting at Centennial ballpark diamond.

The decision came at a meeting of parks and recreation-arena boards Thursday.

The complaint, in a letter from Vi Christopher of the minor ball group, was prompted by a decision last month to study renovations needed at Alemite Park to accommodate a city team's entry into the major Ontario Fastball League.

Mrs Christopher said the minor ball association had waited two years for lighting at Centennial.

"We feel as if the recreation department is pushing us aside because we are small in number," she wrote.

She also complimented the department for its work for minor baseball, but re-iterated her group is "Irritated" that money is to be spent at Alemite Park when lights at Centennial "are really needed.

Clifford Belch, recreation director said he supported Mrs. Christopher's involvement in minor ball "very, very strongty" but felt the letter was "a little unfair."

He suggested a meeting to discuss the issue — a proposal supported by Mayor Robin Jeffrey

Dick Hurst, recreation-arena committee member, pondered if lighting at Centennial could also allow the park's outfield to be used for soccer.

Inquest Told Key Control On Train Not Activated

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — A coroner's inquest into the Dec. 20 head-on collision of two Canadian National trains near here entered its second day of proceedings Wednesday.

Opening testimony today came from Albert Caouette, a Canadian National mechanic, who inspected the wrecked engine of engineer Keith Boyle's train.

The crash took the lives of the engineers of both trains — Mr. Boyle, passenger train engineer Ray Mortimore and a female passenger Joanne Feeney.

Mr. Caouette's testimony centred on his discovery of broken pieces of a Vodka bottle and beer bottles in the cab of Mr. Boyle's freight train and the mechanical fitness of the engine.

He testified that one engine control was in "cut-out position". This particular control — when in the cut-in position — regulates the speed of the train from travelling faster than 65 miles per hour.

If that speed was exceeded with the control in its normally sealed position, the train's brakes would engage.

There was evidence that the train exceeded 65 miles per hour before the accident.

"All other controls were in their proper position," said Mr. Caouette.

During the first day of the inquiry, Tuesday, evidence was given surrounding the level of alcohol found in the body of freight train engineer Keith Boyle.

Testimony from a forensic pathologist from Kingston who conducted autopsies on the three crash victims showed Mr. Boyle "had likely injested alcohol within an hour of his death".

Subsequent testimony from a Toronto forensic sciences laboratory expert revealed the amount of alcohol in the engineer's blood measured 80 milligrams of alcohol to 100 millilitres of blood. There were also traces of alcohol in Mr. Boyle's urine.

Committee Briefs

500 Cyclists Expected

Some 500 cyclists may wheel through Belleville this summer — part of a Canada-wide curtain-raiser to next year's Olympic games.

The recreation-area committee Thursday agreed in principle with helping the cyclists on their way through the city.

About 5,000 cyclists plan to cross Canada to the Montreal Olympics in 1976.

This summer's tour with the smaller troupe is to familiarize the cyclists with the route, the committee was told.

Caboose Needs Facelift

The railroad museum piece at Zwick's Centennial Park has become a relic that needs a new caboose or, at least, immediate repairs.

That's the summation of Lloyd Syer, parks director who first brought the exhibit's state of disrepair to parks board attention some time ago.

Thursday he reported back to the board on inspection. It requested on the display — a locomotive-caboose — which was acquired from Canadian National Railways during Canada's 1967 Centennial Year for the park's official opening.

Santa Gets Auditorium

Following recent traditions, city authorities are permitting use of the Ben Bleecker Auditorium for assembly of the floats that make up Belleville's annual Santa Claus parade.

The city's recreation-arena committee Thursday approved its staff's recommendation that the facility be again available for six days to the organizers to build the mobile displays for the event — this year scheduled for Nov. 29.

Outings Not for Rich

Educational field trips can be a stress on parents who can't afford to send their children, says Belleville trustee Robert Ord.

a recent exchange visit be-deprived because of costs," explained Mr. Ord this week, who said he was referring to a recent exchange visit between a Hastings school and a Michigan school.

Acting director of education L.F. Reid assured Mr. Ord funds are available for class excursions.

He pointed out that all overnight excursions must have the consent of the director.

Mr Reid said schools have a fund designed to provide assistance for situations that arise when a student can not participate in a field trip or class project due to expense.

He also said schools sometimes seek the aid of service clubs or attempt to raise funds through their own projects or activities.

Parks Board Approves New Reservoir Site

Plans for a reservoir and a final linkup of a main water supply system in northeast Belleville won approval in principal from the city's parks board Thursday.

Belleville Utilities Commission this year plans to run a main under the Moira River hooking up its trunk system across the city's northend.

The main will link trunks now terminating at Cannifton Rd. at Adams St. on rivers east side and Bell Blvd. and North Park St. on the west side.

Meantime the BUC is planning a future reservoir along the link.

The board's acceptance-in-principal was for the underground facility to be sited on North Park, southwest of its own offices.

Selection of a site was necessary as soon as possible to facilitate planning, indicated Lloyd Syer, parks director, "even if it's not built for five years.

Brunelle Says More Aid Coming

BANCROFT — Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services, said Tuesday night he will be introducing a bill to the Ontario Legislature later this week that will increase provincial assistance to 80 from 60 per cent of the budget requirements of Children's Aid Societies.

Mr. Brunelle was speaking to the annual general meeting of the Hastings County Children's Aid Society held in North Hastings Senior Elementary School in Bancroft.

The projected increase, he said, will relieve the burden of assistance from municipal governments, which provide the other major source of income for CAS community services.

In Belleville, a 34-per-cent increase in the 1975 CAS budget submitted to city council will be decreased if the bill is passed at Queen's Park. It will be retroactive to January of this year, to include all budget increased in 1975, the minister said.

Board Boosts Canadian Texts

The Hastings county Board of Education has gone on record as supporting the writing of Canadian textbooks by Ontario's elementary and secondary school teachers.

Belleville trustee Richard Williams promp[illegible] confidence this week when he reminded fellow tru[illegible] the Canadian publishing industry has only improved from "horrible to bad in recent years.

He cited the Scarborough Board of Education as one which has publicly supported the writing of Canadian textbooks and materials by Canadian teachers.

The board unanimously supported the motion. Mr. Williams did admit that there has been some improvement in the general area of Canadian books in schools.

How the Water Works

Parks director Lloyd Syer explains a Belleville Utilities Commission plan for linking the north-city water supply system across the Moira River and suggested an underground site for reservoir, to parks and recreation-arena committees. Reservoir location recommended would be on North Park Street on parks development scheme.

Car Sales Strong Despite End of Rebates

The new-car sales rebate program fostered by the big three auto makers has done what it was designed to do, say three dealership spokesmen in Belleville.

As the affects of financial recession and the impact of energy conservation took hold of North America, the automotive industry emerged as the consumer scape goat. Sales plunged. Producer parking lots filled and as stock piled up hundreds of thousands of workers were laid off the assembly lines — particularly those in the United States.

To make buying a car a little less painful, Ford, General Motors and Chrysler each offered a cash rebate to the buyer following delivery of the vehicle. The size of the rebate depended on the model purchased.

Sales started to grow, but many dealers were predicting that when the rebate program expired Feb. 23, sales would take a second slump.

It hasn't happened.

Glen Cowieson, sales manager of Trudeau's said the rebate program worked very well and business "has been very brisk."

"That program gave our sales quite a boost —," he said. "So far, sales are holding firm even though the rebate is no longer being offered," he said.

Bill Sorg, sales manager at Elliott's said the rebate program "created a little bit of traffic — mainly towards the end of the program."

"Business is looking like it will hold firm," he said.

Dante Pace, manager of Fry Sales Ltd., was the most exuberant about the rebate program, He said it "worked fantastic."

Mr. Pace was the only dealership spokesman who would give some numerical indication of sales. He said the rebate system had upped his sales in the first two months of the year by about 18-20 percent.

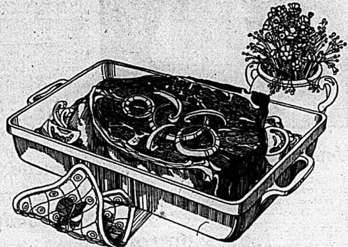
"Business wasn't quite as high for the first couple of days in March but now is picking up again" said Mr. Pace.

The program has done its job. "It has helped to move the small models," said Mr. Pace.

All three spokesmen said it was unlikely that another rebate program would be instituted soon. "There has been no mention of another scheme," said Mr Sorg.

Mr. Cowieson and Mr. Pace both said there is a danger of running short of cars as sales continue.

Meaty cuts to cut budgets.



Joan Fielden tells how:

Joan Fielden,
Dominion Home Economist Consultant
Jerry Aupers, Meat Manager

Here are a few helpful hints to note when you're buying meats. Meat becomes less tender with age. That's why most cuts of veal and lamb are very tender, while only certain parts of beef are particularly tender. But the important thing to note is that any cut of meat can be made tender with proper care in cooking. For instance, less tender cuts are best cooked with a liquid or marinated in a blend of oil, seasonings and a food acid such as lemon juice, vinegar, wine or tomato juice, to tenderize tissues. My recipe for this week makes a delicious dinner for six and calls for two pounds of Blade Steak.

Smothered Steak

Serves 6

2 pounds blade steak, bone in
¾ cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons fat
2 onions, sliced
2⅓ cups canned tomatoes
¾ cup chopped green pepper dash of hot pepper sauce

1. Mix flour with seasonings.
2. Dredge meat.
3. Brown meat on both sides in hot fat.
4. Cover steak with onion, tomatoes, and green pepper.
5. Add a dash of hot pepper sauce.
6. Roast in 300°F oven for 2 hours or until tender.

When we read our cookbooks, we see that most recipes for cooking meat assume that the meat has not been frozen or that it has been defrosted before cooking. However, it is possible to cook meat when it is frozen if additional time is allowed for the thawing which must occur during cooking. The following chart will serve as a guide to cooking meats which are frozen.

MY GUIDE TO COOKING FROZEN MEAT

ROASTS	Cook roasts one-and-a-half times as long as an unfrozen roast of the same size. Use a temperature of 275-300°F., increasing your cooking time. Insert a meat thermometer into the roast to be sure your meat is cooked to the desired degree of doneness.
STEAKS, CHOPS OR PATTIES	Place meat further from the source of heat. This will prevent it from burning and allow it to thaw and cook gradually. Your cooking time will depend upon the thickness, as well as the surface area of the meat.
PAN-FRYING	Cook your meat quickly until it is browned on both sides. This will insure that moisture is not lost. Then reduce the heat considerably and cook slowly, allowing the meat to cook thoroughly.
BREADING OR FLOURING	Thaw meat just enough so that the mixture will adhere to the surface of the meat.
CASSEROLES	When freezing casserole dishes and stews, be sure to allow enough sauce or liquid to cover all the solid pieces during freezing. Remember, it's always a good idea to have several frozen casseroles in your freezer for the times when extra company or unexpected guests drop by especially on busy days.

Gold Hunt Revived In Quebec

VAL D'OR, Que. (CP) — The recent high price of gold on international markets has sparked a renewed interest in exploration in the vast Abitibi region of northwestern Quebec.

Some observers say the gold exploration has reached the proportion of "une fievre de l'or" or gold fever.

However, unlike the gold rushes of Canadian and American history, thousands of prospectors with dollar signs in their eyes are not likely to invade such communities as Val d'Or, 255 miles northwest of Montreal.

Today's gold exploration is conducted by corporations and governments which are more cautious and sophisticated than the money-hungry adventurers who panned for gold by northern streams.

Maurice Latulippe, a geologist with the provincial natural resources department, said exploration activity increased 20 per cent in 1974 compared with 1973. He forecast another lively year for 1975.

Mr. Latulippe said at least six groups will be able to h[illegible] mining operations on nearby properties within two years, as long as the price of gold remains high.

There is a definite risk for the companies as the market is subject to wide fluctuations.

End costly repairs!

Enjoy doing yourself what it costs so much to hire someone else to do.

Sometimes getting home repairs and improvements done is like pulling teeth. Repairmen are costly. Often too busy to come just when you need them most.

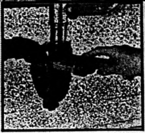
Why not do your own household repairs and maintenance and save money at the same time. It's easy with The New Illustrated Library of Home Improvement, a practical, easy-to-read and understand, illustrated reference on home repairs and improvements.

This brand new, up-to-the-minute library consists of 16 volumes that could save you hundreds of dollars in repair and maintenance bills whether you own your own home or live in an apartment. There are practical pointers on carpentry, plumbing, electrical work, masonry, painting and decorating, reupholstering, even gardening and complete interior and exterior home maintenance. Detailed diagrams with step-by-step photographs show you how to repair, remodel, refinish and renovate rather than replace things. The books' content is specifically designed to meet Canadian standards and requirements.

Unlike most do-it-yourself guides, The New Illustrated Library of Home Improvement also tells you when not to attempt your own repairs...when, in fact, it pays to have someone else do the work. There's also expert advice to help you keep costs at a minimum when you do need professional assistance.

In these days of rising prices, why pay extra for something you can do yourself just as well? And cheaper! Pick up Volume 1 this week and start doing the things it costs so much to hire somebody else to do.

An unfinished basement can easily become the showpiece of your home. Volume 7 has practical, step-by-step plans to help you do a perfect job and save hundreds of dollars.



Save on costly plumbing bills. Volume 11 shows you how to repair leaky pipes, dripping faucets, clogged drains and other common household plumbing problems.

Short of storage space? Volume 14 has hundreds of ideas for cabinets, shelves and corner hide-aways that anyone can build in their spare time just for the cost of materials.

Greenhouse

Helge Welling, greenhouse supervisor, checks plants in the greenhouse display room at the University of Alberta. More than $1 million in equipment, including 160 fluorescent lamps in each of the three large growth chambers, and 23 miles of electrical wiring are needed in the operation of the greenhouse, which shelters 1,000 different species of plants. (CP Photo)

Watering Plants Is a Day's Work

EDMONTON (CP) — It takes Albert Versteeg one day to water half the plants in his care; in an eight-hour day, that's 125 plants an hour.

He is not doing this volume of plant-watering in his living room. The 2,000 plants in Mr. Versteeg's care belong to University of Alberta and it is his job to see they are fertilized, watered, and sprayed for spiders and insects.

Mr. Versteeg looks after the forgotten plants on campus—the ones not housed in offices where they are cared for by office staff.

His are the plants along hallways and in corners or lounges, where the plant soils would probably get only stale cigarette butts instead of water if not for Mr. Versteeg.

The biggest watering stop on his trips around campus is the humanities centre, where there are 1,200 square feet of plants. For that job, he pulls a 35-gallon water tank around the building.

In one week, the plants in the humanities centre take about 140 gallons of water, Mr. Versteeg said.

A former flour-mill worker, he has been at the university for six years, four of which have been spent caring for the indoor plants, with some outside work during the summer.

He says that for the most part, people on campus respect plants—possibly because of Edmonton's climate.

Climate plays a significant role in another aspect of university plant life—the display room of the university research greenhouse. A change-of-pace getaway for staff, students and the general public, it attracts mainly foreign students from tropical climates.

Helge Welling, greenhouse supervisor, said foreign students are the ones who appreciate the greenhouse display room the most.

"It's like going home for many of them — a sort of escape from the ice and snow'."

More than $1 million in equipment, including 160 fluorescent lamps in each of the three large growth chambers and 23 miles of electrical wiring are needed in the operation of the greenhouse, which shelters 1,000 different species of plants.

In the controlled greenhouse setting, university researchers in the late 1950s developed a new variety of wheat in eight years—a relatively short time for that research period.

The greenhouse, however, attracts more than just graduate student researchers.

Fine-arts students wander through the display room sketching plants, and tours are arranged for the general public.

And sometimes the service is by telephone, as distraught amateur plant growers call to find out why their green-leaved charges are dying.

Mr. Welling cites one incident in which a man asked if he had been correct in stripping the bark off his plum tree on the advice of a neighbor who said it was growing too fast.

He told the man it had been the wrong thing to do.

THE SECRET STRENGTH OF DEPRESSION — Frederic F. Flack.

This reassuring and practical book by a prominent New York psychiatrist explains how the experience of depression can, for most people, lead to personal growth and strength. Dr. Flack outlines the symptoms of depression and how you can recognize it in yourself and others. He goes on to explain the difference between acute and chronic depression and their causes, when therapy is required and what to expect of it; also what drugs can do. He says that to recognize depression and seek professional help is nothing to be ashamed of. The constructive attitude is to do something about the problem.

THE COMPLETE BOOK OF NATURAL COSMETICS — Beatrice Traven.

Why natural cosmetics? This author says they are fresher, purer, less expensive and custom-tailored. Today's awakening of interest in raw natural food products has made ingredients available in health food stores, drugstores and supermarkets. Flower petals, herbs, lanolin, saffron, wheat germ — these are some of the items combined in 60 basic recipes for everything from face powders to bath oils.

THE HEART DOCTOR'S HEART BOOK — Marshall Franklin, Martin Krauthamer and A Razzak Tai.

This very readable book is intended to save lives. Three cardiologists and a dramatic writer have combined interviews and case histories to make clear the facts about heart disease and to describe recent developments in its treatment. New devices for diagnosing what is wrong, what the pacemaker can do and miraculous "by-pass" surgery are all included. And not forgotten is what the patient can do to increase his own chances for survival.

HOME FREE — Kathryn Gottlieb.

Kathryn Gottlieb sub-titles her book "High style on a shoestring budget" and covers everything one needs to know to beat the skyrocketing costs of furnishing a home — how to buy old things and use them with flair. Written with clarity and wit, the book is divided into four sections: (1) A general discussion of 19th and 20th century furniture still available and relatively inexpensive; (2) A guide to buying small household items; (3) Where to go to get used furniture; (4) How to repair less-than-perfect items. Truly a useful volume for the cost-conscious reader.

SICK KIDS — Max Braithwaite.

A by-word of hope and healing for one hundred years, the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children has earned a world-wide reputation. Developing from a tiny house in the Toronto slums of 1875 to a sophisticated institution constantly pioneering new research, its history as told by Max Braithwaite makes a heart-warming story. And most of all "Sick Kids" is the story of the children the hospital has helped, and the doctors and nurses who served them.

Being Lost in Bush Inspired Ad Business

REGINA (CP) — The experience of being lost in the bush of northern Saskatchewan gave Spence Bozack of Regina the impetus to start a business of his own.

"I learned that if you decide where you are going and stick to the compass, you'll get by," said the 28-year-old vice-president of Dome Advertising Ltd., an advertising company which he said will be "different."

The company, incorporated in October, 1974, captured the major account of Key West Homes Ltd. of Winnipeg in its first week in business. By emphasizing a "total" advertising package and extensive television promotion—never used before by home builders here—Dome has already forced competing real estate companies to increase their advertising activities.

With a capital outlay of $5,000 and a staff consisting of president Ionne Dombowsky, Mr. Bozack and a secretary, Dome is trying to remove the stigma that advertising agencies are "places out to rip off clients," Mr. Bozack said.

A five-point policy has been drawn up to achieve that aim. It states, in part, that each client will receive the personal attention of either or both the president and the vice-president.

Each client is guaranteed that the company will not contract its work to another company that may be offering a similar service.

They accept clients "only if we believe the existing advertising can be improved," Mr. Bozack said. The company offers a "total program" including writing, production, print layouts, media purchases, market analysis and consulting services.

Dome declines any affiliation with a political party—a lucrative client in an election year.

Mr. Bozack, formerly a television personality and producer with CKCK in Regina, said that in many cases, advertising agencies don't know what makes a certain promotion successful. Too often, agencies "write to impress other writers," without realizing that their artistic promotions may have little sales impact.

Breaking into advertising is difficult, Mr. Bozack said.

One of the biggest problems facing a young company is attracting initial clients. Dome usually places sales calls to prospective clients, then waits for further word. Some clients have been obtained through previous contacts, or on recommendations from satisfied clients.

The experience of being his own boss has been rewarding, said Mr. Bozack, who began in the media at the age of 18 and found the pressures of uncertain hours cutting too deeply into his family life.

"Sometimes I feel guilty because I'm enjoying myself so much," he said.

Prostitutes Rounded Up Before Liner's Arrival

BOMBAY (CP) — Hours before the Queen Elizabeth 2 berthed at Bombay, police squads were busy raiding the city's brothels.

Operation Red Light was intended to protect the ship's 1,800 passengers from being harassed during their stay by "undesirable elements"—the police euphemism for brothel-keepers, prostitutes and their agents.

During the five days the 65,863-ton luxury liner was in port, dozens of "dancing girls" were whisked off to prison or to special homes for the rehabilitation of prostitutes.

Bombay Evening News said one raid on a "luxury brothel" catering to foreign tourists netted 32 girls under the age of 21.

A senior officer of the vigilance branch of the Bombay police said brothel-keepers have been warned to keep away from foreign tourists.

"We just don't want these undesirable elements to give our country a bad name," he said.

But not all foreign tourists seem to want this kind of protection.

One passenger from the luxury liner said: "I am a good family man but was really looking forward to meeting some of Bombay's world-famous dancing girls."

He said an Indian diplomat had told him that a visit to Bombay must include a trip to one of the many "dancing houses" in central Bombay where Hindu dancing and music—as well as other activities—last till the early hours of the morning.

Another passenger told a government tourist guide that the mass arrests of "dancing girls" was "the most unimaginative thing a government interested in promoting international tourism can do."

But the police have not been moved by these protests.

"We are certain that the majority of Western tourists are really grateful to us for having extended this sort of protection to them," said one policeman. "We are not being puritanical but these so-called dancing girls are a menace."

Pressure Cooking Beef ...

Michelle Albany
Michelle Albany
Food City
Consumer Consultant

Many working homemakers tend to avoid buying the less expensive, less tender cuts of beef because they require long, slow cooking in moist heat. One way of " speeding up " this process and letting homemakers take advantage of the savings these cuts give is by pressure cooking. This week at Food City, the tenth leaflet of our series on beef is available. Don't forget to pick up " Pressure Cooking Beef " today!

Mrs. Albany will be talking with shoppers Friday March 14th at Brock Food City, 181 Brock St., Peterborough, from 1:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Please feel free to come in and ask questions relating to foods shopping.

Mrs. Albany is available to speak to groups. Write her at 300 The East Mall, Islington, Ontario M9B 6B8 or call (416) 259-6633.

Jack McKeon

Royals' Manager "Shoots" Runner, "Wires" Pitcher

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Jack McKeon, who once wired a pitcher for sound and fired pistol blanks at a base runner who kept missing the stop signal, thinks baseball is dull and stodgy.

"Let's face it, baseball is show business," the skipper of the Kansas City Royals said. "Some of us take it too seriously, especially the umpires.

"People come out to enjoy the game but they want a little pepper in their soup. Arguments with umpires are part of the tradition yet some umps are so tight they'll throw you out before you take two steps out of the dugout."

McKeon probably comes by his laconic approach to the game because he spent his entire 11-year playing career in the minors and kicked around them as a manager for 18 years before he got his break with the Royals in 1973.

His refreshing looseness turned Kansas City from a chronic loser into an American League contender

McKeon is most notorious for the wiring job he did on one of his pitchers, George Bamberger, in the Pacific Coast League in 1962.

McKeon worked out the system with two electronic experts. Nobody knew it except the pitcher, catcher and the wire men.

"I was managing Vancouver at the time and we decided to use it in the second game of a doubleheader against Tacoma. It worked swell. Bamberger carried this little gadget—no bigger than a pack of cigarettes—in his shirt pocket. I could signal him but he couldn't talk back.

"Only trouble was, we got so busy we forgot to tell the rest of the team. I gave a signal for a throw to first and Ray Looney got the throw in the middle of his chest."

McKeon was managing Wilson, N.C., in the Carolina League in 1960 when he had a young Cuban of whom he said could "run like a gazelle but he was short on the English language.

"He kept blowing my stop signal at third base," said McKeon. "I warned him, 'I'm going to shoot you if you do that again.'

"I was walking down the street when I saw one of those blank pistols in a novelty shop. I bought it. Sure enough, the next day, the guy's on first and there's a single up the middle. Here comes Sandy busting around third and heading for home.

"I yank out the gun. Bang, bang. He hit the ground and slid 20 feet. First time he made it safe, but it took us two days to convince him he wasn't dead."

Quebec Foursome Takes Its Lumps

EDMONTON (CP) — Manitoba and Alberta continued their unbeaten ways in the 1975 Canadian schoolboy curling championship Tuesday night, but their continuing march toward a possible showdown Friday morning was overlooked by many.

About half of a crowd of more than 500 at the Edmonton Derrick Club sympathized with Quebec skip Barry Ness and his squad from Ormstown, who almost certainly set a two-round national curling record for futility.

The Quebec team curled well before dropping a 3-1 victory to Alberta—one of the co-favorites—in the fourth round Tuesday afternoon, then performed even better in a 5-2 defeat by Manitoba, considered Alberta's strongest competition.

In the two 10-end games, Ness and his mates participated in 11 blanked ends, virtually unheard of at any level. It was said unofficially that the afternoon 3-1 score was the lowest in the history of the national schoolboy competition.

"Either I didn't blank enough ends or I blanked the wrong ones," said Ness after the second tough defeat in a row.

He spoke less than an hour after he watched Manitoba skip Jim Quinn of Flin Flon collect a decisive and fortunate four on the seventh end of the fifth-round contest.

The vital shot was noticeably narrow as Quinn left the hack. But the rock struck one of his own rocks outside the house and bounced on to one of three Manitoba stones which appeared almost certain to count. It caromed into the rings and started a reaction that cleaned out the Quebec rocks.

The shattered Ness—who admitted "I could have killed him when I saw the stones start to move" then missed his last rock and left Quinn a simple shot for four.

In the afternoon draw, Ness made a brilliant double-takeout with his last rock on the ninth end, but missed another double in the 10th to let Barry Gowsel of Calgary escape with the clinching point.

After the smoke had cleared, Manitoba and Alberta were deadlocked in first place with identical records of five wins and no losses.

Northern Ontario and British Columbia each had four wins and one loss while Nova Scotia had three wins and a loss. Ontario and Saskatchewan each had three wins and two losses, while Quebec was left with one win and three defeats. Prince Edward Island had one win against four losses while Newfoundland, the Territories and New Brunswick were winless in five starts.

Nova Scotia and Quebec will make up a delayed game Thursday morning.

Alberta retained its share of the lead by defeating Bill Jenkins and his Prince Edward Island rink from Charlottetown 9-6 at night. Manitoba thumped the Territories entry led by Jim Ramsden of Whitehorse, Y.T., 7-3 in the afternoon draw.

Northern Ontario's Dale Leskinen rink of Red Rock and the British Columbia foursome from Prince George sparked by skip Dave Johnston kept pressure on the leaders with two victories each.

Johnston led his crew to a 7-4 victory over Nova Scotia's Scott Saunders foursome from Lunenburg in the afternoon round and followed with a controversial 7-6 extra-end triumph over the Dave Velanoff crew of London, representing Ontario. Leskinen had an easy time defeating Blake Gilks of Fredericton and his New Brunswick team 10-3 in the afternoon and thumped the Newfoundland rink led by Jeff Thomas of St. John's 7-5 in the evening draw.

Velanoff also dropped an upset 7-6 decision to Prince Edward Island in the afternoon when Velanoff's routine draw to the eight-foot ring with last rock coming home slipped through the house to give the Islanders a pair.

Saskatchewan's Earl Garratt rink of Regina downed Newfoundland 13-4 in the fourth round and topped the Territories 10-7 at night.

Johnston's triumph over Velanoff followed a minor discussion on the 10th end. Johnston's first rock created heavy movement of granite in the house and a stone g...ced off the sideboard and moved an Ontario counter.

After the rock was replaced, however, Johnston averted a possibly lengthy discussion when he found the four foot with his last stone in an extra end for the victory.

St. Louis on the Move

Blues' Rookie Blanks Flames

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Louis Blues, at the .500 mark for the first time since Jan. 4 at 27-27-13, have a chance to pull to within two points of the National Hockey League's Smythe Division lead when they take on the division co-leaders Chicago Black Hawks tonight.

Shutout goaltending by rookie Yves Belanger enabled the Blues to hold onto an early three-goal lead Tuesday night as they beat Atlanta Flames 3-0 at St. Louis.

The idle Hawks had the division lead with 71 points until Tuesday night's game in Vancouver where the Canucks tied Kansas City Scouts 3-3 and moved into a tie with the Hawks, four points ahead of the Blues.

In other NHL games Tuesday, Boston Bruins beat New York Rangers 6-3, Detroit Red Wings defeated New York Islanders 4-2 and Buffalo Sabres tied Los Angeles Kings 2-2.

Claude Larose, Bob Hess and Wayne Merrick scored unanswered first-period goals and the Flames were unable to fool Belanger for the rest of the game.

"I came so close (to getting a shutout) so many times that this one wasn't going to get by me," said Belanger. "I started thinking shutout as soon as the fellows scored those three quick goals. It was my first shutout in two years."

At Uniondale, N.Y., a mixup over the starting lineup brought a protest from the Islanders, but to no avail.

The official sheet had Jim Rutherford listed as the starting goalie for Detroit. But, just before the game began, goalie Bill McKenzie was on the ice. League rules call for a two-minute penalty on such an infraction.

But before play started, the official scorer called the referee and informed him of the mistake in the lineup. The Red Wings made the change and no penalty was assessed.

Islanders coach Al Arbour was incensed over the mixup and the fact that Detroit was not penalized. As it turned out, Rutherford started and was sensational, making 38 saves.

"That's two games in a row that we've run into sensational goalies," said Denis Potvin, Islanders defenceman.

Marcel Dionne scored three points, including his 39th goal, to break Gordie Howe's Red Wings record for most points scored in a season. Dionne now has 103 points. Howe scored 102 in the 1968-9 season.

Don Lever scored his 31st goal of the season and second of the game with less than five minutes remaining at Vancouver to give the Canucks the tie against the Scouts.

Lynn Powis had two goals for the Scouts and goalie Peter McDuffe had a busy night in the Kansas City goal, stopping 39 shots while Vancouver's Gary Smith made only 26 saves.

At Boston, a goal by Carol Vadnais with less than five minutes remaining broke a 3-3 tie and Phil Esposito added his 56th goal of the season and Don Marcotte his 28th to give the Bruins the victory.

Goalie Gerry Desjardins received approval Tuesday from league president Clarence Campbell to start play for Buffalo after he jumped last week from Baltimore Blades of the World Hockey Association.

Desjardins was in goal for the Sabres at Los Angeles and made 26 saves to help earn the tie against the Kings who jumped to a 2-0 lead midway through the game. The Sabres, outshooting the Kings 15-6 in the final period, got the tying goal from Peter McNab.

Jets' Big Line Is Handcuffed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Ron Ryan of New England Whalers figured the best way to stop high scoring Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets was to put the Whalers best defensive line on the ice at the same time as Hull's line.

The strategy worked better than Ryan had hoped.

Not only did his line of Fred O'Donnell, Larry Pleau and John French shut off Hull's line, but it accounted for four goals in the Whalers' 6-2 World Hockey Association victory Tuesday night.

O'Donnell scored three goals and defenceman Paul Hurley scored once with assists from Pleau and French.

"You can't ask for anything more than they did tonight," Ryan said. "We put them out there for defence and they not only did that job but they did a great job on offence as well. Those guys were really hustling."

In other WHA games Tuesday, Toronto Toros beat Phoenix Roadrunners 7-4, Minnesota Fighting Saints defeated San Diego Mariners 6-4 and Edmonton Oilers beat Chicago Cougars 5-1.

After Howie Young's 10th goal of the season put the Jets ahead 1-0 at 13:27 of the first period, the Whalers stormed back to score twice within 10 seconds and the Jets never caught up although Young went on to add his 11th goal of the season.

At Toronto, the Toros came from behind a 4-1 deficit with three goals in each of the second and third periods to overcome Phoenix.

Tom Simpson scored his 41st and 42nd goals of the season for the Toros and Tony Featherstone added his 21st and 22nd.

Wayne Dillon's goal in the first minute of the second period started the Toronto rally.

"They caught fire after Dillon's goal," said Phoenix coach Sandy Hucul. "We were checking them in the first period but stopped after that."

Featherstone attributed the Toros' rally to their passing game. "We started playing hockey the way we can," said Featherstone. "They play fundamental hockey and that's the toughest to beat, but our passing was so super they couldn't keep up with the pace."

At Chicago, the Oilers jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first period and extended the margin to 5-0 in the second before Rick Morris of the Cougars spoiled goalie Chris Worthy's shutout bid midway in the final period.

Chicago coach Pat Stapleton was upset with his club's performance. "When the other team outshoots us 17-9 in the first period, we've got to be flat," said the Cougars' owner-coach-player.

Edmonton manager-coach Bill Hunter said the Oilers' victory was largely due to a new defensive system which they used for the first time after discussing it following Monday's lost to Baltimore.

"The team was under a lot of pressure since they had to make changes without practice," said Hunter. "We just discussed everything on the blackboard."

At San Diego, Gord Gallant scored twice and Andre Lacroix had a goal and two assists to lead Minnesota against the Mariners.

Lacroix pushed his consecutive game scoring record to 29 and tied his all-time WHA season record for assists at 80.

Fincups Crush Marlies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A sellout crowd of 3,931 in Hamilton got their money's worth Tuesday as the Fincups upset first-place Toronto Marlboros 11-2.

Dale McCourt, a nephew of Marlboros' coach George Armstrong, scored his third three-goal performance against Toronto this season and assisted on two others in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A contest.

In other games, Ottawa '67s dumped Kingston Canadians 8-2, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds downed Kitchener Rangers 6-3 and London Knights defeated St. Catharines Black Hawks 6-2.

Play resumes Thursday with Kitchener meeting the Wolves in Sudbury, and Kingston visiting Peterborough Petes.

At Hamilton, Joe Contini and Mike Keating also scored three goals apiece, with Greg Hickey and Glen Richardson getting the others.

Mark Napier and Mike Kaszycki replied for Toronto.

Toronto, who trailed 2-1 and 8-2 by periods, took 10 of 17 penalties, including a pair of minors 22 seconds apart to goaltender Gary Carr.

'67s 8 Canadians 2

Ottawa took period leads of 2-1 and 3-1 and moved into sole possession of fourth spot, one point each ahead of Sudbury.

Tim Young and Peter Lee each scored twice for Ottawa. Singles went to Jamie Masters, Jim Roberts, Dan Blair and Doug Wilson.

Ken Linseman scored both goals for Kingston, now tied for eighth spot with Sault Ste. Marie and London

Ottawa outshot the visitors 43-36.

Greyhounds 6 Rangers 3

Sault Ste. Marie scored three goals in less than three minutes in the third period to break a 3-3 tie.

Tony Cuomo and Gary Gill added two goals apiece for Sault Ste. Marie while Cary Farelli and Reid Bailey scored the others.

Barry Duench, Dan Djakalovic and Claude Noel scored for the visiting Rangers, who held a 2-1 first period lead and were outshot 43-32.

Knights 6 Hawks 2

Dennis Maruk's goal in the first period, his 62nd of the season, brought his OHA career total to 155, one more than passing a record held by Marcel Dionne of St. Catharines before turning pro with Detroit Red Wings.

Terry Martin with two, Bill Beauchamp, Rick Martin, and Ron Zanussi got the other London goals before a home crowd of 3,129.

Willie Plett and Steve Cupolo scored for the sixth-place Hawks, who were behind 3-1 after the first period and 4-1 after two.

Own 6-0 Record

Phillies Classy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Philadelphia Phillies are looking twice as good as any other baseball team in spring training so far. Even when they split their team in half, they can't be beaten

The Phillies divided into two squads Tuesday and doubled their pleasure with victories over Pittsburgh Pirates and Japan's Chunichi Dragons.

The 7-5 victory over the Pirates and 12-1 drubbing of the Dragons gave the Phillies a perfect 6-0 record in exhibition play.

STEVE BLASS
Control Problems

Facing Pittsburgh at Bradenton, the Phillies took advantage of Steve Blass' wildness to beat the Pirates. Blass, plagued with the same wildness that sent him to the minor leagues, walked four straight batters to open the seventh, throwing two wild pitches in the process, to give the Phillies two runs and a 5-4 lead. The Phillies then scored their winning run on a sacrifice fly off the one-time Pirate ace.

Tony Taylor, a former Phillie who is enjoying a second chance with his team, homered, scored four times and stole two bases to lead the runaway over the Japanese visitors at Clearwater.

Elsewhere, Montreal Expos beat Boston Red Sox 9-3, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Cincinnati Reds 10-6, Texas Rangers beat Baltimore Orioles 6-2, Chicago White Sox whipped Detroit Tigers 12-4, New York Yankees blanked New York Mets 4-0, St. Louis Cardinals edged Kansas City Royals 3-2, Minnesota Twins beat Houston Astros 5-4 and Tokyo Giants edged Atlanta Braves 1-0.

Steve Yeager got three hits to pace Los Angeles, playing mostly against Cincinnati's second-stringers. Sixteen-year-old ... started for the Dodgers and gave up eight hits and four runs in four innings before Dennis Lewallyn picked up the victory.

Earlier in the day, the Dodgers picked up former nemesis Juan Marichal for what team executives said was a nominal price. Marichal, who was a Dodger-killer while pitching for San Francisco Giants for 14 years, was released last year by Boston after a 5-1 record.

First baseman Mike Hargrove paced the Rangers by driving in four runs in their victory over Baltimore. Nyls Nyman had three RBI for the White Sox, who scored 10 runs on seven hits to insure their victory in the first inning. Willie Horton had a two-run homer for the Tigers.

The Yankees picked up their third straight exhibition victory with the help of two-run homers by Bob Oliver and Bobby Bonds, both newly-acquired players. Relief pitcher Al Hrabosky drove in the winning run in the eighth inning for the Cards' victory.

Catcher Gary Carter stole two bases as the Expos, who stole seven bases in all, clubbed Boston.

The Twins, who gave up four runs in the first inning, came back with three in the sixth, sparked by Larry Hisle's two-run double. Doug Rader had three RBI on two hits for Houston. Tokyo's Osamu Shimano gave up just two hits, singles to Darrell Evans and Dave Johnson, to blank the Braves.

TONY TAYLOR
Second Chance

In off-the-field action, the Phillies acquired left-hander Tom Hilgendorf from Cleveland Indians in a waiver deal for rookie outfielder Nellie Garcia.

NHL May Add Denver Entry

NEW YORK (CP) — Clear-cut decisions seem harder to come by in the back rooms of the National Hockey League.

The NHL board of governors meeting here Tuesday made some progress in attempting to break the logjam of business that has been carried from meeting to meeting for several months.

The NHL will expand into Denver next season if Ivan Mullinex and his group of investors meet the conditions of the expansion franchise granted them Tuesday.

That was the only hard piece of news to come out of two days of meetings attended by nearly 50 officials But the groundwork was being laid for a possible solution of the franchise difficulties in Oakland, where the league-owned California Seals are draining other club owners of several million dollars a year.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said the league is studying and checking a couple of prospective buyers. They are Mel Swig of San Francisco and Bud Palmer of New York.

The league will know by about May 1 whether either can qualify as potential buyers. Otherwise, Campbell indicated the Seals may be disbanded next season.

He said the league will not attempt to run the club in Oakland another year.

The governors turned down Pittsburgh Penguins' bid for a new loan from the NHL. But there was no indication that the Penguins will be leaving Pittsburgh next season.

Camrbell obviously is not happy with the financial condition of the Penguins despite their improved showing both at the gate and in the standing this season.

The club management is trying to raise new capital for much-needed cash flow to meet its debts. But the club still hasn't repaid the money already lent by the NHL.

One thing the NHL did do at these meetings was to scrap various proposals calling for switches of the Oakland and Pittsburgh franchises to Denver and Seattle respectively.

Denver now will go into a single-club draft for 1975. If Mullenix completes his offer for the $6 million franchise, the draft will take place June 17 in Montreal.

Seattle's Vince Abbey seemed to be the odd-man out at the meeting. Abbey, president of Seattle Totems of the Cenral Hockey League, never got to the post in his attempt to bring NHL hockey to Seattle in 1975.

That idea died 10 days ago, NHL vice-president Don Ruck said.

But Abbey still has his conditional franchise for the 1976-77 season.

"If all things we have authorized come to pass," Campbell said, Denver will be the 19th team in the league next season, joining the Adams Division which has Boston, Buffalo, Toronto and California.

The NHL can go to extremes sometimes in keeping its financial affairs in the family. And where there formerly was only one security guard to watch the doors to the meeting rooms, there were two for the meetings in New York.

Campbell explained some of the secrecy: "There are conditions under which certain other things can happen, and I just can't comment on them."

In other developments:

—Campbell said that unless the World Hockey Association stops raiding under-age junior players, the NHL will be forced to do the same and would stop making payments to amateur hockey groups for players drafted. The NHL is objecting to the recent signing by the WHA Toronto Toros of 18-year-old Mark Napier of Toronto Marlboros.

—Each club will have one consolidated roster list next season combining both major and minor lists. And the league will change its commitment to keep development teams in the minors. The only requirement is that each club must keep seven pro players under the age of 26 years.

—The NHL will set up a computerized central scouting system for all 18 clubs, and possibly 19. It will be a new department of the NHL and will have its own director and scouts. Headquarters will be in Canada, but Campbell didn't know exactly where.

—Campbell ruled that goalie Gerry Desjardins, who jumped from the WHA Baltimore Blades to the NHL Buffalo Sabres last week, has a valid contract and is free to play for Buffalo. Desjardins was in goal for the Sabres Tuesday night, helping them gain a 2-2 tie against Los Angeles Kings.

Voyageurs Slipping

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nova Scotia Voyageurs, once battling Providence Reds for the Northern Division lead in the American Hockey League, now find themselves trailing Rochester Americans for second spot.

The Voyageurs went into Tuesday night's game against Richmond two points behind Rochester. Nova Scotia lost 3-2 to the Robins, while Providence stopped Syracuse Eagles 3-2 in the other league game.

Providence now has 94 points and has a 13-point lead over Rochester.

Jean Payette's unassisted goal at 10:51 of the third period gave Richmond the win over Nova Scotia, who have played two less games than Rochester.

Payette stole the puck from a Voyageurs defenceman, skated in on goalie Dave Elenbaas and lifted in a wrist shot on the goalie's stick side.

Richmond's Larry Fullan had given the Robins a 1-0 at 8:28 of the first period, but Bill Nyrop tied the game for Nova Scotia at 16:53.

The Robins capitalized on a two-man advantage at 8:32 of the second period when Steve Atkinson scored on a backhander from the right point.

Payette's third-period goal gave Richmond a 3-1 lead before Nova Scotia's Jim Cahoon scored on a power play at 18:43 of the final period.

Gerry Teeple scored for Providence and Murray Kuntz for the Eagles as the teams skated to a 1-1 first-period tie.

Joe Zanussi and Bryan Lefley scored for the Reds in the second period before Jean Losier scored a power-play goal for Syracuse with 3:47 left in the game.

Abdul-Jabbar Fouls Out

Bucks' Chances Fizzle Without Ace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fouling out of a game is about as rare for Kareem Abdul-Jabbar as Milwaukee Bucks winning a game without him.

The point was proven again Tuesday night. After Abdul-Jabbar fouled out for only the second time this season, the Bucks were overwhelmed by Golden State Warriors 107-90.

The loss prevented Milwaukee from replacing Detroit in third place in the Midwest Division of the National Basketball Association. Detroit, edged by Los Angeles 95-94, and Milwaukee are battling for the wild-card playoff berth in the Western Conference.

Meanwhile, Washington Bullets clinched their fifth consecutive Central Division title with a 99-87 victory over Atlanta Hawks, Cleveland Cavaliers downed New Orleans Jazz 123-114, New York Knicks beat Phoenix Suns 103-98, Boston Celtics outlasted Chicago Bulls 121-118 in overtime, and Seattle SuperSonics beat Houston Rockets 122-117 in overtime.

In the only American Basketball Association game, Denver downed Virginia 137-123.

The Bucks, who won only one of their first 15 games this season when Abdul-Jabbar was sidelined with injuries, trailed the Warriors 77-75 when their centre fouled out with 10:14 remaining in the game.

Abdul-Jabbar, who had missed 18 minutes earlier in the game because of foul trouble, finished with 18 points in about 19½ minutes. Rick Barry topped Golden State with 30 points.

Cazzie Russell's two free throws with two seconds remaining lifted Los Angeles past Detroit, ending the Lakers' eight-game losing streak on the road. Gail Goodrich led the Lakers with 25 points, and Detroit's Bob Lanier scored 29.

Phil Chenier's season-high 38 points paced Washington to its 51st victory of the season against 18 losses—the best record in the league—and gave the Bullets a 14½-game lead over runner-up Houston in the Central Division with only 13 games remaining.

Bobby Smith's 28 points, Jim Chones 27 and Austin Carr's 17—his most since undergoing knee surgery Dec. 26—helped Cleveland withstand New Orleans and retain its half-game lead over New York in the battle for the fifth playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. Pete Maravich was high scorer for New Orleans with 23 points.

Earl Monroe broke loose for 25 of his game-high 31 points in the second half, including 15 in the final quarter and seven in the last 1:13 of the game, as the Knicks held off Phoenix and kept pace with Cleveland. Charlie Scott had 30 points for the Suns.

John Havlicek and Jo Jo White each scored 34 points and each contributed six points in overtime, lifting Boston's Atlantic Division leaders past Chicago's Midwest Division pacesetters. The loss snapped the Bulls' 12-game home-court winning streak. Bob Love led the Bulls with 28 points, two more than Norm Van Lier.

Seattle, in second place in the Pacific Division, increased its lead to two games over idle Portland in the struggle for a playoff berth, downing Houston with the help of Leonard Gray's 25 points. Houston's Mike Newlin scored 32.

Foresters Wrap Up Second

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Brantford Foresters captured second place by whipping Barrie Flyers 6-1 in an Ontario Hockey Association senior game Tuesday before 4,000 fans.

Al Osborne and Bob Thompson led Brantford with two goals each. Guy Smith and John McMillan each had one goal.

Grant Moore scored for Barrie.

Brantford scored two unanswered goals in the second period after a scoreless first period.

Brantford outshot Barrie 34-29. Each team drew four minutes in penalties.

Cornwall Blanked 3-0

LONDON (CP) — Leeds United, hoping to win three soccer titles this season, had their difficulties Tuesday when Ipswich Town held them to a 1-1 draw in an English FA Cup quarter-final replay.

With the seconds ticking away, Duncan McKenzie—who came on as a substitute—scored for Leeds to tie the game. His goal, in injury time, caused 30 minutes extra play.

For 75 minutes, Leeds—after the European Cup, the English League championship and FA Cup—trailed 1-0 when David Johnson scored on a header. Johnson was one of four players withdrawn from the English squad which will meet West Germany in an exhibition game today so they could play in the FA contest.

The teams battled to a 0-0 draw last Saturday at Ipswich.

The winner of the competition will meet West Ham in semi-final play April 5.

The attendance of 50,074 was Leeds best of the season. The second replay will be at a date and place to be fixed by the English Football Association.

Leeds will go to Brussels next Wednesday for the second leg of their European Cup quarter-final series against Anderlecht of Belgium. Leeds won the first leg 3-0.

Billy Bremner, Leeds and Scottish captain, and Ipswich defender Kevin Beattie, also withdrawn from the English squad, were cautioned in the FA game.

Biltmores Advance

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Guelph Biltmores tied Chatham Maroons 3-3 Tuesday to advance to the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League final against Windsor Spitfires.

The Biltmores, in gaining the tie, took the semi-final, eight-point series 8-6.

Dave Wallace, Mitch Giroux and Bob Robinson shared the Guelph scoring while John Flynn, Marc Corbeil and Rick Stickney replied for Chatham.

The Maroons took 43 of 71 penalty minutes during the game and were outshot 37-32.

The first game of the final series will be played Thursday in Windsor.

Shutouts in the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League are something of a rarity but goaltender Normand Lapointe of Trois-Rivieres has managed to blank the opposition in his last two outings.

Lapointe was in the nets Sunday night as Trois-Rivieres beat Hull Festivals 5-0 and Tuesday, he stopped 23 Cornwall shots as the Draveurs skated to a 3-0 home-ice win over the Royals.

In another game, Sherbrooke Beavers and Chicoutimi Sagueneens battled to a 2-2 tie.

Yves Richer, Richard Blanchet and Denis Bergeron scored the Trois-Rivieres goals before 2,234 fans. The win gives Trois-Rivieres 77 points, five more than second-place Quebec Remparts in the battle for top spot in the East Division.

At Chicoutimi, a goal by Daniel Lecours at 9:33 of the third period gave the Sagueneens their draw with Sherbrooke. Jean-Paul Leblanc scored the other Chicoutimi goal while Claude Larose and Peter Marsh replied for the Beavers.

Tonight, Sherbrooke plays Chicoutimi in Jonquiere, Que.

Hamilton Signs Clark

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League have signed Ken Clark, the top punter in the World Football League last season.

The 26-year-old Clark, who averaged 41.8 yards a punt with Portland Storm in 1974, said Monday he has not been paid since the fifth of 20 games with the WFL team. His lawyer says that constitutes a breach of contract by the Storm.

Clark, from Toronto, was chosen as Hamilton's first Canadian college draft choice in 1974 after he had three outstanding years with St. Mary's Huskies of Halifax as punter, place kicker and wide receiver.

Goegan Night Planned

During the 1960s, and through most of that decade, the late Fiori Goegan was player-coach of a hockey team in Syracuse, N.Y., called the Stars.

The club engaged in regular weekend exhibition contests and was very well received in Syracuse.

It was a Can-Am team.

Players from that squad have an important date in Belleville, April 12.

The Stars will be skating against a team made up of players who were members of Belleville McFarlands, Allan Cup winners in 1958 and World Champions in 1959.

Several "Macs" and other interested parties are combining talents to present a Fiori Goegan Memorial Night here, April 12.

A special steering committee has already begun extensive planning for the big night.

In fact, tickets are now on sale at $1 each. There will be no reserved seats.

Naturally, every effort is being made to have as many of the Macs who played for either the Allan Cup winner and-or the World Championship teams here for the Goegan Memorial.

To refresh your memory, try these names:

Don Barclay, Gordie Bell, Moe Benoit, Gordon (Red) Berenson, Lionel Botly, Denis Boucher, Barton Bradley, Wayne (Wiener) Brown, Pete Conacher, Floyd Crawford, Al Dewsbury, Marv Edwards and Roy Edwards.

George (Goose) Gosselin, Gerry Goyer, Billy Graham, Bep Guidolin, Ike Hildebrand, Dave Jones, Russ Kowalchuk, Jean Paul Lamirande, Joe Lepine, Keith MacDonald, Ed Marineau, Johnny McLellan Minnie Merard, Keith Montgomery, John Muretich, Jean Paul Payette, Billy Reay and Lou Smrke.

There will be familiar names with the Syracuse team, too. Some Belleville players performed with that squad. Among them were Ralph Plane, Doug Murray, John (Shaker) Baker and Jack Hughes.

Jack McBride is responsible for publicity for the event. As confirmation is received from players who will be able to make it for the game, the information will be passed along.

Look for regular reports on how the program is shaping up.

There is no doubt the Goegan Memorial will attract support from every corner of the sports community.

Proceeds from the "Night" will go into a fund which will be earmarked for the furthering of the education of Fiori's sons.

The Meagher brothers, Belleville's gift to Boston University, are doing their thing. Rick and Terry had two goals each as their team dumped Harvard 7-3.

Boston University retained the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference First Division title with the win.

Offers of billets for the Shrine Peewee Tournament are coming in well, reports one of the ladies in charge of that very important item but as Jean Reid puts it, "We can always use more."

A fellow in Trenton asks if he can billet players. All I can tell you sir, is to call Mrs. Reid (968-7446) or Doreen Meagher (968-6516). Either of those volunteers will probably give you a "Yes, welcome aboard". But check with them.

Did any of you see the 1947 World Series, 1958 National Football League final, Olga Korbut, Muhammad Ali, et al, on Channel XXI (Cable 2) Saturday?

Almost made me wish I had $30 to send along for a family membership.

That was television at its best.

But the news isn't all bad. Bradshaw is expected back this week.

Shrine Tourney

Oshawa Hopes To Retain Title

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Oshawa will be back this year to defend their Grand Championship title in the Belleville Peewee Shrine Tournament, April 4, 5 and 6. The Oshawa entry will have its hands full, however, with this year's slate of competition.

While Oshawa was Grand Champion and A Champion last year — they went undefeated in five games — Don Mills was the B Champion. However, Don Mills will not be back. Two years ago Don Mills won the Grand Championship, but last year's coach thought his club was pushing things when they took the B title. Obviously the Don Mills peewee club wanted to quit while they were ahead.

The A finalists of the tournament, Peterborough, will be back for a crack at top honors, as will the B finalists, Kingston.

Oshawa, Peterborough and Kingston all play in the same AAA Ontario Minor Hockey Association grouping as Belleville Rollins. The fact that Belleville's opponents in their grouping were among the top four teams of last year's tournament gives local hockey fans an idea of how strong Rollins' competition is all season.

In the 1974 edition of the tourney, the local peewees won their first game, trouncing Don Mills, but lost their second start to Oshawa. So Belleville beat the B Champs, but weren't strong enough to beat the Grand Champs.

The locals should give any of the 15 teams in the tournament a good run.

Toronto Blues, Brampton, Ottawa Knights, Trenton, Niagara Falls, Whitby, St. Catharines, Nepean, Cornwall, London, Windsor and Kingston Township round out the list of this year's entrants.

Action gets under way at 6 p.m. Friday April 4, when Peterborough meets Toronto Blues at the Memorial Arena and Brampton takes on Ottawa Knights at the Dick Ellis Rink. At 7:05 p.m. Oshawa faces Belleville at the Memorial and Trenton plays Niagara Falls at the Dick Ellis.

The first round continues Friday when Kingston and Whitby square off at 8:10 at the Memorial and St. Catharines meets Nepean at Dick Ellis. The final pair of contests have Cornwall against London at 9(15 p.m. at the Memorial and at Dick Ellis, Windsor meets Kingston Centre 70.

Ban on Firecrackers Broken by Smugglers

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Firecrackers, which have put the bang into Chinese festivals for centuries, still are being smuggled here from China despite a ban since left-wing riots in the British colony in 1967.

Police say the fireworks continue to find their way into the New Territories bordering China, despite intensive official crackdowns.

In two incidents this year, police have seized a total of 1,300 pounds of firecrackers from trucks and arrested a woman. She was charged with possession of banned goods and jailed for three months.

A senior police officer in the New Territories said roadblocks were being set up daily to stop vehicles suspected of carrying the cigarette-shaped crackers, which had been used by extremists to make bombs.

It is customary for Chinese people to let off fireworks during festivities. Traditionally they believe that this wil drive away evil spirits.

Official figures showed that 157 men and 85 women were arrested last year for possessing the banned goods. About 4,610 pounds of firecrackers were seized.

A police officer in the New Territories said there were no signs that the popularity of the noisy crackers would diminish in the near future

"One can hear bursts of firecrackers in the first few nights of the Chinese New Year," he said. "There are people who even play with them in the daytime.

"But it is difficult to catch the culprits, as it is hard to pinpoint where they are being let off."

Firecrackers are also popular on outer islands among fishermen and villagers during the spring festival, police said.

However, they are not common in urban areas because they cannot be bought easily.

When the government introduced its ban, many people supported the move because it meant less noise in the crowded city area. Fire hazards and the risk of being maimed were reduced.

The ban came in at the height of the disturbances more than seven years ago, because leftists were using explosive material from the crackers to produce home-made bombs which killed several people including children and policemen.

Something New for Rotary

The Rotary Club of Belleville is celebrating its 55th anniversary in the city and besides the usual birthday cakes and other gifts, the club was presented with this unique gift, a symbol of the club woven into a hooked rug made by club member, George Smith, right. Helping him hold it is club president Bob Graham.

Moslems Who Aided France Now Endure Miserable Life

PARIS (CP) — They remained loyal to France in the declining years of its imperial era, refusing to join those fighting for what might have been their Algeria too.

With independence for the former North African colony approaching in 1962, they were offered and accepted a haven in France. That refuge has turned out to be an exile endured in poverty and misery.

They are Moslems and their families, now numbering more than 200,000, who fought alongside French troops against their countrymen in a bitter desert war.

Some still live in the "welcome centres," now ghettos, to which they were taken before Algeria gained independence on July 3, 1962. Others have menial jobs and substandard housing among Frenchmen.

France is a nation embracing dozens of ethnic minorities—some increasingly militant—subjected to the disdain of the self-proclaimed "real" Frenchmen of the major cities. But probably none—Bretons, Alsatians, Corsicans and a host of others—are the object of as much hatred or suspicion as are the Moslems.

Often speaking halting French, illiterate or almost so, they are hated by immigrant Algerian workers who consider them traitors.

As jobs and housing became available, some scattered throughout France, but most gathered in Paris, the Rhone River region and the north.

Some found a place in the forest communities established by the agriculture and repatriation departments of the day.

Almost 6,000 still work in one of 35 forest centres, while ances and the others depend on organized charity.

They all were told, when hostilities ended and they embarked on their new lives in Europe, that they would receive indemnities for what they had left behind in Algeria. But many could not obtain documentation from the new Algerian authorities.

They were told they would be accorded full French citizenship and the rights accompanying that status.

They found, however, that conditions were attached. Many could not without great difficulty, provide documents demanded. Procedures were complicated and the March 20, 1967, deadline date for citizenship passed, leaving several thousand stateless.

they can obtain jobs only clandestinely and are exploited by employers. They are denied social security and other benefits.

Several organizations have been formed to seek better treatment for the Moslems. They have met with little success.

During the presidential election campaign last spring, Valery Giscard d'Estaing committed himself to finding a solution to the problem within a reasonable time, a pledge he renewed last fall when a group of Moslems staged a hunger strike in Paris.

Interior Minister Michel Poniatowski made an official visit to Algeria in December and gained permission from Prime Minister Houari Boumedienne for families of former soldiers to return to their homeland.

But Boumedienne emphasized that the cases of the men themselves will be studied individually so that "their eventual return to Algeria does not give rise to incidents."

Hitler's SS Came In Two Varieties

BERLIN (AP) — West German television has taken a first, controversial, look at the Second World War role of the military arm of Adolf Hitler's SS elite guard.

A three-part documentary shown on an educational network said a distinction should be made between the Waffen SS, which fought with the Wehrmacht or regular army, and the other SS organizations which helped run Nazi concentration camps.

SS stands for Schutzstaffel, or protective squadron, with Waffen SS meaning the armed SS.

The three-part series, shown on successive nights, was entitled. The Men Under the Death's Head, a reference to the skull and crossbones insignia worn by SS members. Each part ran 45 minutes.

The documentary was produced by the television unit of the liberal-oriented magazine Stern.

It traces the history of the Waffen SS , from its origins as a black-uniformed elite guard of the Nazi party through increasingly separate development as an organization made up of "military athletes," to the buildup of a force of 800,000 men fighting in the grey uniforms of the wartime Wehrmacht.

Stern quotes the film's director, Wolfgang Venohr, as declaring, "The majority of the young soldiers of the Waffen SS were not Fascist criminals but rather victims of a criminal fascism."

The film noted that the 1946 Nuernberg war crimes military tribunal declared the Waffen SS a criminal organization. But it maintained that for most Germans, "it has remained an object located somewhere between abhorrence and admiration."

The national newspaper Die Welt said the film's attempt to present a detached study of the Waffen SS fully succeeded. Die Welt emphasized there was no attempt to ignore war crimes such as the massacre of 90 British military prisoners early in the war and the wiping out of a French village as an act of revenge in 1944.

"The shadow of war crimes is not denied," Die Welt said. "They are dealt with as much as are soldierly accomplishments."

The West Berlin newspaper Tagesspiegel commented, however, that the showing of such a film was a mistake, even for educational television programming.

The Tagesspiegel critic said the film gave former SS men a chance to present their views to an audience probably still not sophisticated enough politically to make a critical evaluation.

The documentary incorporates 32 interviews, some with former concentration camp prisoners, survivors of SS massacres in France and onetime Waffen SS members recruited in Flanders and France, and an actual combat sequence.

Co-author Heinz Hoehne was interviewed in one segment in which he declared that unit spirit and a deep feeling of comradeship, including that between officers and men, gave the Waffen SS a high degree of combat effectiveness.

The film said losses became extremely heavy because of Hitler's use of the Waffen SS in every emergency. A direct result was the inability of the SS to recruit enough Germans to refill its badly depleted ranks.

The documentary's account said that this led to a force that finally included 400 000 Germans, 200 000 ethnic Germans from Eastern Europe and another 200,000 men, including Dutch, Norwegian, Flemish, French, Ukrainian and other national recruits.

Picton High School Parliament Debates Major National Issues

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Capital punishment, drug abuse and inflation numbered among issues discussed by "governor-General" Paul Burd in a speech from the throne delivered during the first sitting of model parliament this year at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Mr. Burd, who stepped from his job as principal of PECI to pinch-hit for Governor-General Jules Legere, stressed reinstatement of capital punishment is "long over-due." He said this issue would be dealt with through a private members' bill presented to the House because it is a matter of personal discretion.

"It is clearly evident that drug abuse is a serious problem in Canada. This government will propose stiffer penalties for tr[illegible] and abusers," he emphasized.

"The gover[illegible]lizes that Canadians are going through a very difficult time. We, the government, through selective budgeting hope to stimulate the economy so that Canadian can get back to their jobs. We also realize that inflation is a problem, but until we can get people back to work we are left powerless to fight this problem. Once full employment is achieved or nearly achieved, we then can tackle this problem of "inflation."

"This government will continue to allow groups of refugees into Canada provided they meet standard requirements," said Mr. Burd.

"Foreign students studying at recognized Canadian Institutions will be regarded as any other visitors applying for permanent residence unless they are under obligation to return to their own country.'

To insure the supply of qualified manpower meets the demands of the labor market the government plans to employ two main channels The first of these is counselling, placement where necessary and training and relocation of workers.

Introduction of new manpower through immigration also will be used.

"We will continue to support the Canada Manpower Training Program and the Canada Manpower Mobility Program," added the Governor-General.

Creation of a Canadian Cattle Marketing Association was discussed as a method of coping with the inadequacies of the provincial cattle marketing boards.

"More power will be given to the Canadian Egg Marketing Association to alleviate the present tensions that are saused in inter-provincial trade.

"The government will protect in-shore fisheries by establishing a 12 mile territorial water limit and by taxation of the catches of fish which are taken from these Canadian water limits by foreign vessels.

"Government work programs will be increased to curb unemployment and to stimulate economic development in the communities where they are involved.

This week's sitting of model parliament follows a mock election held in February at PECI.

The Progressive Conservative Party led by Bill Maddox swept to power. The official leader of the opposition is David Evans, head of the Liberal Party.

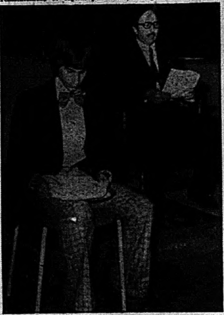
Speaker of the House during the sittings of model parliament is Gilles Miramontes.

All of the students participating in model parliament, an annual event at PECI, today travelled to Ottawa to watch federal parliament in session at the House of Commons.

The next sitting of model parliament will be held in April during education week.

If sufficient interest is shown, a third sitting may be held later.

Staff advisor for student parliament is Mrs. Helen Nelson, an English and history teacher at PECI.



Room for Promotion

Paul Burd, principal Prince Edward Collegiate Institute has discovered there is plenty of room for promotion in his job. This week he became Governor-General to deliver a speech from the throne during the first sitting of model parliament this year at PECI. Seated before him is speaker of the house, Gilles Miramontes.

It's Not All Work

Farmer Bob Mathews in Rawdon Twnship has fixed up a house for members of Project Christopher to use as a home base when they come back from their frequent trips throughout North America. The non-denominational group is headed by a Catholic priest. Here they enjoy a fun evening after a hard days work.

Volunteer Work Attracts Youth

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — At the moment there are 13 young people from all over North America donating at least one year of their lives to Project Christopher.

Christopher means Christ bearer, and this project is non - denominational. Its founder just happens to be a Roman Catholic priest, Father John Brayler.

Tait Brown, 21, of Long Sault, has been with Father John since September, 1973, after he graduated from university.

Tait explains the goal of the movement is to help people become fuller persons and that the means to this end is through service ... "voluntary work, visiting the elderly and the sick, running recreation programs for kids, helping farmers ... we are very versatile."

Frank McGeragle of Vancouver, 21, is in his fourth year with Father John. He was registered to go to University of British Columbia and take forestry, but said he plans on staying with Project Christopher.

"I am just trying to give of myself," Frank says. He first met and heard Father John during his early high school years, and after graduating got a newsletter about Project Christopher. "I just barely remembered this priest talking to us, and I liked the ideals, and thought I would come for one summer . . ."

Jane Powell, 19, of Wooler, was on a summer team that journeyed to British Columbia. She plans on going to Loyalist this fall and taking the resident counselor for mentally retarded course. She has been with the one-year team since September.

"I have never been on a Christian Living Program before," Jane said. "We try to teach a Christian way of life and not just a philosophy."

Lillian Kennedy, 18, of Shoniker Ave., Trenton, went to British Columbia as well in the summer. "I was looking for something I could get involved in".

Annie Burkholder, 23, of RR 7 Belleville worked in the blood bank in Belleville General Hospital from 1969 to 1971. She sought other work and then went back to school last year at Waterloo University.

"My ideals are living this lifestyle rather than theorizing it."

Tait says that "Youth across the country is dissatisfied with the ideal of monetary success. That is why there is so much boredom and despair. Youth is not finding life fullfilling and seeks escape through drugs and alcohol.

Project Head Worries About Young Suicides

STIRLING — Many things disturb Father John Brayler. One of them is the fact that young people commit suicide.

Father John was granted permission to carry on a special project several years ago by Cardinal Paul Emile Leger, who later went on to his own work with lepers in Africa.

Father John started non-denominational Project Christopher, and has been working with young people all over the United States and Canada. He now has a home base in a farm home in Rawdon Township.

"Alberta has a population of one and a half million," Father John remarked in an interview. "One year recently there were 182 suicides by young people in that province, and 1,00 more attempted it."

In Ontario, he says the proportions are about the same in relation to population.

The former army major also doesn't like the competitiveness in organized sports. "Psychologically, kids should not be organized in teams under 12 years of age. We organize them at six, seven, and eight ... it makes them psychological monsters," Father John said.

The youth worker claims that Canada's number one problem is alcohol "much more so than drugs." He says there is a "tremendous loneliness. The bars are filled with lonely people. Man was not made to be alone. He says that all our signs point to destruction and violence."

No Support Offered For Cat Control Bylaw

TRENTON — Trenton's cats came close to having 'more than their whiskers singed and their owners their wallets tapped as council this week considered an Ontario Humane Society drafted cat-control bylaw.

The suggested bylaw was dismissed by councillors amid such comments as "farfetched" and "out of hand" by Councillor Bob Wannamaker.

In the face of humane societies becoming increasingly unwilling to destroy cats, it was proposed that cat owners must take out annual $10 permits to keep cats — but only cats that have been either spayed or neutered.

"To buy, sell, give, receive, or in any way trade or traffic in cats that have not been neutered or spayed," says the bylaw, would make an owner libel to fines from $50 to $250.

Cat breeders were singled out as needing permits costing $100 each. The professional breeder of pure-bred cats would pay $25 a year, provided he be member of a recognized cat club.

The proposed legislation did offer some relief for those on an old age pension. A municipality can rebate the fees in this case.

Trenton council agreed to inform the humane society of its displeasure with the proposed bylaw.

Council Defers Action On CAS Funds Request

TRENTON — Town council will wait to approve its $40,396 share of the Hastings County Children's Aid Society budget until it sees the entire dollar picture.

The decision came as council was asked to give its okay to its allocation for 1975, down $4,171 from $44,567 paid the CAS in 1974.

Treasurer Brian Fagan told council the 10.3 per cent decrease reflects the decrease in the number of children in Trenton that have been placed with the Belleville-based society.

Council will again look at the budget figure in two weeks

Woman Hurt In Crash

PICTON — A Picton woman was treated at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for injuries received in a two-car collision at the intersection of Queen and Elizabeth streets.

Damage to the Dean car totalled $400 while damage to the Moran car was $300.

New Legislation May Give Mill New Lease on Life

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT: Some North Hastings Residents have been quick to see the potential the new Ontario. Heritage Foundation legislation might have for the village of Bancroft.

The legislation, which was announced last week, is geared, according to the Heritage foundation executive director, to help restore historical buildings in communities to a useful purpose.

The Bancroft Woollen Mill the local Chamber of Commerce and the municipal council for several years as a possible tourist attraction for the area

The mill is one of the few water powered Woollen mills left in Ontario and did operate effectively up until 1969 when it closed because of rising labor cost an dthe scarcity of local wool.

The mill was started in 1850 by Senator Bella Flint as a grist mill and was converted in 1880 to wool by Mr. David Fuller, whose son Oswald operated it until 1966.

At that time the mill was sold to a local business man who ran it until 1969.

In the new Heritage legislation a municipal council has been given the authority to declare a building a historical site and to set up an architectural conservation advisory committee of council members and local citizens.

The director of the heritage foundation, Larry Ryan, said recently "These projects take working to-gether with the province, the municipalities and the residents of the communities. We don't want to think of just fixing a building up and leaving it, we have to see what use it can serve in the community."

Mr. Ryan continued "It should be seen if the building can be restored to operate as it originally did to serve some other functional use in the community.

Mr. Ryan cited recreational centres, tourist attractions and community centres as possible uses for a refurbished building.

The president of the Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce, Ivor Macleod is convinced that the local mill dated from 1850 could be renewed to its original purpose.

"I'm sure that that building could and should be restored as a working mill," said Mr. Macloed.

However, the previous owner, Mr. Fuller and Bancroft Reeve Russell Hawley are not so sure of that.

"With the cost of labor the way that it is now, you can't turn that mill into a paying proposition," said Mr. Fuller.

Bancoft Reeve Russell Hewley indicated this week that the local council would certainly be looking at the project

"If that mill could be restored or used as a tourist attraction, it really would be a great thing," said Reeve Hawley. "I'm sure not in favour of tearing it down and I think that the council will really look at it during the next meeting."

The Bancroft Woollen Mill was viewed by the provincial minister of industry and tourism, Claude Bennett during his visit to Bancroft in August 1974

At the moment, the mill is own by the provincial government who purchased it during a recent redesign of Highway 62 south's entrance to Bancroft.

Mill Resurrection Suggested

This 125-year-old water-powered woollen mill, one of few remaining in Ontario, closed in 1969 but might operate again with help from new Ontario Heritage Foundation legi[illegible]. The mill is located at Highway 62 south entrance to Bancroft on land owned by the provincial government.

Russians 'Buy' Their Books By Handing in Waste Paper

MOSCOW (Reuter) — For years, the lament of the Soviet printing industry that there is not enough paper to meet the demand for books and newsprint has been matched only by complaints from readers.

Now, resourceful Russian bookworms have come up with an idea: If a book is particularly popular, let it be sold only to those who, in exchange, hand in a fixed amount of waste paper for recycling.

In the 10 Soviet cities where the scheme has been introduced, it has caught on like wildfire. The aim is for the book-lover to gather 44 pounds of what Russians call "makulatura"—anything from newspapers to chocolate-bar wrappers—and hand it in at special collecting points.

In exchange he is given a coupon to buy whatever book is currently being sold under the scheme.

The first popular work offered, as a test of public reaction, was Queen Margot by the Frenchman Alexandre Dumas. All 200,000 copies sold as fast as the collection points could handle the rubbish pouring in.

Shortly after the plan came into force, one newspaper summed up its success with a cartoon showing a worried-looking Queen Margot hitching up her medieval skirts to flee downhill before an avalanche of second-hand paper.

Other works planned are special editions of Arthur Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes classic, The Hound of the Baskervilles, and a selection of fairy tales by Hans Christian Andersen.

The initial experiment will run to seven books, including a Maigret novel by Simenon and the 19th-century detective masterpiece by English novelist Wilkie Collins The Woman in White.

In Moscow, book-lovers have been lining up before dawn with baby-carriage loads, back-packs and taxi-loads of old textbooks and last year's editions of Pravda. Newspapers have noted that even schoolchildren have been staying away from class to join in.

The collection points will take almost anything, including new-looking books, if the bearers can prove that they have served their purpose.

A favorite subject for pulping is history no longer conforming to the Communist party line and which cannot be accepted for sale in second-hand book stores.

Some have succeeded in handing in clean stocks of office paper, including reams of unused computer print-out, in spite of warnings that this is against the rules.

"With the expense some people go to," one Russian observed, "you would think it would be cheaper for them to look for the book on the black market."

One reason for the success of the experiment is that the books offered are virtually unobtainable elsewhere.

With no market factors of demand and supply to determine how large an edition should be, its size is dictated more often by ideology than by popularity.

Dry novels of socialist realism, boring but ideologically correct, gather dust on bookstore shelves while suspect works like the early Soviet author Mikhail Bulgakov's Master and Margarita, about the devil visiting Moscow in the early days of Soviet power, sell out before reaching the open shops.

What happens to the tons of makulatura recovered?

Those who hoped it was helping the paper crisis were unfortunately misguided, the writers' union journal Literaturnaya Gazeta said.

"Our enterprises make out of makulatura not high-quality paper for new books, papers and journals—just cardboard, which will be used to make milk cartons and soap powder boxes."

What if your pay cheque was late?

For many of us this would be a calamity. Your Intelligencer carrier is a young, independent businessman; he doesn't receive a pay cheque. His profit is the difference between the wholesale cost of his newspapers and the amount collected from his customers.
Most subscribers pay their carriers on the first call. But some people say "come back later" . . . and the carrier's profit is put off. It's like asking you to come back two or three times for your pay cheque.
Of course, you want to be paid promptly. All of us do. The boy or girl who delivers your Intelligencer will appreciate being paid promptly.

A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Because of the wide response to Radio Shack products in Canada our sales have increased 71% over the past year.
Despite rising material and labour costs Radio Shack DID NOT RAISE a single price in "Company" stores since issuing our 1975 catalogue in October. We have now decided NOT TO RAISE A PRICE at least through to June 1975 in these stores.
In addition we will continue our tradition of periodic PRICE REDUCTIONS to make Radio Shack products even more affordable.
By holding the line against increases we help not only our customers but also our suppliers and our employees, actually thousands of people. It is our way of saying to the country as a whole: we can and must fight inflation.
This applies to all 231 company owned and operated stores in Canada.

COLD-WEATHER PAVING

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Glasphalt may make it possible to repair those winter potholes in the street without waiting for warm weather. A research study discloses that glasphalt, a street paving material made with crushed waste glass and asphalt, can be successfully laid in colder weather than conventional asphalt made with crushed stone. Glasphalt can be used in colder weather because it contains more heat than conventional asphalt and it cools more slowly.

Dancers Defend Ballet Role

TORONTO (CP) — Lorna Geddes and Charmain Turner, both 31 and friends from early childhood, have not achieved stardom during their 16 years with the National Ballet of Canada but they are content with their role as the foundation of its female corps.

"I get really mad when people ask me what I do and I say I dance with the National and see their eyes light up, and then they find out I'm in the corps and their brows begin to furrow," said Miss Geddes.

"Charmain and I have enjoyed ourselves tremendously."

Miss Geddes said dancers must become familiar with their dancing abilities and accept them.

"In this company, we are seen as workhorses. We both decided to accept this verdict, so we've made the best of it and enjoyed ourselves.

"We adopted the attitude a long time ago that if we didn't like things, we'd get out."

Miss Turner said corps salaries, which now range between $136 and $210 a week, have not always been adequate.

"When Lorna and I started we got paid $32.50 a week for seven months. Then we all had to go on unemployment. You learn to love peanut butter and beans a lot.

"And yet we loved the life. The old company was more intimate and there was a whole different attitude to work. You went on stage with injuries and you learned a lot of self-discipline.

"There was a better sense of values and I believe the generation of dancers coming up now is suffering from a lack of those values."

Miss Turner said she and Miss Geddes do not begrudge anyone stardom.

"But we've seen really young kids pushed beyond their endurance because they had a lot of talent and there was pressure to make them stand out before they were ready.

"I don't think anyone shold be promoted to soloist rank without spending at least three years in the corps."

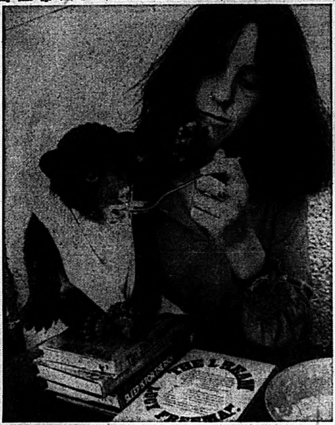
The two women said there should be better communication between the principals and the corps.

They said they often have had to put their costumes on and apply their makeup for simple walk-on parts and then remain backstage for two hours.

But there are good moments too.

"When we are doing something like Swan Lake and everybody is dancing well, it's a great feeling," Miss Geddes said. "The principals send good feelings down to the corps and vice versa.

"It's like another world on stage when that happens. I'm sure we feel just as good as any principal. Who knows? Maybe even better."



Heavy-handed Artist

Allan Paull of Melbourne, Australia, uses a hammer and nails instead of brush and paint to create his works of art. He is shown with his work called "Splashdown", a symbolic representation of the Apollo 14 flight to the moon. Some of his nail painting contain as many as 20,000 nails. (CP Photo)

Showbiz Shorts

MEMPHIS (AP) — Martha Mitchell pleading over-exposure, plans to retire soon from public view.

"I've been one woman out fighting for America and I'm tired of it," said Mrs. Mitchell, wife of former attorney-general John Mitchell, a convicted conspirator in the Watergate scandal. "I'm tired of the harassment and I'm tired of the whole mess."

She said at a news conference that she plans to go back to Washington and "sign off" her television program.

"That will be the end of Martha Mitchell."

NEW YORK (AP) — Carnegie Hall was rented for $1,000 an hour Monday afternoon, for three hours, to play a 47-minute recording.

It was the first time that Carnegie Hall has been used for that purpose.

The record is called Blue Jays, written and performed by two members of the now-dissolved British rock quintet, the Moody Blues.

Manager Jerry Weintraub flew to London to listen to the record on New Year's Eve, and on his way back he decided to rent Carnegie Hall, as a promotion-stunt.

CBC Buys BBC Series

OTTAWA (CP) — A 26-week series of hour-long dramas, The Pallisers, has been purchased by the CBC from BBC-TV and will start on most CBC-TV stations next week.

Based on a series of six novels by Anthony Trollope written about 100 years ago, it capitalizes on the nostalgia that made The Forsyte Saga popular.

The central figure of the series, seen last fall on BBC-TV, is Plantagenet Palliser, an ernest young politician played by Phillip Latham. His wife, Lady Glencora, is played by Susan Hampshire, who was prominent in The Forsyte Saga.

The series carefully reconstructs the heyday of Queen Victoria's reign, a time when upper-crust marriages were still arranged between families, a wife's fortune went to her husband, and voting was still public and the franchise limited to those thought worthy of it.

Food Not Factor In Cold Allergy

By G. C HOSTESON, MD

Dear Doctor: I read with interest your discussion of "cryoglobulin" as a factor in cold allergy.

As a longtime suffering female with cold allergy I hope that I might have found the right diagnosis for my condition. I shall look for a doctor to help me. In the meantime, I am curious to know what type of treatment would overcome the lack of cryoglobulin in my blood. What type of food would be helpful, if any?—M.G.

Cryoglobulin is a form of protein that appears in the bloodstream and which, when exposed to cold, tends to gel or crystallize there. It can be a factor in some cold allergies, but not necessarily.

It is its presence, not absence, that is the factor in a person who has a cold allergy. Exposure to the cold makes the substance change its form, as I described above.

Food has no bearing on cryoglobulin production and it is not clear just how or why the substance appears or why it behaves differently in some people than in others.

If you have an allergy to cold then the cryoglobulin can be measured in laboratory tests.

Treatment, as in other allergies, consists of desensitization of the body, in this instance with daily showers of progressively cooler water temperatures. Histamine is used in cases of severe reactions, such as hives, which can result from a cold allergy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 45 years old and I'm considering plastic surgery on my large nose. I understand that no incisions are made on the outside, and that the removal of the bump is all done from the inside.

The question I have is this. If a nose is made smaller, logically there should be an excess of flesh that once covered a larger structure. Could I expect sagging skin?—Mrs. N.O.

You are correct in that the incisions are made from within the nostrils. The surgeon then proceeds to remove some of the cartilage, cutting it down to the desired shape. He will also adjust the ecess nasal tissue to the new shape. You wont have to worry about sagging skin.

You can expect some narrowing of the air passages, however.

Your surgeon will have studied the anatomy of your present nose thoroughly before the operation, and he will not proceed until he knows precisely how he is going to engineer your new nose shape.

And before you agree to having the surgery, he'll outline his plan of attack.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any diet you can go by to prevent getting arthritis? I am 78, and as yet I have had no signs of it. Knowing so many people who have become afflicted is beginning to frighten me.—Mrs. S.E.

Stop worrying. Arthritis affects about 7 million persons in the U.S. so you have, at 78, btaten some heavy odds already. The chances are very good you will continue to do so for the rest of your life.

But, in answer to your question, no, there is no diet to prevent or cure arthritis, all of the claims to the contrary notwithstanding. Just eat sensibly. If you are overweight, reduce to relieve any extra stress on susceptible joints.

And don't be frightened by mild joint disturbances, the stiffness, cracking, or aching which occurs naturally as your grow older. Keep active.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Hard Luck Joe likes to bid slams, in spite of the fact that his hard luck seems to leave him one or two tricks short.

Today's slam looked easy to him. He ruffed the second heart and laid down his ace of trumps. He paused for a moment to remark that trumps never broke for him, but this time it didn't really matter. Then he entered dummy with the king of clubs, finessed against East's jack of trumps, pulled the rest of the trumps and went after the diamonds. He had to overtake his jack of diamonds with dummy's king. Since West had hung on to all his four diamonds, Joe wound up down two.

"My breaks," groaned Joe. "I could have gone down just one, but with West holding four cards in each minor suit and East all the trumps, there was no way I could have made the hands."

Joe had run into an unfortunate distribution of the adverse cards, but he could and should have made the slam.

Befort entering dummy with the king of clubs, Joe should have cashed his queen and jack of diamonds. If East had ruffed, Joe would have been set, but that was a chance he had to take.

Then he could lead to dummy's king of clubs and start playing high diamonds. If East never ruffed Joe would discard three clubs and then lead and finesse trumps. If East ruffed Joe would overruff; pull East's last trumps and be able to ruff one club in dummy and discard the other two on good diamonds.

Auction Clock

Agriculture representatives from Japan and South Africa inspect Dutch clock auction method at exchange run by the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board at Tillsonburg, Ont. It is the only tobacco market in the world using the unique system and buyers and producers praise it as one of the most efficient systems anywhere. (CP Photo)

Ontario Tobacco Sold by Auction

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — A buyer stabs a button, the clock stops and another load of golden-yellow tobacco is sold.

The site is one of the three auction exchanges run by the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board where all of southwestern Ontario's flue-cured tobacco is sold.

The auction system is unique. It is the only tobacco market in the world using the Dutch clock method and buyers and producers praise it as one of the most efficient systems anywhere.

The three exchanges, in Tillsonburg, in Delhi seven miles to the east,and Aylmer just to the west, will handle about 235 million pounds of tobacco this year.

The Dutch clock, the key to the system, is a large dial marked off in quarter-cent gradations. The clock starts at 10 to 15 cents above the average selling price of the tobacco offered and moves backwards as the buyers watch.

When a buyer decides on a price, he hits his button, stopping the clock. Electronic gear ensures that only one button can be pushed at one time.

The producer has the option of rejecting the bid and the tobacco then can be re-offered.

The clock has been used since 1957, when producers banded together to sell through a marketing board auction

Previously, sales were handled by individual contracts between producers and buyers.

The farmers set up a special committee to work out details for the auction and after a great deal of lobbying, both for and against the board auction system, auction selling was adopted by referendum.

The organizing committee decided on the Dutch clock method after rejecting a live auctioneer.

The board takes one cent a pound sold to pay its expenses.

Buyers say they are pleased with the process because it allows them a wider choice of grades and a better look at the tobacco.

Lots of tobacco on offer are displayed in a room separate from the auction clock and buyers send teams of men to the sales.

While one member bids, others are inspecting the crop, keeping tallies and making transportation arrangements.

Prices have moved upwards since the system was initiated.

In 1957, the first year the auction was used, the price averaged 50.3 cents a pound on a 147.8-million-pound crop. That price was five cents above the 1956 average under private sales contracts.

This year, prices are averaging about 92.5 cents a pound.

However, daily sales have been slumping because of higher prices in the United averaging $1.05 a pound.

Flue-cured tobacco production in Canada last year totalled about 250 million pounds, with about 235 million pounds of that grown in Ontario.

Up to 2½ million pounds of tobacco a day can be sold in the three exchanges, with each handling as many as 1,200 separate sales.

STATUE DUMPED

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A proposed statue of the late President John F. Kennedy apparently has become another victim of the economy. Dennis J. Murphy Jr., director of the state department of natural resources said a request for $50,000 to construct the memorial has been dropped by the state legislature because of the money squeeze.

Ban Survival Games

ELLICOTT CITY, MD., (AP) — M. Thomas Goedeke, Howard County school superintendent, has prohibited the use of "survival games" in country schools. His directive followed complaints from parents about the use of the game Spaceship Earth at Hammond middle school. In it, students decided who on the spaceship should be given a limited amount of life-saving medicine. Goedeke said such choices for students are not educationally sound and "generally, youngsters are not mature enough to make these kind of judgments."

Senior Citizens Industries Doing Well

MONTREAL (CP) — Al Fisher knows the feeling of futility that comes with being out of a job, although not necessarily out of money. In other words, he is retired.

Having too much time and too little to do, Mr. Fisher founded Lancer Senior Citizens Industries "for those who should be doing more than pressing their faces against a window and watching the world go by."

Mr. Fisher, who retired six months ago from his supervisor's job at Air Canada, is finding companies that want to "farm out" jobs to the elderly.

There currently are four women on the company's payroll earning $2.30 an hour, filling envelopes with telephone memo pads at the rate of 4,000 a week.

"It's been great," said Mary Campbell of suburban Verdun as she sifted through a mountain of envelopes. "If not for this, I'd be sitting at home all day. The money is most welcome, too."

The contract calls for 250,000 envelopes to be mailed to addresses across Canada and will keep the women working for more than a year.

Mr. Fisher said he also would like to find work for elderly persons confined to the house.

He is considering products that are easily assembled and can be turned out in large quantities, from woollen dolls to fancy dusters, and sold to department stores.

Mr. Fisher applied unsuccessfully for grants from the Local Initiatives Program and the Westmount Centennial project last year.

"After that I decided to go on my own and I've invested about $4,000 in the scheme."

"Now I hope we can really get going for the benefit of those who are banking on us."

MORE JOBS IN EUROPE

BRUSSELS (AP) — During Britain's two years of membership in the European Common Market more than twice as many Britons have taken jobs in the continental member countries as there were continentals who went to work in Britain, says the market's executive commission.

Old Folk Tell Young About Past

EDMONTON (CP) — Marjorie Brown, 83, sits in a school classroom about twice a month to take the youngsters on a trip into the past, a journey on which she and the children give something to each other.

Mrs. Brown tells them about life in Alberta at the turn of the century.

"It does me more good than the kids," said Mrs. Brown, one of 15 old-timers who travel to schools under a program set up by the Society for the Retired and Semi-Retired.

Mrs. Brown sat with her hands folded on her lap as she began her story.

"I came from England when I was about 11 in a large boat, the Lake Manitoba." She had scattered memories of the voyage, remembering that "we ate a lot of lingfish (cod)."

"We haven't eaten it since."

The boat docked in Saint John, N.B., and her family took the train to the end of the line in Saskatoon. From there they made the 14-day trip to Lloydminster on the Alberta-Saskatchewan border in covered wagons.

"Lloydminster was just prairie, a big tent and two little tents. We bought food from the big tent.

"It rained and rained. They gave us old army tents that leaked.

"But none of us got sick. We'd lie in bed with an umbrella over our heads. Mom would scoop the water away from the end of the bed with a saucer.

When food was short, they ate bread covered with bacon fat. Mrs. Brown paused for a moment and then added:

"Anyway, we were happy."

The family built a log house. "We got the Indians to come and fill the space between the logs with mud. We didn't know how to do it.

"For our Christmas party, we used a big store that hadn't opened yet.

"We had a Santa Claus and a great big tree decorated with popcorn and paper chains pasted together with flour and water and paper flowers.

"We had candles on the tree. It wasn't very safe but nothing ever burned down."

Mrs. Brown fielded questions and had no difficulty developing rapport with the youngsters, since she has 15 grandchildren.

"It makes me feel young again."

CP News Roundup

Tax Policy Here Eases Slump

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Secretary William Simon of the United States said Tuesday he believes favorable corporate tax rates have kept Canada from having as severe an economic slump as the U.S.

He said the U.S. administration should have made similar decisions to stimulate business investment and now the administration is proposing similar action.

The Canadian tax cuts—reducing the top rate for manufacturing and processing companies—went into effect in 1973.

Mr. Simon met for almost two hours with Finance Minister John Turner after arriving in the afternoon for a 30-hour visit. Discussions mainly centred on economic issues affecting the two countries.

Mr. Turner said there was some discussion of international issues, including plans for a $25-billion fund to help pay oil debts. He said the agreement setting up this fund is expected to be signed in Paris April 8 at a meeting of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

Plan Early Opening

OTTAWA (CP) — The St. Lawrence seaway this year will open earlier than ever before unless there is bad weather a spokesman for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority said Tuesday.

The spokesman said the official opening date has been moved up to March 25 for both the Montreal-Lake Ontario and Welland canal sections. The original date, announced two months ago, was April 1.

Marchand Withdraws

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand withdrew Tuesday all recent remarks that might have been construed as charges of racialism against opposition MPs.

"I am perhaps wrong," he said of his comments. "I am certainly ready to withdraw without restriction."

Experts Take Sides

OTTAWA (CP) — A Senate committee was told Tuesday that much scientific research has been done on the effects of marijuana use but it is of limited value and sometimes misleading

Thomas Bryant, president of the Drug Abuse Council, a private organization based in Washington, D.C., told the Senate legal and constitutional affairs committee that science is becoming "a weapon in a battle between conflicting values and lifestyles" and many of the scientists are taking sides as either protagonists or antagonists

Seek Price Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — A hearing on an application from Trans-Canada PipeLines Ltd. for a major increase in natural gas prices will open April 29, the National Energy Board said Tuesday

The company is seeking an increase of 16 cents, about 20 per cent, on its present average price to utilities of 80 cents a thousand cubic feet, which if granted, would add about $30 a year to the bill of an average homeowner using natural gas for space heating and cooking.

Costs Prohibitive

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite numerous advantages, a countrywide railway system run by electricity will not be implemented for several years, Louis Gaston Boucher, special projects manager for Hydro-Quebec, said Tuesday.

The biggest drawback to such a network, popular in Europe, is prohibitive costs, he told a meeting of the Canadian Electrical Association, which groups the nation's electrical utilities and some manufacturers.

Suit Dismissed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A claim for damages by a Woodstock, Ont., couple in connection with a fire four years ago that injured their daughter was dismissed Tuesday in Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert John Spears sued for damages caused by a fire July 29, 1971 which damaged the interior of a two-storey, brick house and injured their daughter, Nancy Jane Spears, then 12.

The couple alleged the fire started in a pot of shortening which had been left on the stove by the babysitter.

The suit was against Pamela Jean Calligan, then 14, who watched the children.

Goons Blamed

TORONTO (CP) — Sulakhan Singh Hundal, a spokesman for a reform committee of the Shromoni Sikh Society, told a news conference Tuesday that the group's members were attacked Sunday at their temple by a "goon squad."

The committee repudiated accusations by temple president Gurchuran Jauhal who said Monday that fighting broke out because of a dispute with a radical group which wants to take over the temple.

Changes Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons procedure committee recommended Tuesday a series of changes aimed at streamlining the daily business of the House

The changes are designed to make more efficient use of the first hour or so of business at the start of each day If they are approved by the House, they probably will be effective on an experimental basis within the next month.

Turner Waiting For Job Trends

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner said Tuesday he is waiting to see whether more job-making action by the government is needed in the face of worsening unemployment.

Statistics Canada earlier reported 839,000 unemployed in February, up 22,000 in a month and 224,000 in a year. It is the highest number out of work since the government began collecting labor force statistics in 1953.

Opposition members of Parliament called for a new spending budget that would generate more jobs. But Mr. Turner reiterated that he is waiting to see how his budget plans of last Nov. 18 affect economic recession.

"It's working through the economy like a dose of salts," complained Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby), who proposed "a new budget with the prime focus of generating employment."

The unemployment rate in February rose to 86 out of every 1,000 members of the work force, the highest since the 91 out of 1,000 during February, 1962, when the country was in recession.

Adjusted to discount seasonal variation, the unemployment rate was 6.8 per cent, the highest since the 6.9 per cent of April, 1971

In the Commons, Manpower Minister Robert Andras was asked to do more to stimulate employment among young people because the jobless rate for persons under 25 was almost 15 per cent.

Mr. Andras said the government has budgeted as much for summer jobs this year as it did last year.

The government announced in January it will spend $67.1 million on its student summer employment program to provide 37,828 jobs directly, including $27.5 million for 20,000 jobs under the Opportunities for Youth program.

Last summer, the government allocated $66 million and provided 46,300 jobs, including $30.5 million for 24,000 OFY jobs. Pay rates for summer jobs this year have risen because of inflation.

Gray Says Consumers Pay for Farm Program

OTTAWA (CP) — A former cabinet minister suggested Tuesday that the federal government is saddling consumers with the cost of broadened federal measures to stabilize farm incomes.

Herb Gray, consumer affairs minister until dropped from the cabinet last August, said the government budgeted $301 million for farm-income stabilization in 1974-75. But he told the Commons the figure has dropped to $261 million for 1975-76 despite proposed legislation to widen income-support measures for farmers.

He questioned the lower figure and said he suspects that the consumers may be paying hidden costs.

His conclusion was challenged by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan who said initial spending forecasts are not final.

The government introduces supplementary spending estimates three or four times a year, primarily to compensate for unpredictable expenditures such as farm-income stabilization, he said in an interview.

Bourassa's In-law Charged

'Harborgate' Fraud Alleged Over Bids

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP took an industry to court Wednesday, charging 11 wealthy executives and eight major dredging companies with conspiracy to defraud the taxpayer of $4 million by bid-rigging.

Five more companies are to be arraigned March 19 and warrants are out for the arrest of three more men—one an in-law of Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa—who were out of the country Wednesday.

In the Commons, Harborgate—as the scandal has become known—was being described as a Watergate by members who called for a judicial inquiry into the political aspects of the affair.

The Progressive Conservatives have focused on suggestions that the investigation was delayed or impeded politically.

It is not clear just how the initial information came to authorities—Hamilton City Council raised the first public suspicions in September, 1972—but prosecutors left the impression that unnamed persons provided basic information and will testify.

In the Commons, New Democrat Ed Broadbent (Oshawa) noted that Hugh Martin, a prominent British Columbia Liberal, was among those charged Wednesday.

"With these trials pending, how can the opposition suggest the government is covering something up?" Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp replied.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand emphasized that the RCMP investigation, which last fall resulted in a number of charges in Hamilton, is continuing.

For Details Of Charges
See Page 8

"Does the government ... not make any distinction between criminal conduct and political misconduct, political stupidity or administrative incompetence?" asked Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley).

So far Harborgate has forced Ontario cabinet minister George Kerr to resign, landed exhausted federal Labor Minister John Munro in hospital, and embarrassed Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa.

Mr. Kerr resigned as Ontario solicitor-general earlier this year to fight allegations arising out of the RCMP investigation into the Hamilton Harbor Commission.

Mr. Munro, also elected in Hamilton, spent a week in hospital after a Commons battering followed disclosure that his name had been mentioned in the harbor commission investigation.

Three men pleaded guilty Feb. 5 to charges similar to those placed Wednesday and were fined $62,000. Two more pleaded not guilty and are awaiting trial after a preliminary hearing in which the political names apparently were dropped.

A warrant was issued Wednesday for Jean Simard, 53, who is related to Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa's wife and to Quebec Tourism Minister Claude Simard.

Jean Simard, vice-president of Marine Industries Ltd., a business built by the wealthy Simard family and now controlled by the Quebec government, was named in five of the six counts.

Marine Industries was named in two and J. P. Porter Co. Ltd was named in four. Mrs. Bourassa and the Simard family are reported to have substantial interests in both companies.

A lawyer advised that Simard was in Europe Monday on a month long trip and would be back. However, because conspiracy to defraud is an indictable offence, the accused had to be present for the arraignment or a warrant would be issued for them.

Three other Montrealers—Gerard Filion, Louis Rochette and Bruno Desjardins—were referred to outside the court Wednesday as "the French connection."

Industry Minister Alistair Gillespie hinted in the Commons the government may withhold a $1.2-million shipbuilding subsidy to Marine Industries until court action is completed.

The next major date is April 30, when steps will begin to hold a preliminary inquiry to determine whether there is enough evidence against the accused to warrant a trial. No pleas, if any, will be entered until after the inquiry.

HULL, Que. (CP) — Death by suicide was the verdict of a coroner's inquest investigating the death of Clarence Endugisick, 23, of Toronto, a member of the Native People's Caravan who died last fall in a police cell in Hull, Que. Mr. Endugisick was found dead in his cell shortly after his arrest during a Parliament Hill demonstration staged by caravan members Oct. 26. He apparently strangled himself with a torn piece of his blue jeans.

South Africa Vulnerable

OTTAWA (CP) — The recent Portuguese grant of independence to Angola and Mozambique could leave South Africa to face a major liberation war in Nambia, formerly South West Africa, the United Nations commissioner for Nambia said Tuesday. Sean MacBride said South Africa is without a large buffer zone now that the two former Portuguese territories are independent.

Alcohol Is Not Problem With CN Workers Here

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — Gil Sweezey, Canadian National superintendent of transportation, told a coroner's inquest here Wednesday he does not see alcohol as a problem in the Belleville CN area.

Testimony concerning the head-on collision of two CN trains last December continues to revolve around alcohol found in the body of one of the dead engineers and bottles found in the cab of his engine.

Authorities testified Tuesday that the alcohol level in engineer Keith Boyle's blood was measured at 80 milligrams of alcohol to 100 millilitres of blood.

Mr. Sweezey denied the problem was a serious one in the Belleville area, though the sytem for detection "could be inadequate".

"I think surveillance (before crews board the train) would be a good idea," said Mr. Sweezey.

North Vietnamese Score New Gains

SAIGON (AP) — New gains for North Vietnam's offensive in the central highlands were reported today, including the capture of another district town.

Fighting continued for the fourth day inside Ban Me Thuot where two Canadians are trapped.

North Vietnamese or Viet Cong forces also shot down a Vietnamese airliner in the highlands, killing all 26 persons aboard, U.S. sources reported. The passengers included a United States aid official, two other Americans and Australia's top diplomat in Hanoi.

The Australian embassy in Saigon confirmed that Graham Lewis, charge d'affaires in the North Vietnamese capital, was one of the 20 passengers.

The Americans were identified as Edward Dolan and Robert Seidl, both of Washington, D.C., and George Miller, an official of the U.S. Agency for International Development in Vientiane. Officials said Dolan and Seidl were employed by a company named Moore Business Forms.

U.S. sources said the Air Vietnam DC-4 was en route Wednesday from Vientiane, the Laotian capital, to Saigon when it was hit either by anti-aircraft fire or a hand-fired missile.

The sources said the plane crashed 12 miles southwest of Pleiku in a village near Thanh An, a district town that was under attack at the time.

The district town lost was Buon Ho, 25 miles northeast of Ban Me Thuot. There was no word of casualties.

Buon Ho was the sixth of South Vietnam's 244 district towns to fall in the last five days and the 17th lost since the signing of the ceasefire agreement two years ago.

Kissinger Believed To Have Found Key

CAIRO (AP) — The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram indicates U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger may have resolved the deadlock over Israel's demand for an Egyptian nonbelligerency pledge in return for a further pullback in the Sinai desert.

The newspaper says Egypt now is insisting that a fixed date or maximum time period for reconvening the Geneva peace talks must accompany any Israeli-Egyptian pact.

Al Ahram's shift of emphasis to the Geneva talks, which would follow a disengagement pact, was taken as an indication that the dispute over guarantees of peace may have been cleared up.

On Kissinger's flight Wednesday from Israel to Aswan, in upper Egypt, U.S. officials said the state secretary was considering a joint affirmation by Egypt and Israel that neighboring countries should not settle their differences by acts of war.

Final Bid For Accord Being Made

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Representatives of the federal government and striking blue-collar workers are meeting with a mediator in Ottawa today in a "final attempt" to end their dispute.

Jacob Finkalman, chairman of the Public Service Staff Relations Board said Wednesday in Ottawa that mediator Tom O'Connor, who failed in a previous attempt in the dispute, has been told to report results to the board within 48 hours.

Meanwhile, Claude Edwards, president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC), said he believes "we are coming to the hour of decision' that may result in the 18,600 general labor and trades workers discontinuing selective strikes. The strikes, begun more than three weeks ago, have halted grain shipments and disrupted postal and airport services.

FOREIGN DOCTOR BAN IN CANADA

'Damn!'

Doctors to Set Fees Without Negotiation

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Medical Association (OMA) will set its next fee increase without negotiations with the provincial government, Dr. M. L. Mador, association president, says in a letter to OMA members.

"The cheap game of victimizing a small segment of our population—the physicians—who have voluntarily committed themselves to seek peaceful and honorable solutions to the problems of heath care, must be ended," the letter says in part.

The letter follows agreement by a joint government-medical association committee for a four-per-cent fee increase effective May 1.

The medical association voted in January to stand by the agreement despite the dissatisfaction of some doctors who argue a 13-per-cent increase is needed to cover increasing office maintenance costs.

Ontario's 13,000 doctors now earn an average of $39,00

Scrap Deal Fraud Alleged

HAMILTON (CP) — A businessman who said Wednesday he fears for his life over what he knows of the Hamilton harbor scandal has been charged with fraud and conversion of funds in a different case.

Ken Barfknecht of Bolton, Ont., said on the CTV program Canada AM that police have told him contracts have been let on the lives of himself and his wife by unidentified persons.

Today it was disclosed that Mr. Barfknecht, a scrap dealer and president of Trans-continental Steel and Salvage Inc., has been charged in connection with an alleged $51,000 scrap deal last year.

Water Cannon Demonstrated

Water Gun Pleases Firemen

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Town firemen got their first wet taste Wednesday of a water cannon that can save manpower at a fire site and shoot a stream of water further, higher and faster than their existing equipment.

In a drizzle that lasted throughout the demonstration, firemen got their first look at a deluge nozzle that the fire chief has recommended council for purchase.

Valued at about $1,300, the nozzle is a free-standing piece of equipment that can shoot a jet of water through a 1½-inch nozzle at 100 pounds pressure an approximate 180 feet.

Also permanently attached to a fire truck, the nozzle can be fed by three hoses and, according to Cheif Cecil Ellis, it would have been a definite aid to firemen in the Gilbert Hotel blaze.

Bill Williams, Safety Supply Co. of Toronto distributor for the Stang Hydronics Inc. of California manufacturer, said various diameter, and type nozzles can be used with the equipment.

He said that because of its stability, the nozzle can be operated by one man, thus freeing others for other duties. By comparison, at 100 pounds water pressure, three men would have to wrestle with a 2½-inch hose.

Hastings Schools May Offer Special Class for Pregnant

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Hastings County Board of Education may consider a program to prevent girls from leaving secondary schools due to unwanted pregnancies.

Margaret Flett, the board's sole home-hospital instructor, has initiated discussions on the program. The program is expected to go before the board at the end of March for approval or rejection.

The program as yet unnamed, would establish a special class for pregnant high school students. It would be operated as extension of the home-hospital instruction service.

Mrs. Flett estimated last year alone more than 30 secondary school students left school. These girls would range in age from 14 to 19.

Mrs. Flett believes these girls should not have to lose a year because of their pregnancy. She estimated that about 50 per cent of the girls keep their babies.

Mrs. Flett explained the special class could be operated from the Ann St. Education Centre three days a week. Additional non-teaching personnel, such as a public health nurse, could take part in the program.

"Too many of these girls have to drop out of school and leave the city for the duration of their pregnancy," she added.

Mrs. Flett hopes the first class will begin in April. She said girls usually leave school about the fifth month of pregnancy.

She said such a class may affect between 15 and 25 students a year based on recent statistics.

"Despite our permissive society most girls who become pregnant still feel ashamed . . . this is what forces them to leave school," explained the 36-year-old mother of four.

Mrs. Flett said she would work very closely with area doctors in initiating the new program.

CAN RHEUMATIC FEVER BE PREVENTED?

Unfortunately its cause is not completely clear. We do know that about half of all cases have had tonsilitis or a sore throat from one to four weeks before.

It must be recognized before the heart is seriously injured. Only a physician can diagnose it. Protect your children. Always consult your Doctor when they have a fever or sore throat. If the diagnosis is early, rheumatic fever is not as dangerous.

Gutted Hotel Structure Hazard to Public Safety

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Town officials will tell the owners of the fire-ravaged Gilbert Hotel to tear down two walls of the century-old Trenton landmark since both are a potential danger to the public.

The order comes following inspection of the gutted three-storey building by the commissioner of works, building inspector and fire chief.

The downtown hotel, valued at about $340,000, was gutted by flames during a five-alarm fire early Tuesday.

After Wednesday's inspection, works commissioner Arie Hoornweg said the order will be issued as a public safety measure.

East and west walls at the hotel's rear are not supported above the second floor, he said. "Those walls are dangerous,".

He said a heavy snow fall, or high winds, could send them crashing down into Murphy St. and the parking lot behind the line of stores fronting on Dundas St.

The walls are free-standing, said Trenton FiFre Chief Cecil Ellis Wednesday, because his men were forced to cut a gaping strip across the width of the hotel's roof to stop flames from spreading to the front of the building.

Had firemen not cut open a hole in the roof, said the chief, flames would have "taken out" some of the stores along Dundas St.

Co-inciding with the town inspection, a fire marshal from Ontario Fire Marshal's Office was going over the hotel to investigate the validity of the chief's suspicion the fire was the work of an arsonist.

Murphy Street Closed

TRENTON — Murphy St. has been closed to through traffic temporarily as town officials wait for the owners of the Gilbert Hotel to comply with an order to tear down the hotel's free-standing walls.

With the roof at the hotel's rear burned away, sections of the walls of the third storey are not supported and pose a danger to the public.

Town works commissioner Arie Hornweg has closed Murphy St., upon which the hotel abuts, to traffic. Snow fencing has been strung across the street from the Jet Restaurant back to the Quinte Hotel.

Owners of stores fronting on Dundas St. east of the hotel will be warned not to use the parking lot behind their shops because officials fear a wall may collapse under snow or wind pressures.

Rotarians Proceeding With Rawdon Dam

STIRLING — The Stirling Rotary Club's dam building project took one step closer to reality this week when Authority (LTCA) resources manager Brian Boyce spoke to the club.

Rotarian Bob Fallis, former deputy-reeve of Stirling, said when he was on council last year, town fathers endorsed the idea of the Rotary Club installing a dam on Rawdon Creek in downtown Stirling.

Mr. Boyce had explained to the Rotarians that municipal council can ask through a motion that the conservation authority do the project.

"The Rotary Club could provide the municipality's portion of the levy. That would get you your grant money," Mr. Boyce suggested.

Rotarian Graham Mouck asked Mr. Boyce if the dam would interfere in any way with flooding.

"I mentioned it to the engineer. There is a problem through the area. It is a critical waterway; there are buildings on both sides, but the engineer has accepted it and worked around it," Mr. Boyce replied.

"There is a small problem of flow back-up. Any construction causes a damming effect. The banks are high on either side. That dam would not affect the outcome if there was a major flood."

Rotarian George Noble recalled when part of downtown Stirling was flooded in 1950, but noted this was caused by the dam immediately upstream from the proposed site of the Rotary dam.

The new dam would be near the bridge on Front St. The old dam will still remain in use. The new one is designed to make the downtown more attractive.

As far as pollution goes, Mr. Boyce said that about a mile to the east two branches of Rawdon Creek merge. "The north branch is trout water quality," he noted. "The south branch has a high B.O.D. When the north and south branches mix you have a decrease in quality, but not significantly."

Afterwards, Mr. Boyce explained B.O.D. as meaning biochemical oxygen demand which is a measure of organic matter in the water.

Government and People

In our system of government — responsible democracy — the people who govern are supposed to be responsive to the needs and wishes of those they represent.

Well, do you support the Trudeau government's recent announcement of immigration curbs? Do you think the federal cabinet should continue the practice of commuting death sentences of convicted murderers?

These are only two of the many issues that concern many Canadians who feel helpless about the chances of expressing their viewpoints.

Certainly you can write your member of parliament, but most people are beginning to realize that only in unity is there strength of the promotion of any viewpoint.

That's what groups like the Committee for an Independent Canada are all about, and another one we have just run across called The Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

The non-profit organization lists two main objectives: "to promote and protect a system of free competitive enterprise in Canada" and "to give the independent a greater voice in laws governing business and the nation."

Chartered in 1971, the federation now has 24,000 members, of which 95 are from Belleville.

Through a monthly publication known as "Mandate", members get the opportunity of giving opinions on three main issues, arguments for and against being printed alongside the ballots for background information.

For example, the March issue of Mandate polled subscribers' views on the rate of Canada's population growth; possible legislation that would prevent oil companies from directly operating gasoline retail outlets; and the lowering of railway freight rates.

Each issue gives the percentage results of the previous month's "mandates", which are then forwarded to "every elected member of the federal and provincial parliaments, senior civil servants, and Senators."

February's survey showed that 68.5 per cent of those responding were against legislation requiring bilingual labelling on prepackaged products.

Granted, such associations are particularly interested in getting a point of view across that has the best interests of its membership at heart.

But there is nothing to stop anyone from forming his own committee, lobby, pressure group, or what have you. That's participatory democracy. The Federation itself, sprang from the now dissolved Canadian Council for Fair Taxation, which claimed responsibility for modification of then Finance Minister Benson's controversial white paper on taxation.

And don't think the lowering of the initial proposal to raise MPs' salaries didn't result from a nationwide wave of protest.

It beats sitting on your hands and complaining for four years between elections.

Florida Connection

Times can't be all that bad.

There are so many Canadians visiting Florida every year — 500,000 of us that a London, Ont. company is publishing a newspaper designed to provide tourists with news from back home.

Wholly Canadian in content, The Daily Canadian is printed in Sarasota and available for newsstand, vending box, and mail distribution in most Florida areas.

No to Soup and Crackers

There will always be those, especially in the inflationary circumstances of our times, who say that Royalty is an expensive luxury.

Indeed it says a lot for the strength in our midst of "creeping republicanism" that Ottawa city council has voted only just short of a meal of soup and crackers for Prince Charles during his visit on April 21. The council of the nation's capital turned down Ald. Georges Bedard's proposal by a narrow 8-6 margin.

It took another alderman with the unlikely Royalist name of Joe Quinn to observe that "it's despicable to speak against the Royal Family . . . We in this country are part of the British Empire."

"We should be glad," he added, "to contribute to a visit by the Queen or the prince. The $15,000 amounts to a nickel apiece for each citizen."

Why then are some Canadians forever picking on the Royal Family whose lineage has been around for a long time, who have enjoyed the respect and admiration of generations of Commonwealth citizens, and have contributed greatly as an acknowledged force for unity and stability in the working out of our system of western democracy?

What's a million, or even a few thousand these days anyway? Didn't Prime Minister Trudeau take the taxpayers for $12,715 worth of contributions for three holidays in 1974, being the cost of air transportation for same. And doesn't Ottawa shell out countless thousands more in aid to dubious causes overseas, for Canada Council grants to strange "cultural" activities and groups, and for potted plants and "junk" art in and around government buildings?

Prince Charles probably would not object to soup and crackers — if Ald. Bedard and Royalty's other vociferous critics submit to similar fare — but it should be viewed not as an opportunity to humiliate the Royal Family but rather to cut spending all along the line in Canada — an exercise in thrift for which there is considerable need.

Suntan Syndrome

The handsome young man in the ice-cream and burger place had a great tan on his bewhiskered face . . . then it came out where he had acquired it: Florida; he was acquainting a pal in earnest tones of the intricacies of airline baggage handling on his trip south.

As we have pointed out, Florida is almost an extension of Canada — a sort of southern and more agreeably climatized Alaska.

The trek south begins to gain momentum about this time, when winter hangs on and northern temperatures flag, and folks pine for warmth and beaches and palm trees.

For the rest of us, still hanging on up here, there are memories of Quinte country heat waves in April — and at least of less chilled days ahead.

Correction

In an Editor's note to a letter headed, Communism in the World Today, from Kingston Onlooker, in Monday's Intelligencer, the opening sentence read: "If you wish to equate the shortcomings of western democracy with those of communism, then give us the latter." In this we were in error . . . the word "latter" should have read "former."

Wider Range of Pension Benefits Available in 1975

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The Canada Pension Plan is being broadened this year to include a greater range of benefits and higher retirement pensions.

One significant change has been the elimination of earnings tests. Contributors to CPP now may apply to have their retirement pensions begin as early as age 65 even if they continue to work.

As well, CPP retirement pensions will no longer be reduced if the pensioner keeps on working or takes new employment.

Here is the choice given to persons between the ages of 65 and 69, as described by CPP administrators:

—Either apply now and start receiving CPP retirement pensions, even if they continue working. (You may make no more contributions to CPP after you start to receive the pension, however).

—Or continue to contribute to CPP and possibly build up a larger pension to begin later.

If you choose to take your pension as early as possible, apply to the CPP office nearest you two or three months before your 65th birthday.

In any event, no application should be delayed after the 70th birthday. Beyond that age, nobody is eligible to contribute to CPP, even if employed.

The size of any pension depends upon the amount of contributions made to the plan during one's working years. Maximum monthly CPP pensions are $122.50 for the retired and $139.35 for the disabled.

Since CPP was launched in 1966, rampant inflation has eroded the value of contributions and pensions.

To help maintain the purchasing power of the pension, the yearly maximum pensionable earnings (YMPE) are being increased year by year.

This year's ceiling is $7,400, up from $6,600 last year. (The CPP lump-sum death benefit is one-tenth of YMPE, and has accordingly risen to $740 for deaths occurring in 1975, from $660 in 1974).

Starting with 1976, YMPE will be calculated on a new formula designed to increase the ceiling 12.5 per cent annually until it equals the average industrial wage in Canada.

For 1976, YMPE will be $8,300. Health Minister Marc Lalonde has estimated that it will exceed $13,000 by the early 1980s—which would bring maximum pension benefit payable to about $250 a month.

The CPP benefits are being further broadened this year by the elimination of discrimination on the basis of sex.

Men have become eligible for benefits equal to those accorded to women—or nearly so.

That means that a widower is eligible to receive benefits that have always been available to widows—a monthly pension for the surviving spouse who is over 35 at the time of the death of the contributor, or under 35 but disabled or with dependent children.

Another new move toward liberalization: A widow or widower may be eligible for a survivor's pension, even though the marriage took place after the deceased contributor had started to receive the retirement or disability pension.

And, in the case of disability pension only, a benefit is payable to the child of a contributor even if the child was born or adopted after the contributor became disabled.

One question still to be answered: How much more can the department of health broaden CPP benefits before the department of finance digs in its heels over the mounting cost?

Ear-defenders Protect Workers And Provide a Musical Touch

BBC London Letter

Workpeople sometimes think they are getting used to the noise of surrounding plant or machinery but in fact they are going slowly deaf under the battering of their eardrums. But even when they know the danger they are hard to persuade to wear officially-provided ear-defenders. Now this may change — there is a defender with a built-in persuader.

Many workpeople, he said, don't like the feeling of isolation they get when the noise from their surroundings is muffled by ear-defenders, even when the defenders are the sort designed to let speech through relatively little quietened while stopping the really loud and damaging noises.

One way to remove this sense of isolation and at the same time give a person a positive incentive to wear ear-defenders is to turn the defenders into headphones through which music is played.

But a headphone plugged into a wall socket in effect tethers a person to the spot, which can be dangerous as well as a nuisance. The right answer is wire-less transmission of the music to the headphones, and this is the new ear-defender system that has just been launched by the British firm Rediffusion Reditune Ltd.

The new system is claimed to be the first complete package of its kind, providing musical entertainment and possibly spoken information through the ear-defenders. Rediffusion Reditune are already in the background-music business, and claim to be Britain's, indeed Europe's, biggest company in this field.

They say their taped music library is the biggest of its kind in the world, with 18,000 titles, updated with a thousand new titles a year. So an employer who adopts this ear-defender system should not run short of material to content his workpeople!

Anyone who does not want the "piped" music at any time can switch it off with a control knob on one of the earpieces. He can use the same knob to control the volume of the music too.

The defenders have been developed for the company by a former BBC development engineer, Barry Pyatt. After six years with the BBC he spent two years in showbusiness as a performer, but then came back to his first love, engineering, this time with Rediffusion Reditune Ltd.

He has adapted a commercial type of ear-defender, trademarked Amplivox Sonogard, of the sort used to protect workers' hearing against noise on airport runways. In the adapted model the plastic-foam-filled earpieces serve not only to cut down the din but also to house a battery in one earpiece and an amplifier in the other.

This may make the defender seem almost too impregnable, but in fact the wearer can hear what is said to him by a person nearby. Tests have shown that the loss of understanding of speech with music in one ear only is much less than with music in both ears.

Former members of the Belleville Y's Men's Club from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Niagara Falls will join with present members at a banquet observing the 30th anniversary of the founding of the local club, on Saturday March 19.

Members of City Council voted unanimously to continue the present system of garbage collection after looking over a number of tenders from individual citizens.

With the unprecedented demand for trapping licences it seems that district trappers are out to supply the demand for muskrat hides for next season. Successful trappers frequently obtain from four to five hundred rats each, while trappers have been know to secure upwards of a thousand in one season.

Premier Davis Relies On Own Opinion

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The Canadian Gallup Poll has finished the series of surveys it did for Toronto Star on Ontario politics.

This series, of course, was the one which reported that the Conservatives were dropping drastically behind the Liberals.

It would have been hard to take for any PC leader.

But the survey that would have hurt Premier Davis the most would have been the last one, which found that a large section of the public thought he was arrogant, and only a small sector thought he was honest.

The main theme that may be taken from this last piece is that despite the selling job that has been done on him, the Ontario public has a poor knowledge of the real Bill Davis.

To deal with the second point first there really is no question of his honesty.

He may be politically naive.

In his days as a private member and then when he entered the cabinet there is at least grounds for suspicion that he would hustle deals through for constituents or his constituency in getting quick clearances for such things as new developments.

But I believe that not even his most ardent opponent has ever thought that any money found its way into his pocket through these activities.

He was doing what, in his mind, a loyal elected member should do for his constituents.

As for the charge of "arrogance" this would both puzzle and hurt him.

One can't say for sure just on what this public impression is founded. But one can guess.

As a person socially, a human being, Davis is not arrogant.

As a social person Davis, in fact, shows a certain humility rather than arrogance.

He is not pretentious and is not domineering.

But he does have a very strong sense of his own opinions and the tendency to take advice briefly, if at all.

And this could be his greatest political weakness.

A good leader has to run his own show.

But in politics he also has to let the public, his subjects, think they are having their say. Think? Believe!

And this ability Davis hasn't shown to date.

Strikes: Ottawa Should Act

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

It is time for the Government of Canada to act firmly with strikes in all the essential service areas.

A policy of binding arbitration, should and must be adopted; unless Canada is to be brought to its knees by unions! England was! A thing Hitler could not accomplish!

Certainly the many illegal walk-outs prove the irresponsibility of the unions and their inability to control their membership; led mainly by instigators in their midst. No doubt, being paid by alien powers, to disrupt a country forging ahead, as a leader of nations. It is food for thought, after the many work stoppages, Canada has and is now experiencing.

How much more is the general public to put up with? Can the Government continue to ignore the seriousness of the situation? Action! Strong action is called for, not the soft-pedalling, that has been taking place since 1967. Are the political parties afraid of losing voters, should a stand be taken? They should not be!

All parties must unite on this issue and bring a halt to essential service strikes throughout Canada. With fair and binding arbitration.

MRS. L. K. PARCELLS.

Fireworks at City Council

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

City council meetings these days seem subject to temper and tantrums. First, Mayor Jeffrey stalked out in high dudgeon during deputations. Last Monday, Alderman Corke had his day. He left in a fit of petulance when he was overruled by the rest of council.

Wasn't it Alderman Corke who lectured at length on so called — "frivolous" candidates after the election?

Perhaps these happenings are understandable. Council, like a ship without rudder seems to drift without a sense of direction. There appears to be nobobdy at the helm.

Mayor Jeffrey and city manager Wilbur Purcell seem bent on ramming a minimum standards bylaw down our throats. The little piece of gimmickery used to prise $104,000 from the province, although not enforceable, showed enough of the "intent" to give fair warning to Bellevillians they are about to lose a lot of their freedom, and, in many cases, possibly, be forced to spend a lot of hard-earned cash.

Last Monday's meeting made it obvious that we have, at this time, one of the most mediocre councils for years. But then, with only 29 per cent of the electorate voting, we should expect nothing else.

The monumental misunderstanding by all members of council, with the possible exception of Alderman Cox, regarding the so-called "guideline" strategy bodes ill for the next two years.

In passing, whatever happened to the two new members on council? Have they no opinions or feelings regarding what is going on? I don't recall either of them so much as grunting — quite different from their election approach.

Living Life of Poverty Rewarding for Some

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — The custodian of a local school in Stirling laughs and says these young people really like to use the hot water. He is referring to members of Project Christopher who come to the school shower when they are at their local quarters in a Rawdon Township farm home owned by farmer Bob Mathews.

"We can live like tramps all our lives, but we are interested in cleanliness," Father John Brayier said in an interview. "The hardest thing getting used to is sharing."

The farm home is important to the group. One of three youths from Chicago explained "Working with a lot of people sometimes is an emotional and spiritual drain. Coming back here helps. Physical work is a big help."

Father John says "One neighbour thinks we are a bunch of hippies."

The group travels for two to four weeks. Currently, they are in Thunder Bay, having worked there way up there travelling through the United States conducting Christian programs on the way.

Frank McGeragle explained that this is the first year they have been asked to run a program in a school Tait Brown added that since it is a Catholic school, the program is more Christian orientated.

"Most public schools won't let us have the same type of program, since they would then have to let other religious groups in." Project tional, Father John pointed out.

In schools throughout Canada and the U.S., members of Project Christopher take classes outside of the school for two days, not going into the schools formally. "Our only formal relationships with the schools is with the programs we do" Tait said.

"Grades 8,9 and 10 are really action orientated," Tait pointed out. "They like to see some action rather than talking about it. We arrange for them to go out and help with chores for two hours. To be a Christian you must reach out and help others."

Discussions are held over the two days and the last night parents are invited for the program, Tait added. "Students can see what we are talking about is not just for them, but for their families too."

"The needs of youth are quite different today than they were fie years avgo," Father John said. "We keep evaluating the program. We have started a new family program which starts on a saturday morning at 10 and runs until 6 p.m. This is from parents asking 'how about doing something for us,' and I said I'll do something for the whole family."

"Basically we are a catalyst trying to help youth and their families," Father John concluded.

Members of Project Christopher live a life of poverty. Their source of income is selling candles which they make from coffee cup molds. "Good people" who believe in their work have donated three cars for the extensive travelling the Christophers do.

Day at the farm house are spent listening to lectures by Father John doing physical labour, and observing two hours of silence.

Funds In Limbo

A $2,000 grant remains in the recreation-arena budget earmarked for a service club which had requested more.

Unfortunately, the recreation-arena committee was told Thursday the request of the Kinsmen Club — which operates a community swimming pool — was in the mail the day the committee was debating the estimates. When it arrived the budget draft already had been completed — and the Kinsmen allotment remained at the same $2,000 granted in 1974.

However, several committee members were reluctant that the club should think — because of its community service — that it was being turned down flat on its request for the $1,000.

Professor to Speak On Limits to Growth

Dr. R.J. Uffen, a Queen's University professor and a Canadian member of the Group of Rome, will speak at the Four Seasons Hotel tonight on the Limits to Growth Controversy — Mankind at the Turning Point.

The Club of Rome, a small informal group of about 25 private citizens from about 25 countries, has sponsored studies about the great difficulties lying ahead for the world.

The group's first report, Limits to Growth told of possible doom within 50 years unless the affluent nations change their extravagance.

The second report, Mankind at The Turning Point, is about to be published. It is more optimistic about future. It describes how the affluent countries help developing countries.

Dr. Uffen's talk starts at 8 p.m. tonight and is open to the public. There will be a dinner at 6 p.m.

Ellis Wants More Data On VHF Station Closing

From the Ottawa Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — The federal government has not yet made a decision on whether to close down a Kingston-based VHF marine radio station serving shipping on the eastern end of Lake Ontario, Jack Ellis (PC—Hastings) was told this week.

Mr. Ellis complained at a meeting of the standing House of Commons transport committee that the government intends to close down the one-man station in Kingston and instead operate a transmitter controlled from a station at Cardinal.

Roy Illing, director of the transport department's marine transportation administration, told Mr. Ellis that the proposal to close down the independent Kingston station is still being studied.

The committee, discussing the department's supplementary estimates for the current fiscal year, was told by Mr. Ellis that the VHF service is not good but have saved a number of lives. The primary function of the service is to that a satellite in Cardinal date marine weather information.

Mr. Ellis said later he is concerned with the possibility that a stacllite in Cardinal would not provide accurate Kingston-area weather information and the chance that a severe storm could knock out the transmission lines between Cardinal and Kingston.

The MP said he would write Mr. Illing to formally request more information on the subject.

Buddhists Seek Funds for Monks

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Tibetan community is seeking sponsors for a program which will help young Tibetan refugee monks continue their education. . .

Dawa Goff, a Tabetan immigrant and organizer of the refugee program, said $40 a year will sponsor a Tibetan Buddhist monk in India.

She said more than 80,000 Tibetan refugees live in northern India. Tibet has been occupied by the Chinese since 1959.

Mrs. Goff, who immigrated to Canada in 1971, said the Tibetan resettlement colonies in India harbors many Buddhist monks who because of economic conditions can not continue their studies in Buddhism.

Mrs. Goff made a trip to northern India in 1974 to visit the Tbetan refugee camps. She said the monks now must toil in the fields to earn a living rathern than studying.

She said that several Belleville residents have already pledged $40 a year to support the study of these monks.

Mrs. Goff, 41, explained the funds allow the monks a living allowance.

She also said a sponsor would receive letters and photographs from the monk involved.

It is expected Belleville's Tibetan population of about 60 will take an active part in this program.

The refugees escaped to India during the communist take-over.

MP Says Lack of Policy Hampering Rail Service

More people can be moved more swiftly and economically by railroad than any other system, says Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

But Canada lacks a transportation policy to match the potential, he told the Commons as he called for a fresh approach to railroad transit.

What are needed are high-speed corridors between major centres, free of grade crossing, and use of new power sources — notably electricity.

"Why are we continuing to use fossil fuels when the one source of energy Canada has in abundance — electricity — is so obviously a better choice," he asked the Commons recently.

Railroad passengers have been plagued by increasing costs and deteriorating service.

Canadians now are "substantially subsidizing a transportation system that operates contrary to public interest."

Canada has all the resources to become a leader in rail travel, said the MP.

"What's needed is a decent transportation policy. We don't have one now and won't have until we have a (transportation) minister who is prepared to tackle the job properly."

Belleville-Lahr Flight Draws Growing Interest

Belleville travel agents can now start seriously booking for the special friendship charter flight of Bellevillians to their city's municipal twin — Lahr, in West Germany.

The city's three travel firms, who formed a co-oerative booking agency for the flight, have now received their charter licence, said Frank Murray, Radio Station CJBQ manager, who initiated the trip's concept.

The charter is designed to carry 200. But "from what the agents have told me more than half the space is spoken for already," said Mr. Murray.

The two-week trip, leaving Trenton by Air Canada jet June 1, was conceived at increasing contact between Bellevillians and citizens of their twinned city.

To date, such contact has involved exchange programs between civic officials, professionals and students.

After the initial official greetings meetings, and events immediately following arrival, the participants are free to book themselves a variety of European holidays out of Lahr — strategically sited near Switzerland and Austria for starters.

Candians are not newcomers to the citizens of German city. Lahr is headquarters for Canada's NATO contingent, and about 10,000 Canadians already live in the area.

But Lahr has responded officially to the friendship flight project — as indicated by a schedule of events he has now received followed a recent organizational visit, Mr. Murray said.

For instance:

On arrival the visitors will be welcomed at city hall by its mayor, Oberburgermeister Philipp Brucker.

That night in a city park they will be entertained to a son-et-lumiere presentation — a history of the city and its surrounding Black forest region in sound, lights and music.

Church services have been arranged for Sunday which also brings walking tours in the Black Forest with local families. That night a special reception has been arranged at the city hall.

Monday, bus tours have been organized — one that crosses the French border to Strabourg, and a briefter trip covering Lahr and environs.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey is taking the trip and will make reciprocal gesture by holding a reception said Mr. Murray.

Ann Landers

Spray Turns Him Off

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to you because my wife and I have a problem which is not serious but nevertheless bothers me and I told her (in a light-hearted way) that I was going to write to Ann Landers.

She said, "Go ahead. I'd be glad to hear what the old girl has to say."

The troublemaker: Hair spray. I do not like the smell, feel or looke of it. I've told my wife repeatedly that I like her hair naturally loose, unplastered, and smelling like hair.

I believe a woman's hair is one of her major assets, especially if it's pretty, and my wife's is. I guess maybe I'm a hair lover. It turns me on. Hair spray turns me off.

We are quite happily married and have been for 14 years. This is no great threat to our marriage, but I thought I'd write and ask for your opinion.—St. Joe, Mich., Reader

Dar Joe: I'm at a disadvantage because I don't know what your wife's hair looks like, nor do I know how much hair spray she uses. If she sprays her head till it's as hard as a block of concrete, that's one thing. A light spray to hold the set in place is something else.

If I were your wife I'd (1) buy the unscented variety (2) brush my hair through just before you came home to dinner and (3) certainly go to the loose and natural look at bedtime.

Dear Ann Landers: My daughter, Mildred, is 28 and unmarried and she has a friend who has been cheating on her husband for several years. The friend uses Mildred as a cover-up. The three of them go all sports of places together and the married woman tells her husband that the gentleman is my daughter's boyfriend.

Mildred is a fine person and I hate to see her used like this. Last week I mentioned again the dangers of becoming involved in such a mess should her friend's husband learn of the "arrangement." It was then that Mildred confessed that she is in love with the man and has reason to believe that he likes her a great deal. But her loyalty to her friend makes it impossible to allow the man to express his true feelings.

Where does loyalty end and self-interest take over? Please tell me so I can tell Mildred.—Wringing My Hands

Dear Wringing: Mildred is 28 years old. I don't think you can tell her much of anything. Nor do I believe that Mildred's loyalty to her friend would deter her if the gentleman gave her a solid signal. I never did buy that old line about "honor among thieves."

Say 'No' And Mean It

In a sampling of 46 people, including fathers, mothers, sons and daughters, one of the questions asked was: "How can a young person refuse a drink if he doesn't want one?"

All agreed that the thing to do was say "No" and stick to it.

The expressions used to mitigate the refusal were interesting: "Not right now — I don't care for it." "I would prefer a soft drink." "I'm not of age yet."

Brave words were used to bolster the decision: "Have your own convictions and stick to them. They'll respect you more."

Diversionary tactics were recommended — accept the drink and nurse it without drinking, or "Take it to the washroom, dump it and fill the glass with water. Refuse invitation for a refill by pointing to full glass."

Pressure to conform seemed to be less than most parents believe. Some mothers said refusal would be difficult when a girl is out with someone she is trying to impress.

One boy dissented: "Refusing is a pretty hard thing to do. You don't want to be left out or looked down upon. It takes a lot of guts to say 'No'. However," he admitted he would not be made unwelcome.

AROUND TOWN

LANA ROBINSON

(. . . an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's new around town.)

With a New Bedroom Suite

The people at Wray's Home Furnishers, 306 Front St. are pretty knowledgeable when it comes to their customers. They know that if you buy a new bedroom suite from their quality selection, you're going to need a new mattress and box spring too. And they're going to help you out there. If you buy any new mattress with your bedroom suite purchase, you will pay only half price for the matching box spring. That bears repeating — any new mattress, with any new bedroom suite and the matching box spring is at half price only. So there's no better time for that bedroom suite purchase than now. Right?

Trim The Red Tape

Gord Roblin Real Estate, 117 North Front St. is looking for building lots, especially in the country. The procedure for severing a building lot from your existing property can be a frustrating one because of the procedure involved. But Gord Roblin Real Estate can help you by telling you if it's feasible to sever your porerty, what it's worth and so on. They can't eliminate the necessary red tape but they can help to trim it a little. All you have to do is call a member of the Gord Roblin sales staff. One number to dial is all you have to know. And that number is, simply, 968-6475.

What a Saturday

Saturday, cold though it was, had to be one of the most glorious days of the winter. And by the large, our main roads were dry too. You had the perfect day to visit the Inn On The Bay Tavern in Picton for lunch, didn't you? If you did take that route, I'm sure you enjoyed yourselves. And if you didn't, you have this Saturday. It doesn't really matter what the weather is like, though. The atmosphere and cuisine of the Inn On The Bay Tavern will brighten any dull day or make any bright day even brighter. Lunch is served from noon until 2:00 p.m. For reservations call Picton, 476-3114.

Bathroom Renovation

Belleview Glass and Mirror, 354 Pinnacle St. have something to say and do about any bathroom renovations you're planning. They have a good selection of medicine cabinets, shower doors, and tub enclosures. And that's not beginning to mention the decorating advantages of mirrors. A small or oddly-shaped bathroom can become a masterpiece of decor with just your imagination and the resources of Belleview Glass. Drop in and see the selection of all these great bathroom improvements. Make a chore a delight with some great help.

See — But Don't Touch

The Tropical Garden Pet Shop, 301½ Front St., has a new resident — a 4½ inch Black Piranha. Piranhas are South American carniverous fish, for those of you who didn't know. They are fish which should be kept only by experienced aquarists! (That's a new word I learned from Mel Sherwood this week). But there's nothing preventing you from visiting the Tropical Garden Pet Shop to take a look, even if you aren't an experienced aquarist. While you're there, you should look and listen to the recent shipment of canaries. Now there's a pet we can all handle.

A Great Mix

If you haven't visited the new premises of Vader's Car Sales on College St., right around the corner from their previous North Front St. location, you should. You could even save some money for your efforts. The greatly increased showroom space proudly displays two great years of Datsuns — new 74s and new 75s and you can take your pick. The 74s have price advantages over their newer brothers and sisters, but aren't available in all models of these great Datsun cars. The 75s are coming on in full force, for sure. But let the sales staff of Vader's tell you all about what they've got to offer. They've really got something to talk about. You will too!

The Hot Line

Studio 231, at 231 Front St. have a new hot line. And it's not plugged into any telephone. Their hot lines are hot orange, hot yellow, and a real cool white, vibrant colors of a vibrant spring wardrobe waiting for you at Studio 231. And there's lime to make you think salads and lime sherbet and hot summer days. The look in which these luscious colors manifest themselves is the "Safari Suit", a simple but 'oh so smart' look that you can dress up or down. But the big thing are all the colors — and the place too, of course — Studio 231. They're waiting for you.

Worth Looking Into

Next month you're going to be seeing the above slogan quite a bit. It's the new slogan of Trenton Optical, 54 Bridge St. E. Being a teacher of advertising, I know how important a good slogan is. This slogan is good but it wouldn't matter much how good it was, if the service and products provided by Trenton Optical didn't match the calibre of the slogan. In this case, they do, as you'll see when you visit the Bridge St. office to investigate the range of Trenton Optical's frames selection or when you call 962-9311 to arrange an opthalmological examination through Trenton Optical. Trenton Optical really is worth looking into.

Two Ways To Save

There are two ways to save on carpet through the Sidney Inn Carpet Division at the Rear of the Mutual Life Building. Those two ways are Church St. or Pinnacle St. You can get to this great place of carpet savings by entering either by Church St. or Pinnacle St. And what you'll see when you get there are box ends at $2.95 a sq. yard, mill seconds at $4.95 a sq. yard, and full bales at similar savings. At Sidney Inn's Carpet Division, you can choose from many fibres, textures, designs and colors too. All you have to do is get there and now you know the way — or ways.

Reduction on Quality

Superior T.V., 103 Cannifton Rd., is now offering substantial reductions on 26 inch and 22 inch Hitachi color sets in stock. And the reductions are substantial — up to $150. When you buy any color set from Superior T.V. you receive a two year warrantee. So if something goes wrong, you buy only parts. But on all solid state parts of Hitachi sets, there is a warrantee of five years. Now, how can you lose on this proposition? You'll get a top quality color T.V. set, with two unbeatable warrantees, one from the manufacturer, and the other from the firm who sold you the set. That's how consumers should be treated.

ALL IN THE FAMILY/Isabel Huggan

Does Age Divide Your Family Home, Or Does Everyone Belong Together?

Families seem to fall into two categories.

Some adopt the "we're all in this together" theory, in which adults and children get equal billing in the house.

Others take the "two nations" approach. Parents and their offspring are treated not as enemies, but as different people with different needs.

Let me explain by asking you to think of the homes of families you know.

In some, you find living rooms filled with slightly battle-worn furniture, taped-up crayon drawings, gerbil cages, toys, newspapers and comic books, and an assortment of human beings of all ages. Comfortable co-existence, you might say.

In others, you'll observe a division between young and old. In the rec — or rumpus, or play, or kids' — room, the children reign supreme. They learn early that they may consider one area of the house "theirs".

In return for this, a bargain is struck that another area belongs to mom and dad. Here, the adults can enjoy the luxury of an off-white carpet unmarred by muddy boot prints, a stereo system safe from sticky fingers, pretty glass and china in no danger of being dropped.

There's something to be said for both points of view.

At its best, the unified approach results in a harmonious and homogenized environment in which the young grow up in the company of adults, respecting the rights of others and being part of their parents' world.

During these family-centred years, parents spend their money on things other than their own needs. In a sense, they give up materialism until the children are grown. Having a brocade couch just isn't important to "real life".

Meals are always taken together. And what the kids have to say is as important as what dad's done today.

When other people visit, the children are part of the welcoming environment. Visitors see the family and the house as a total unit.

On the other hand, having a house divided, so that both age groups have their own place, also makes splendid sense.

What amuses a child and an adult are completely different things, and that difference should be observed and respected. Kids can't be expected to like candlelit meals, grown-ups are seldom keen on hot-dogs and cream soda.

What an adult finds beautiful — an early Canadian pine hutch, for example — shouldn't be endangered by kiddycar wheels. What a child likes — making fortresses out of pillows and chairs, for instance — should take place without adult interference.

Of course, both family situations present problems too.

The everybody - belongs everywhere method breeds a kind of child-monopolized shambles, that is not always pleasant.

Parents of a family like this may find themselves embarrassed by children who don't know why they can't munch cookies everywhere in gramma's house, or who assume that all things in other houses are theirs for playing.

But the "take your shoes off before you walk on my nice clean floor" approach in a home can cause unpleasant side effects too. An extreme regard for material possessions. Or a deep and abiding resentment against the parents who kept their children in their place.

You might have thought that the family room concept would solve all this. But you've probably also noticed how everyone gravitates to the comfy family room, leaving the living room in isolated splendor, just like a Victorian parlor.

If you don't live in it, how can it be a living room?

Of course, the lifestyle a family chooses often depends on how big a house they can afford. But doesn't it seem to you, that if people are going to be parents, they should make a home where their children belong in every room?

Health Unit Initiates Family Planning Program

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, in co-operation with the counties' family planning association, hopes to have in operation by April 1 a family planning program funded by the provincial government.

Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health, told the health unit board Wednesday the program will involve an extensive advertising and educational propaganda campaign, a special telephone setup for general queries and expanded aid through county health nurses.

He said he was asking only for the moral support of the board, not financial, since the provincial government is footing the entire bill.

Olga Wallace, director of nursing, assured the board the program can be undertaken within the health unit's existing framework and there will be no need for more staff.

Dr. Lenk explained there will not be a system of family planning clinics due to geographical limitations of the counties.

He noted in addition there will be many people who will not attend because of fear of being noticed.

"You'll get a crowd of people watching to see who is going," he remarked.

Dr. Lenk also pointed out there are people without the mental ability to understand by one-to-one communication. Cost is also a prohibitive factor, he added.

Dr. G. K. Martin, executive director for the community health division of the ministry of health and the province's chief Medical Officer of Health, said the program will be conducted through the health ministry

In a letter to the board, he explained the program's intent "is to ensure reasonable uniformity of coverage and improved access for those who, for one reason or another, find difficulty in utilizing existing services."

School Use Suggested

A member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit Board has called for family planning classes in schools where it relates to preventive instruction.

Following the announcement by Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health, of a new health unit family planning program, Gordon Babbitt suggested space be found in the schools and qualified instructors be sought out.

He noted recent comments by provincial health minister Frank Miller on sexual trends in society and the view that many people would not want to attend planning clinics due to apprehension and shyness. He said he felt classes in schools might be the answer

Dr. Lenk replied, "schools would be prominent" and said the public health nurse could approach higher education authorities to determine how the health unit could assist in the schools.

Mr. Babbitt said he thought some school teachers could not teach family planning well due to current student-teacher relationships.

He said qualified nurses might be utilized as instructors.

Olga Wallace, director of nursing, said nurses could be used "to enhance teachers' positions" or "to help teachers become more comfortable" in the area of family planning instruction.

Dr. Lenk added the health unit could not legally prescribe preventive measures to students under 18 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan David Morton

Morton — Ackerman

Holloway Street United Church was the setting for the February 15 wedding of Helen Ruth Ackerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Ackerman and Allan David Morton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Morton of Stirling.

Rev. Clare Kellogg conducted the service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white sleeveless crepe gown with a sheer lace-edged yoke. A matching coat with long sleeves a wide portrait collar appliqued with lace, and a full skirt falling into a cathedral train completed the outfit. She carried a cascade bouquet of deep red roses, baby's breath and ivy.

Matron of honor was Christie Cox in a pale blue gown that was empire-waisted with a royal blue velvet bolero jacket. She carried white and blue baby mums.

The bridesmaids, dressed identically to the matron of honor, were the bride's sisters, Judy Chalmers and Carol Wilkinson, and the groom's sister Kathy Morton.

Lisa Stevens and Lana Kelly were flower girls and the bride's nephew Fred Wilkinson was ring bearer.

Robert Howell served as best man, and ushers were Doug Morton, the groom's brother, Pete Ackerman, the bride's brother, and Joe Stevens.

After a dinner and dance reception at the Belleville Shrine Club, the newly-married couple travelled to Jamaica

Mr. and Mrs. Morton now live at 99 Wallbridge Crescent.

Weese — Pearsall

The Pentecostal Church in Picton was the setting for the February marriage of Keitha Pearsall of Picton and John A. Weese of Belleville, former MP for Prince Edward-Lennox.

The double ring service was performed by Pastor Frank Beaudrie.

The bride's maid of honor was her sister, Marjorie Rutter.

The groom's best man was Lee Grills, former MP for the Belleville area.

Also present at the wedding were Mr. Weese's daughters, Mr. and Mrs. W.E. (Marion) Teskey of Fort Myers, Florida, and Mr. and Mrs. L. M. (Evelyn) Ogilvie of Clarksville, Tennessee, and his son, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Weese of Belleville.

A dinner luncheon was held at the Four Seasons Hotel. After the reception the newly-married couple travelled to their winter home in Fort Myers, Florida, after which they will take up residence in Belleville.

CP News Roundup

School Bus Law Change Postponed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government plans to postpone the date of introducing the new school bus stopping law which will require motorists to obey flashing bus lights in speed zones under 30 miles an hour.

John Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications, said in a news release Wednesday that he will introduce an amendment changing the effective date to Sept. 1 from April 1.

The change, requested by the ministry of education, various school boards and many bus operators, will give drivers more time to become familiar with the law, he said

Prior to a recent change in the Highway Traffic Act, school bus drivers were allowed to use the stopping lights on the buses only in speed zones over 30 miles an hour.

City Negligent

TORONTO (CP) — A 13-year-old girl who suffered permanent injury when she was struck by a school playground slide has been awarded damages of $30,169 in an Ontario Supreme Court judgment.

Protect Flag

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that would make wilfull destruction of the Canadian flag a criminal offence punishable by a fine or imprisonment or both was given approval by a Commons justice committee Wednesday.

The bill, introduced in the Commons by Leonard Hopkins (L—Renfrew North Nipissing East) originally included provincial flags and foreign flags flown in Canada, but the committee approved amendments to include only the "national flag of Canada."

Jessica Wyse, a women's worker at the mission, said they "thought the place would be crowded right out."

She said perhaps some persons did not know about the free handouts

Afraid to Dig

TORONTO (CP) — City council wants to know what's underneath Victoria Memorial Square before it starts scooping off lead-contaminated topsoil.

Postmen Fight Code

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Postal/Workers (CUPW) will hold a national boycott of the postal code March 20, Joe Davidson, national president of the union, said Wednesday.

During the one-day boycott postal workers across the country will distribute information to the public explaining the boycott and solicit public support for it.

"The purpose of declaring a national day to boycott the postal code is to better inform people of the reasons we think they should support us in boycotting the postal code," Mr. Davidson said in a news release.

Six Counts Are Listed Against Dredging Firms

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP has laid six charges against eight dredging companies and eleven executives.

The six counts allege that:

1. Gerard Filion, Louis Rochette, Harold McNema, John Simard, Bruo Desjardins, Syndey Cooper, Frank Hamata, Albert Gills, John McDonald, Ezra Sansibar, Albert Goldfarb, Marine Industries. McNamara Corp, J. P. Porter, Richelieu Dredging, C. A. Pitts, Canadian Dredge (formerly T. C. Gorman), Sceptre Dredging, Dillingham Corp., Construction Aggregates and Jason Hydraulics conspired with Horace Rindress, a vice-president of M. P. Porter, Albin Quinlan, a vice-president of McNamara, Robert Schneider, a vice-president of Canadian Dredge, and others to defraud the federal government of more than $800,000 in a transport department contract to deepen the St. Lawrence River shipping channel east of Quebec City.

In Vancouver, R. J. Meyers, Dillingham president and chief executive officer, said the company has never done any work in eastern Canada and does not know why the firm or Mr. McDonald have been charged.

"At this time it appears that the government has decided to charge most, if not all, of the larger dredging contractors in Canada," Mr. Meyers said.

Rindress, Quinlan and Schneider have not been charged but are named throughout the counts and also were named in indictments brought against five Hamilton men earlier.

2. Filion, McNamara, Hamata, Gill, Sansibar and Goldfarb, Marine Industries, McNamara Corp., Albemont, Sceptre, Construction Aggregates and Jason Hydraulic conspired with Quinlan, Schneider and others to defraud the federal government of more than $862,000 in a National Harbors Board contract for dredging at Quebec City harbor.

3. McNamara, Simard, Desjardins, Cooper, Jarrell, Martin, McNamara Corp., Richelieu Dredging, C. A. Pitts, Canadian Dredge and Marwell Dredging conspired with Rindress, Quinlan and Schneider and others to defraud the federal government of more than $680,000 in a transport ministry contract to dredge the St. Lawrence channel at Cap a la Roche near Quebec City.

4. McNamara, Simard, Desjardins, Martin, John E. Bahen, McNamara Corp., J. P. Porter, Canadian Dredge, Marwell Dredging and Peter Kiewit conspired with Rindress, Quinlan and Schneider and others to defraud the federal government and Toronto Harbor Commissioners Corp. of more than $1.2 million for main harbor dredging in Toronto.

5. McNamara, Simard, Desjardins, Cooper, Martin, McNamara Corp., J. P. Porter, Canadian Dredge, C. A. Pitts and Marwell Corp. conspired with Rindress, Quinlan and Schneider to defraud Ontario of more than $150,000 for work on a ferry dock at South Baymouth, Manitoulin Island, Lake Superior.

6. McNamara, Simard, Desjardins McNamara Corp., J.P. Porter, and Canadian Dredge conspired with Quinlan Rindress, Schneider, Kenneth Elliott, a former Hamilton harbor commissioner now facing 11 charges ranging from tax evasion to conspiracy to defraud, and Reginald Fisher, another Hamilton man also facing charges, to defraud the Hamilton Harbor Commissioners Corp. of more than $360,000 in a contract to dredge a harbor shipping channel there.

The latter offence allegedly took place in 1971 and 1972. Hamilton city council passed a resolution in 1972 urging investigation—the first public hint of what was to come.

What happened next is being disputed. Solicitor-General Warren Allmand told the Commons Monday that somebody from Hamilton city council went to the RCMP in September, 1972, with the allegations and were told Hamilton or Ontario provincial police should handle the affair. Mr. Allmand said the RCMP approached these forces but the OPP and Hamilton police felt they did not have the resources to carry out the investigation and the RCMP went to work on it.

Mr. Allmand suggested that if there was any delay in the investigation, it was at the police level in Hamilton.

Lincoln Alexander, Hamilton—West, M.P., matched Mr. Allmands statement against denials by the Hamilton police chief and OPP that they were ever asked to do an investigation. OPP Assistant Commissioner Ken Grace said the force could have handled it but was not aware of the investigation until it was well under way.

Transport Minister Jean Marchard has told the Commons the RCMP investigation began in 1973 into the Hamilton dredging affair and broadened to include Quebec a year later.

Mr. Allmand earlier this week denied a report that the investigation had been delayed six months and possibly a year while RCMP waited for "political permission to proceed."

Meanwhile, Toronto harbor commissioners have stopped payment on a nearly-finished $7.2-milion dredging job until they find out whether the industry has been inflating prices.

Have to Sell

TORONTO (CP) — It's up to publishers to go out and sell their books to school boards, Education Minister Thomas Wells said Tuesday after a meeting with 145 publisher representatives.

Mr. Wells said the province has no intention of reverting to its old practice of telling boards how to spend their money.

Nostalgia Booming

LONDON (AP) — They dance the tango in Zurich, sing Victorian music-hall ballads in London, watch operettas in Vienna, dine in Paris restaurants with décor from the 1920s.

Girls in Brussels sport the bell-shaped hats their grandmothers wore. In Bonn and Berlin there's a rush on curved, quilted sofas and other furniture from the turn of the century.

Rome fashions feature designs inspired by Czarist Russia.

Nostalgia is not just a boom in Western Europe; it's an industry, tuned to the longing for a world that seems to have vanished—if it ever existed.

Sociologists say the yearning for older, more stable values arises from the perplexities and fears of the 1970s.

"People want to get away from scary inflation, crazily changing patterns of society and horrifying prospects of atomic war," said David Simpson, a college history lecturer in southern England.

"Everytime there's an increase in the price of gasoline they wish they were back in the times of the pony and trap. What they tend to forget is that comparatively few people then had any transport of their own. Some of the supposedly good things about the good old days were pretty bad."

One London auction house put nostalgia under the hammer recently and was surprised by the response.

A beaded dress made in 1922 fetched $65. Bidders paid hard cash for squeaky phonograph records of King George VI's coronation in 1937, an ostrich-feather fan, a stuffed bird, and a bunch of dried flowers under a glass dome.

Little lead models of 1930 automobiles are in strong demand. One collector paid nearly $600 for a rare model.

One of BBC television's most popular series is The Good Old Days, which recreates the atmosphere of the Victorian music hall with an audience in extravagant outfits singing the ballads of long ago. There's a two-year waiting list to get in the audience.

Miami Police Check Daily on Old People

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Every day for six years, Barney Lipka, 85, has dialled the same telephone number just before 9 a.m.

"Good morning, Dorothy," he says to police complaint clerk Dorothy Denoia. "Good morning, Barney, have a nice day," says Mrs. Denoia.

The daily conversation is part of a police service in this Miami suburb, originally named Reassurance Program and later called Operation Good Morning.

Police say the program, started in 1968, has saved the lives of elderly persons living alone. The more than 50 persons on the other end of the line say it saves them from loneliness.

Every day of the week, the programs participants call police headquarters between 8 and 9 a.m. If they don't call by 9:15, the police call them. If there's no answer ,a policeman is dispatched.

"It's a thrill to hear the voice," says Lipka, a retired insurance executive. "I have nobody to talk to. . . . If its raining they say 'Put on a raincoat.' They're like my grandparents.

"I feel I have some security. I'm not afraid to die but I don't want to be suffering."

Mrs. Denoia remembers one occasion when she did not receive a woman's daily call and her call to the woman's home was not answered.

Police found her lying on the kitchen floor, having suffered a heart attack. Doctors told Mrs. Denoia she had saved the woman's life.

The free service is available to all elderly persons, about one-fourth of North Miami Beach's 30,000 residents. It is surprising to those in the program to learn that so few participate.

"It has been my lifeline," says Florence Cooke, who declines to give her age. "It makes me feel better knowing someone is thinking of me."

Davis Takes Show on Road And Ministers' Ire Aroused

HAMILTON (CP) — Members of the Ontario cabinet's touring road show, barnstorming its way through a dozen Ontario cities to stir up public participation, stomped out of Hamilton Place in a fighting mood Wednesday.

The 4½-hour session ended with Treasurer Darcy McKeough accusing Don Gordon, a councillor from Milton, Ont., of wrongly criticizing the government's program of land acquisition in a parkway belt which includes Milton.

Mr. McKeough angrily charged Mr. Gordon with offering his criticism for political purposes and apologized to the audience for ending the day on a controversial note.

Mr. Gordon had complained that some residents in the parkway belt were receiving lower purchase offers from the government than residents who sold land to Ontario Hydro for a recent transmission line project.

The stop here was the fifth in a series of 12 public sessions. The cabinet moves on to Kingston April 9, Thunder Bay May 14 and Kitchener June 11.

Among the 47 briefs presented to the cabinet were requests from municipalities for more money and less managerial interference, and questions from school board spokesmen and teachers' representatives about when legislation to guide collective bargaining in the educational system would be introduced. Education Minister Thomas Wells promised legislation in April.

Health Minister Frank Miller was isolated from fellow ministers for an hour while he listened to pro-and anti-abortion groups. He came out against abortion but not in support of tightening abortion laws.

"We want to eliminate abortion," he said. Education, and not stricter administration of the Criminal Code was the answer.

Dr. Helen Semenuk, representing the Hamilton and area council of women, congratulated cabinet on its decision to appoint an ombudsman and said she did not care whether a man or a woman was appointed, as long as "the person is capable of doing a good job representing consumers."

Peter Davis, president of the Canadian Pinball Association, asked for relaxation of prosecutions against pinball owners. Culture Minister Robert Welch said they were illegal and told Mr. Davis to take his problem to Otto Lang, federal justice minister.

"Until the federal minister of justice makes the amendment, our attorney-general's department must prosecute if asked to do so by the police," Mr. Welch said.

Teacher Legislation Is Coming Next Month

HAMILTON (CP) — Education Minister Thomas Wells said Wednesday that he plans to introduce legislation next month which will determine rules and regulations for contract bargaining between teachers and their boards of education.

Mr. Wells, participating in a public meeting of the Ontario cabinet said the legislation is in response to complaints from both boards and teachers that the current lack of framework for collective bargaining is creating chaos in the educational system.

The minister would not elaborate on the form of the legislation.

A brief from the Hamilton board of education offered many suggestions and was not short on caustic comment.

"Existing arrangements are no longer adequate to cope with the growing number of disputes caused by a new militancy and a change in bargaining tactics by teachers,' a board spokesman said.

The brief suggested collective bargaining, under legislation, is "an appropriate means' for resolving monetary issues between boards and teachers. It added that teachers should be given the right to strike.

But it said working conditions and educational policy should be non-negotiable, conditions of employment be outside collective bargaining legislation and "the scope of bargaining issues be limited to financial compensation paid to teachers."

Mr. Wells did not comment on any of the suggestons.

Fertilizer Details Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Fertilizer Institute will not issue a detailed report justifying the rapid escalation of fertilizer prices as requested by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, an institute spokesman says.

B. T. Johnson, first vice-chairman of the institute, said Tuesday the institute does not think it is "proper" to divulge specific pricing policies of individual fertilizer companies.

He said a brief rebuttal released last week is "all we plan to say."

The news release stated that Canadian farmers paid less for fertilizer than farmers in other countries and that a sufficient domestic supply had been ensured by limiting more profitable sales on the international market.

He added he didn't think Mr. Whelan would be satisfied with the response, saying "I'd be just as happy if I don't hear from him again, but I don't think we've heard the last of it."

David Kirk, executive director of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said the industry's refusal to submit the report should prompt a full-scale government investigation.

The price of nitrogen and phosphate fertilizers has more than doubled in the last two years.

Service Industries' Prices Jump Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Costs of service industries took a sharp jump in February as the consumer price index rose by eight-tenths of one per cent.

Statistics Canada in its report Wednesday said the index for services—education, housing costs and so on—rose by 1.3 per cent, "the sharpest one-month rise in recent years."

The over-all index in February was 11.8 per cent above a year ago. In the three previous months, the 12-month increase was 12 per cent or more.

Rebates offered by manufacturers for new car sales offset some of the price increases for goods. The car price index was off seven-tenths of one per cent.

Man Tells Court Belligerence His Nature

TORONTO (CP) — David Vandapeer Clarke, who alleges he was assaulted by a police constable, said Wednesday that belligerence was part of his nature.

Testifying before the royal commission on Metropolitan Toronto police practices, Mr. Clarke said he had been belligerent most of his life but rejected a suggestion that he was "mouthy, belligerent, aggressive and drunk" on Oct. 11, 1974, the night he says he was punched by Constable Uriel Whyte.

Mr Clarke told Mr. Justice Donald Morand of the Ontario Supreme Court, who is heading the commission, that he tried to trick police into dropping a charge of mischief against him but denied he acted in a manner that required police to use force.

Mr. Clarke said the incident occurred after he left a pub at Humber College. He said he had drunk nine or 10 beers and admitted he was intoxicated but said his memory of events was accurate..

The man said that after two policemen arrived they took him for a four-or five-mile drive and when they came to a large open area, Constable Whyte stopped the car, turned around and punched him twice.

Mr. Clarke said he remembered two blows which left him semi-conscious. He later found he had sore ribs, a sore neck and a cut shoulder.

Manning Opposes Increase In Basic Old Age Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — Basic old-age pensions should not be indexed to the cost of living, Senator Ernest Manning (SC—Alberta) said today.

Indexing should be restricted to the old-age income supplement paid over and above the basic pension to needy persons, he told the Senate national finance committee.

The former Alberta premier said inflation is pushing up basic pensions steadily for thousands of persons who don't need them The basic pension is paid to all persons but supplements are paid only to those who pass a means test showing they need the additional money. Both benefits are indexed.

Senator Manning said unchecked indexing of government benefits as "about as good a way" as he knows to guarantee continued inflation

Douglas Everett (L—Manitoba) and Senator Allister Grosart (PC—Ontario) agreed with the restriction proposed by Senator Manning.

But the committee decided against a formal recommendation to the full Senate.

All committee members should be canvassed and a thorough debate should take place before proposing formal action, Senator Grosart said.

The discussion occurred during study of final government spending estimates for 1974-75.

Danson Defends Picking Lawyers

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson suggested Wednesday there is nothing wrong with his asking Liberal MPs to recommend lawyers in their constituencies who can handle Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) contracts.

Mr. Danson, whose responsibilities include CMHC, was replying to Bob Brisco (PC—Kootenay West), who contended that the minister's earlier replies on the subject are a breach of parliamentarry privilege.

For Past Quarter Century, Firm Burdened with Radium

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto company says it has had some potentially-dangerous radium since 1947 which it cant sell, bury or give safely back to back to the federal government.

Thomas Pocklington Ltd. was given two cans of a radium compound during the Second World War for use in the manufacture of luminous aircraft dials. When the war ended, the company still had about eight grams of the radioactive paint.

"We've been trying to get rid of it off and on since 1947, and now we find we can't even give it away," says sales manager Don MacMillan.

Last month, Ontario health officials found dangerously high radiation levels in a downtown building which had been occupied by another war-time dial-painting company.

Consequently, Mr. MacMillan appealed to Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. to dispose of his company's radium. The Crown corporation instructs hospitals and companies that use radium how to ship it to Ottawa so it can be sent for disposal at the nuclear research centre at Chalk River, Ont.

Mr MacMillan said he was told to wrap the radium in plastic, put it in a box and send it on a truck to Ottawa. But Mr. MacMillan felt that this procedure was unsafe, especially if the box were dropped and the paint spilled.

"If the government isn't interested in picking it up, presumably we can dispose of it as we see fit, as long as we don't pour it down the sewer."

A jeweller offered to buy the radium to restore luminous watch dials, but the Atomic Energy Control Board in Ottawa says jewellers are not licensed to handle radium.

Marchand Is Charged With Leaving Accident

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Wednesday he did not think he was involved in a reportable accident March 2 when his car collided with another at an intersection near the Ottawa airport.

Mr. Marchand faces a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident, though he told reporters Wednesday he had not yet received a summons.

Ottawa police inspector Lester Thompson said a car owned by Mr. Marchand struck the rear of another vehicle at a stop sign at about 6:30 p.m. EST.

Insp. Thompson said a summons was being sent to Mr. Marchand and that he would be required to appear in provincial court here April 16.

The minister told reporters he was travelling from the airport, following a flight from his Quebec City home, when the accident occurred on slippery roads.

He said he struck the other vehicle, turned the corner and waited—but the other vehicle apparently was driven away.

Eleven Charged At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — An 11th Ottawa man was charged in connection with a teen-age homosexual prostitution ring Wednesday.

John J. McEvoy, 42, was charged with gross indecency. Also Wednesday, Charles Fuller, 63, secretary-general of the Commonwealth war graves commission, was remanded on a charge of buggery in connection with the same case.

The charges involve events in which as many as 100 boys, some as young as 11, were hired through newspaper advertisements or recruited off the streets to perform sex acts with male customers.

New Federal Budget Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — The Opposition chopped away at the government on several fronts Wednesday and plans to continue the battle today with a call for a new federal budget designed to curb unemployment and inflation.

Ed Broadbent, parliamentary leader of the New Democratic Party, proposes a motion to this effect, saying the government should bring down a new budget within two weeks.

He says this is necessary to deal with "the increasingly dangerous state of the Canadian economy and especially to cope with mounting unemployment, the housing needs of our people and the scourge of poverty."

The motion, which will serve only as a vehicle for debate and not come to a vote, comes one day after Statistics Canada reported the consumer price index rose by eight-tenths of one per cent in February and two days after it reported the highest number of unemployed—839,000—since the government began keeping records 21 years ago.

As well as being bombarded about the national scandal involving companies that received federal dredging contracts, the government was tackled about the cost of living. As well, the Progressive Conservatives served notice they intend to fight plans for a national oil corporation every step of the way.

Finance Minister John Turner was pressed by Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield for some sort of "open and frank statement' about what effect federal talks with industry and labor could have on the steadily-rising cost of living.

Mr. Turner, however, replied that high wage settlements are "the most disturbing feature' of the current economic climate.

To Conservatives cries of "what are you going to do about it," Mr. Turner said the opposition would have to wait until he was ready to make a statement on his current talks with various sectors of the economy

Alberta NDP Leader Lifelong Socialist

EDMONTON (CP) — When an official of the Alberta New Democratic Party was asked what Grant Notley did before he became involved with the NDP, the answer was terse: "He was a child."

"I was the only CCFer in my Grade 12 class," said the 36-year-old party leader in an interview during his campaign for the March 26 provincial election.

He lived in the southern Alberta town of Olds, only 20 miles from Bob Clark, Social Credit house leader, who worked with Mr. Notley in opposition in the legislature last term.

The two were members of neighboring 4-H clubs, and "on opposite sides of the fence in cattle—the Clarks were Holstein breeders and we raised Ayrshires."

Early stimulus for Mr. Notley's involvement in public affairs came from his parents, supporters of the United Farmers of Alberta which governed the province for 14 years in the 1920s and 1930s.

"I came from an unusually literate family in the sense of public affairs," said Mr. Notley. "We would discuss world events at home when I was small."

He graduated from University of Alberta in 1961 with a degree in history and political science, entering law school the following year.

But he dropped out to become NDP provincial organizer, rising through the ranks to the position of party leader in 1968.

Mr. Notley calls himself a "middle-of-the-road socialist—I would identify with the sort of stance (Saskatchewan Premier Allan) Blakeney takes, rather than with the flamboyance of B.C.'s Dave Barrett or the cautious approach of (Manitoba Premier) Ed Schreyer."

The party's socialist philosophy is often confused with communism and state control, he said. Many "Neanderthal charges" came from Progressive Conservative back-benchers who didn't have the knowledge a Grade 7 student would get in civics class.

"But the day will come when we form a government in this province, perhaps as soon as four years from now.

"If shadows of recession begin to creep over Canada, people will gravitate to a left-of-centre political party."

Mr. Notley said he is committed to "re-ordering the power structure in society, redistribution of wealth and the creation of more-equal opportunities."

He scorned those who call Peter Lougheed socialist for buying Pacific Western Airlines and investing public money in the oil sands: "Premier Lougheed's public investment has a decided pattern—to prop up the corporate state."

The party leader was also skeptical of "the tendency of bureaucracy to do things behind closed doors—you have to yank open the door all the time, both on what government is doing and what big business is doing."

Mr. Notley was defeated in three bids for a legislature seat before winning the Spirit River-Fairview riding in 1971.

He was his party's only representative in the 17th Alberta legislature, and although "there's a clubbiness about the legislature," it was sometimes lonely.

He spends his leisure time at his Fairview home in northwestern Alberta with his wife, a librarian, and their three young children. "I enjoy not having to be in public, not having to do all the things a politician has to do."

Jury Rules White Death Accidental

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

An inquest into the death of William A. White, 64, who at the time of his death last September 16, was an employee of Bata Engineering at Batawa, adjourned Wednesday night with a jury verdict of accidental death and recommendation that further safety measures be installed at the plant.

A number of witnesses before coronor Dr. John Stock, of Belleville and a three-man, two women jury described the condition of the deceased, who died in Trenton Memorial Hospital about four hours after the incident.

Witnesses testified Mr. White had been hit with a portion of a cylinder that was being tested under high pressure. The cylinder apparently burst and a piece struck the upper left portion of Mr. White's body, causing multiple fractures and massive internal injuries and bleeding.

In the course of interrogating expert witnesses, Hastings Crown Attorney Glenn Deline established the cylinder was being made for the U.S. army in a vehicle made by the Caterpillar Corp. of Warren Michigan.

Following the inquest, Frank Rabel, assistant manager of Bata Engineering, said the cylinder was no longer being made or tested at the plant and additional safety devices had been installed.

Two Held In Pop Theft

Two Belleville youths have been charged with break, enter and theft in connection with a Monday incident at the Canada Dry Bottling Ltd. warehouse on Church St. S.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie identified the pair today as Kenneth Raymond Casselman, 19, of 162 Jane St., Apt. 1, and William Gerald Howie, 19, of 51 Dundas St. E.

The incident involved a robbery at the warehouse at about 7:30 a.m. Reported missing was a portable radio and two cases of softdrinks.

Friday Last Day For New Licence Stickers

Friday is the last day for renewing car licence stickers. Originally set for February 28, the expiry date was extended to March 14 due to strikes delaying mail out of Toronto.

A main reason for the extension, explains George Olsen, Belleville licence bureau manager, was that many trucking companies with headquarters in Toronto have to mail licences across the province.

But, for the Belleville bureau the move — announced Feb. 26 — ruled out the traditional last-minute rush.

The hectic demand stream since has slowed to a steady trickle at his Front St. office, said Mr. Olsen.

In the remaining days before the extension announcement the staff was issuing up to 1,000 licences daily.

Now, said Mr. Olsen, about 100 applicants a day are buying renewals.

Health Unit Inspectors May Check Grant Work

The Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit Board has agreed to participate with any municipality in its jurisdiction which plans to take advantage of the provincial government's new Ontario Home Renewal Program (OHRP).

The board acted Wednesday on a letter received from Dr. Barbara J. Blake, director of the community health protection branch in the ministry of health, which outlined the program's administration.

Dr. Blake said OHRP, announced recently by the ministry of housing, is "designed to assist owner-occupants to repair, rehabilitate and improve existing housing in Ontario".

"Provincial grants are available . . . to municipalities that apply for them and the municipalities can use the money for both forgivable loans and repayable loans to eligible home owners," she said.

Dr. Blake noted the housing ministry's community renewal branch is considering delivering OHRP at a multi-municipal level.

She elaborated, "At present however, there is a severe shortage of qualified personnel capable of undertaking the necessary building inspection duties vital to the program."

Lloyd A. Ellenton, chief public health inspector, told the board his inspectors can perform these duties with their existing training. He said the program is a boon to municipalities which lack proper building inspection.

Animal Control-It's a Dog's Life

It isn't easy being a dog catcher in a small community. For one thing the dog catcher now is an animal control officer and for another his efforts can sometimes be thwarted.

Clifford Cassidy is animal control officer with Thurlow Township. He said during a meeting of council Wednesday often he'll be sent to check on a cat or dog and find the animal in question gone. He added he'll come back twice or even more and the animal will be long gone every time.

But once when he went to check on a black dog that was seen loose around Harmony School in the township he found a different problem when he did manage to get there while the dog was still there.

The children took a shine to the dog and refused to let anything happen to him, so Mr. Cassidy had to leave empty-handed. It shouldn't happen to a dog.

Hydro Poles Prompt Thurlow Council Brief

Thurlow Township is preparing a brief to be sent to the mini-cabinet meeting of Ontario provincial Ministers in Kingston April 16.

The brief to be presented at the meeting, similar to the mini-cabinet meeting in Belleville this February, will deal with the situation of relocation of hydro poles within the township. The money was brought up during the regular monthly meeting of council, Wednesday.

In areas where roads have to be widened it is necessary to move hydro poles and the question arises as to who should pay, the township or Ontario Hydro.

Currently, such a situation exists within the township, said township clerk Clare Horton, on the Ninth Concession where a number of hydro poles must be moved to allow road widening. Cost for relocating these poles would amount to $11,400.

Road Termed Dangerous

Thurlow Township council is concerned about a section of road within its township that claimed two lives last week and is asking the ministry of transportation and communications to undertake a study of it.

Councillor George Beer said during the council's regular monthly meeting Wednesday that the section of Highway 14 and the Fourth Concession is dangerous and moved that the ministry be approached to consider a study of the area. The motion passed.

An elderly Stirling couple, Walter and Mildred Stapley were killed Friday when their vehicle was in collision with a truck during a snow storm.

CGE Lays Off Another 28 Workers

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A consumer market that has gone "soft" has forced Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. to lay off 28 hourly-rated workers bringing to 80 the total number of workers laid off since January.

The layoff, the third by the company this year, was announced by Ray Baldin, CGE special relations manager Wednesday.

Within the next two weeks, all 28 workers will be without jobs. To date, a third of CGEs normal complement of 250 employees have been laid off.

Mr. Baldin said the most recent layoff is "strictly due to market conditions" which he described as soft.

The company builds small electrical motors for washing machines and dryers.

Mr. Baldin refused to make any predictions over possible future layoffs. "Anything I would say is strictly a guess."

In January, after a 14-man layoff, Mr. Baldin said he foresaw no additional dismissals. However, less than three weeks later, CGE was forced to lay off another 38 workers when four of its major buyers closed shop for two weeks.

At that time, Mr. Baldin said he didn't know if further layoffs were in the offing.

Inquest Told Junior Trainman Should Have Stopped Engine

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Crew members of ill-fated Canadian National freight train which slammed head-on into an on-coming passenger train testified at a coroner's inquest here today.

In Dec. 20 collision, two engineers and a female passenger were killed.

Gerry Grose — conductor and a man in charge of the train's safety — told the inquest how he and a tail-end brakeman pulled the emergency brake when this was not done from the engineer's cab.

Mr. Grose and Edward Beatty, the tail-end brakeman, were riding in the train's caboose.

"Beatty saw the approach signal, warning of an upcoming stop said Mr. Grose. The brakes were applied, "but the train was not stopping fast enough."

From a brake pressure gauge in the caboose Mr. Grose determined that brake pressure was being "deceased", releasing the braking action.

"About 25 seconds later I and Mr. Beatty pulled the emergency brake," he said.

"Then we braced ourselves for the stop."

Earlier testimony indicated at that point the freight train would have been a half-a-mile away from the crash site. And that the train should have been able to stop within a half mile. Mr. Grose could not explain why the train carried on 2,700 feet past the red lights.

"If we hadn't of thrown the emergency brake, myself and 160 passengers would have died," said Mr. Grose.

Since the crash, Canadian National has penalized Mr. Grose reducing him from a conductor with 32 years service in the CN to a permanent yardman with six years seniority.

Grievance proceedings are in progress said Mr. Grose's lawyer, Maurice Wright, of Ottawa, who termed the penalty unfair.

A Canadian National Railway's top executive told the inquest Wednesday, a junior trainman riding in the cab of a diesel engine should have immediately stopped the train when the engineer "disobeyed" regulations.

"If a signal is disobeyed, then the trainman should interfere," said Belleville CN official Gil Sweezey, superintendent of transportation.

When the trainman saw the first caution lights warning of a stop coming (two miles away) and the engineer did not respond, "the trainman should pull the emergency (brake) cord ... he's been trained to do this," said Mr. Sweezey.

Donald Gardiner — the trainman in question — testified later that he twice told Mr. Boyle of the warning lights but could not remember if the engineer acknowledged his voice.

"I said it loud enough for him to hear," said Mr. Gardiner.

Though CN experts testified the train should have been slowed immediately upon seeing the warning light, Mr. Gardiner said it was not until "we saw the reds that we started slowing down."

Though in contradiction to a report completed by the Canadian Transport Commission, Mr. Gardiner said he was acquainted with the location of the emergency brake but was reluctant to use it believing everything "was normal".

Mr. Gardiner's lawyer said later, "It's not easy for a junior man to take away the authority of an engineer."

Mr. Sweezey replied: "I don't think the ages of the two men should have any bearing on it."

Though Mr. Gardiner said "I don't think the train was going any faster than usual," CN experts using pengraphs which chart a train's movements calculated the train had exceeded speed limits.

Leaving yard at Belleville, the train's average speed was calculated at 44.4 miles an hour. The speed limit is 30 miles an hour.

Along the stretch from Marysville to Napanee where a 50-mile-an-hour slow order is in effect, the train's speed was calculated at 61.8 miles an hour.

Beer Missing

City police have another robbery case on their hands in the form of three stolen cases of an alcoholic beverage.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said today a break-in was discovered at 3.51 a.m. this morning at the Brewers Retail warehouse on Station St.

He said unknown thieves took three 24-pint cases of beer. Entry was gained by pushing in a plexiglass window on the west side of the building.

Two Who Flee Trains Barely Escaped Death

NAPANEE — The second day of a coroner's inquest into the Dec. 20, head-on collision of two Canadian National trains near here ended on a sombre note Wednesday with testimony from two engine men who saved themselves with only seconds to spare.

As an eastbound freight train and a westbound passenger train closed on each other with only "a few seconds before the crash," one man from each engine leaped into the snow beside the rails. Both testified Wednesday.

Roy Bools, in the passenger train, was at the controls until seconds before impact. He spent 19 days in hospital after leaping from his train which he estimated was travelling at 35 miles an hour at impact.

Then asked if he has thought since if he would act any differently now in the same situation, Mr. Bools replied, "I have faith in my signals and my dispatcher."

Mr. Bools' passenger train had right of way and the freight was ordered to stop and wait for the passenger train to switch tracks.

For some reason the freight did not stop for red lights and carried on through the switching area.

Donald Gardiner riding with engineer Keith Boyle in the freight train had difficulty recalling some portions of the night.

He testified that he did not see Mr. Boyle drinking alcohol prior or during the trip and saw no evidence of alcohol beverage containers in the cab of the train.

Numerous witnesses have entered evidence showing a broken beer and small vodka bottle were found in the cab after the crash along with a full bottle of beer. An autopsy and subsequent blood analysis on Mr. Boyle showed 80 milligrams of alcohol to 100 millilitres of blood.

His difficulty in testifying was so apparent, his lawyer during subsequent questioning asked if Mr. Gardiner suffered from nervous shock following the accident.

Mr. Gardiner replied only, "I am afraid."

Mr. Gardiner was protected by the Canada and Ontario Evidence Acts during his testimony to the inquest — a safeguard requested by his lawyer prior to his taking of the stand.

Mr. Gardiner said "I thought we would be able to stop right up until we were only a short distance from the other train."

"Then I jumped."

Stolen Car Recovered

Ontario Provincial Police at Bancroft have recovered a stolen car taken from a Belleville residence sometime Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

City police chief Douglas Crosbie said today Bancroft OPP, who recovered the car at 4.30 a.m., have man in custody. He was to be returned to Belleville today.

The vehicle's owner is Anne Ames of 90 Prince of Wales Dr. The suspect's name was not released.

Quebec Man Gets Five Years

A 54-year-old resident of Chateauguay, Que. was sentenced Wednesday in county court to five years in penitentiary following his conviction of break and enter at Simpsons-Sears in the Quinte Mall on Sept. 9, 1973.

Committee Named

Appointed to Thurlow Township's Recreation Committee for this year were township councillors, Don McKeown and George Beer, and township, deputy-reeve Garnet Denyes.

Shade Black Hawks 4-3

Blues Only 2 Points off Pace

Barclay Plager

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks and Vancouver Canucks, who have taken turns leading the National Hockey League Smythe Division, suddenly have company.

St. Louis Blues, struggling all season with a lineup that includes largely a rookie defence, today are in a position to challenge for the lead after beating the Hawks 4-3 Wednesday night.

The Blues' victory pulled them to within two points of the Hawks and Canucks who are tied for the lead with 71 points each.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh Penguins clinched a playoff spot in the Norris Division with a 5-3 victory over Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs also assured themselves of post-season action with a 3-3 tie against Montreal Canadiens.

New York Rangers beat cross-town rival Islanders 5-3, Atlanta Flames whipped Minnesota North Stars 9-4 and Buffalo Sabres beat California Seals 7-2.

Veteran defenceman Barclay Plager was outstanding for the Blues. St. Louis coach Gary Young said Plager "must have blocked 20 shots with his body."

But Plager gave the credit to the recently-hired Young.

"Before, we never had a game plan," said Plager. "We were just told to go out and hit hard. Now we plan our strategy before every game and it has really paid off."

At Toronto, the Leafs gained the tie against Montreal when Ron Ellis scored with three seconds remaining.

An icing call forced a faceoff in the Montreal zone with eight seconds left. Leafs had pulled goalie Gord McRae for an extra attacker. Darryl Sittler won the faceoff and defenceman Bob Neely fired a shot at goalie Ken Dryden.

Dryden made the save but Ellis pounced on the rebound and backhanded it over Dryden's arm.

The tie also extended Montreal's unbeaten string on the road to 23 games.

At New York, the Rangers came out hitting and took advantage of a shaky start by Islanders goalie Billy Smith to score goals on three of their first five shots.

Smith retired from the game after Jean Ratelle gave the Rangers a 3-0 lead with his 30th goal of the season. It was the sixth season in Ratelle's career that he has reached the 30-goal plateau.

At Pittsburgh, Penguins rookie Piere Larouche scored three goals.

Prior to Wednesday night's game, Larouche hadn't scored a goal in 14 games and he'd been nursing a bad ankle.

Boston, which had won seven straight previous games, took a 3-1 lead into the middle period on goals by Greg Sheppard, Bob Schmautz and Andre Savard.

But Pittsburgh broke the game open by scoring four second-period goals in the space of four minutes and 13 seconds.

Second - year pro Bob McManama, who entered the game afer Vic Hadfield was shaken up in the early minutes, started the Penguins' rally with an unassisted goal on a breakaway.

Gerry Meehan, Bryan Hextall and Curt Bennett each scored two goals to lead the Flames against Minnesota at Atlanta.

"That was really a nice way to start in a new city," said Meehan, recently acquired by the Flames from Vancouver.

Officiating Burns Barrie In 8-1 Loss to Soviets

MOSCOW (CP) — Barrie Co-Ops, Canadian midget hockey champions, were frustrated by officiating Wednesday night as they were defeated 8-1 by the Soviet Central Red Army team.

The loss was their second and their worst showing in four games thus far in the six-game, 16-day exhibition series.

The Soviets built up a 4-0 by the end of the first period of play. The officiating became a complete debacle in the second period, and it was apparent the Canadians had given up midway through the session.

Canada took 36 minutes in penalties assessed by referee Nikolai Khomutinnikov compared to 19 for the Red Army team.

Centre Robbie Garner scored the only Barrie goal in the second period.

The Canadians missed a number of good scoring opportunities early in the period, but seemed to lose momentum after having three successive rushes called offside while having a one-man advantage on the power play.

Shortly after the manpower advantage had expired, the Russians added two more tallies 36 seconds apart.

Garner broke Red Army goaltender Dmitry Saprikin's bid for a shutout with a power play goal at 18:43 of the period, banging in defenceman Bradley Tamblyn's rebound.

Left wingers Sergei Stepennov and Nickolai Enjazev each had two goals to lead the Red Army attack.

Lloyd Pearsall, coach of the Barrie team, was livid in his assessment of the officiating after the game. "The refereeing tonight was so pathetic, I wouldn't have recognized it as refereeing back home."

One incident that got Pearsall's attention was when Canada's Glen Laycock was high-sticked by Vyacheslav Phetisov. Seeing Laycock had been cut in the mouth, Tamblyn retaliated by knocking down Phetisov.

Goaltender Sergei Fersanov, who had been replaced by Saprikin, jumped off the bench to aid his fallen team-mate but was not given a penalty for leaving the bench, an infraction that calls for automatic disqualification under international rules.

B.C. Skiers Tops Again

BURNS LAKE, B.C. (CP) — Three Prince George skiers gave British Columbia its third straight gold medal in the Canadian senior cross-country ski championship Wednesday.

Ed ay Lauri KKarjaluoto and Hans Skinstad upset defending champion Northwest Territories to win the men's 3x10-kilometre relay in 1:40:15.72.

Bert Bullock, Rex Cockney and Ernie Lennie of the Territories captured the silver medal, finishing one minute and 51 seconds behind the B.C. team.

Bronze medal winners in 1:45:36.08 were Reijo Puiras, Matti Maki and Eric Salkeld of Sudbury, Ont.

The Territories scored a seventh consecutive win in the women's three by five kilometre relay.

Shirley Firth, Winnie Bullock and Sharon Firth, all of Inuvik, captured the gold medal in 57 minutes, 45 seconds—three minutes and 53 seconds ahead of Louise Sander, Trice Cameron and Sue Holloway of Ottawa.

B.C. ran third in the field of four squads as Esther Miller, Anita Pettersen and Pat Bay finished 16 seconds behind the Ottawa group.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Major league baseball teams will share $93 million in network television money during the recently, commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Wednesday. The package with ABC and NBC, effective with the 1976 season, is an increase of $21 million over the current five-year contact with NBC.

TONY GABRIEL

Denied More Pay

TORONTO (CP) — Tight end Tony Gabriel has lost his court bid for more pay for two extra games played last season with the Canadian Football League Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

In a decision announced Wednesday, Ontario Supreme Court Justice Dennis O'Leary ruled that Gabriel should have known he was expected to play 16 games for the Ticats instead of the 14 for which he said he signed. The Eastern Football Conference schedule was expanded last season to 16 games from 14.

"Gabriel testified that if he had known about the two-game increase in the schedule for 1974, he would not have agreed to a salary of $18,000; he would have bargained for more" Mr. Justice O'Leary said.

Hull's 62 Goals WHA Record

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Real Cloutier, Quebec Nordiques' 18-year-old rookie forward, realized one of his childhood dreams Wednesday night at the Quebec Coliseum.

"There'd only be one chance in a thousand that I'd be named a star ahead of Bobby Hull," said Cloutier shortly after he was selected the game's No. 1 star ahead of Hull, the veteran left winger of Winnipeg Jets, who set a WHA goal-scoring record in the game.

"It's one of those things I've dreamed about since I was a kid."

Both Cloutier and Hull scored two goals Wednesday night for their respective clubs as the Nordiques widened their Canadian-Division lead to eight point with a 5-3 win over the Jets.

Hull's two goals brought his total to 62 for the season, breaking the previous WHA record of 61 set by Danny Lawson of Philadelphia Blazers in 1972-73, the WHA's first year.

In other games, Baltimore Blades blanked Cleveland Crusaders 2-0 while on the West Coast, Vancouver Blazers defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-2.

Cloutier, who had 93 goals last season with Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, scored his 22nd and 23rd goals of the year with his second goal of the game at 16:53 of the second period proving to the winner.

"This kid Cloutier has poise," said Hull. "He's got the shot, he's got the moves, the dekes. He's got everything. Is he really only 18?"

He's his own man. You can't compare him with anyone. There's one thing that he has that a lot of hockey players don't have—he's got intelligence. He thinks."

Steve Sutherland, Michel Parizeau and Jeannot Gilbert were the other Quebec marksmen with Perry Miller adding the Jets third goal.

The Blades, playing their fifth game in six nights, got shutout goaltending from Paul Hoganson in their win at Cleveland. It was only the fourth win on the road for the Blades this season.

Hoganson blocked 27 shots for his second shutout of the season—both against the Crusaders. Gary Bredin and Gary Veneruzzo scored 91 seconds apart in the second period after Cleveland's Jim Harrison missed on a penalty shot earlier in the period.

Jack Vivian, coach and general manager of the Crusaders, termed his club's efforts nightmarish.

"This was not the same type of hockey we played in our last four games on the road. The players didn't have any answer for the problem either," added Vivian, who asked the players after the game if they wished to have another coach.

Rob Walton, Claude St. Sauveur and Lawson scored for the Blazers in the third period to give them the win over the Fighting Saints. Don Burgess scored for the Blazers in the second period while Mike Walton and Billy Butters accounted for the Minnesota scoring.

Tonight Phoenix Roadrunners visit New England Whalers and Toronto Toros meet the Racers in Indianapolis. The Toros will be without the services of left winger Paul Henderson for the rest of the season. Henderson underwent surgery Wednesday to repair torn ligaments in his left knee, an injury suffered in Toronto's 7-4 win over Phoenix Tuesday.

Saints And Stars Compete

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The competitive collapse of Minnesota North Stars in the National Hockey League has left two professional hockey teams struggling for survival in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

But both clubs are confident they'll weather the crisis.

"I don't know if two pro teams can survive in the same market," said Walter Bush, president of the North Stars. "And, I don't know how we'll ever find out without one team leaving."

The Stars had things to themselves until the birth of the World Hockey Association three years ago and a WHA franchise in St. Paul. That entry, christened the Fighting Saints, has enjoyed increasing success on the ice and at the gate.

The youthful president of the Fighting Saints, Wayne Belisle, said the failure of the North Stars to reach the playoffs in 1974 gave new life to the St. Paul club.

"This franchise couldn't have gotten off the ground if the North Stars had played good hockey the last couple of years," said Belisle. "We just weren't able to get the people to come over here and see what our league had to offer. They were surprised."

Belisle and Bush, both attorneys, agree the salary situation has gotten out of hand and contributed to the financial problems faced by the managements of most teams in pro hockey.

"The long-term contracts have definitely been bad," said Bush, who retained many of his players with multi-year pacts. "Look at the Los Angeles Dodgers in baseball. They just gave their first two-year contract (to pitcher Mike Marshall) and they've always been at the top of the heap."

The two executives agreed that winning will determine their success.

The North Stars, who joined the NHL in 1967, played before capacity crowds of 15,500 their first years in Minnesota. But that figure has slowly slipped downward the last two seasons. This year, they're averaging 13,800.

Grant Too Much For Voyageurs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Doug Grant kicked out 32 shots and Rick McCann scored his 15th goal of the season to lead Southern Division-leading Virginia Red Wings to a 2-0 win over Nova Scotia in one of three American Hockey League games Wednesday night.

Mike Jakubo scored the other goal of the game, his 26th, in the third period.

Wings goalie Doug Grant had 32 saves to earn the shutout in a defensive battle almost free of penalties. Dave Elenbaas had 28 saves for the Voyageurs.

In other games, Hershey Bears stopped Richmond Robins 3-2 and Rochester Americans defeated Northern Division-leading Providence Reds 6-4.

Linemates Gordie Clark and Dave Hynes scored two goals each to pace Rochester to its win over the Reds.

Craig Sarner and Larry McKillop scored single goals for the Americans.

Hartland Monaghan, Gerry Teeple, Pierre Laganiere and Bobby MacMillan scored the Providence goals.

Nelson Debenedet's goal midway through the third period gave the Bears their comeback win over Richmond.

Ralph MacSweyen and Gord Brooks gave Richmond early leads before Billy Inglis and Bryan McSheffrey tied it up for Hershey.

In the only game tonight, the Robins are host to Virginia.—

RETURN RINGS

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Police said three young boys walked up to Reggie Jackson's apartment Wednesday and returned three World Series rings which had been stolen two days earlier. The Oakland Athletics outfielder told police the rings, valued at $3,150, were among $10,600 worth of jewelry taken in a burglary at his apartment Monday night. Jackson offered a $1,000 reward for the rings' return.

Schoolboy Curling Championships

Manitoba Stays Even with Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Manitoba skip Jim Quinn made perhaps his biggest shot of the tournament Wednesday night to extend the Flin Flon crew's unbeaten streak in the Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

He tapped back a partially-guarded stone with his last rock to escape with a 4-3 victory over the Northern Ontario rink skipped by Dale Leskinen of Red Rock.

The win allowed Manitoba to remain even with the Alberta crew led by Paul Gowsell of Calgary after seven rounds. Alberta toyed with the Ontario entry skipped by Dave Velanoff of London for an 11-4 win in the evening.

Quinn had an easy 11-3 sixth-round victory over Newfoundland skip Jeff Thomas of St. John's in the afternoon.

Gowsell curled his best game of the competition in the afternoon round when Alberta squeezed past Dave Johnston of Prince George, representing British Columbia, 5-3.

Johnston rebounded in the night draw to lead his rink to a 10-9 victory over Charlottetown southpaw Bill Jenkins, skipping Prince Edward Island.

Leskinen and third Art Lappalainen spearheaded Northern Ontario to an 8-5 triumph over the Territories representative, Jim Ramsden of Whitehorse, Y.T., in the afternoon round.

The results left B.C. and Northern Ontario with five wins and two losses each, still within striking range of Alberta and Manitoba, who meet Friday morning in a vital game.

BLANKS ENDS

In other afternoon games, Quebec's Barry Ness of Ormstown used two blank ends to advantage in an 8-7 triumph over Ontario. Saskatchewan skip Earl Garratt of Regina outlasted Blake Gilks and the New Brunswick entry from Fredericton 5-4, and Scott Saunders of Lunenburg skipped Nova Scotia to an 8-4 win over Prince Edward Island.

Nova Scotia scored in the extra end to defeat Saskatchewan 7-6 at night in a game marked by two blanked ends, Gilks led New Brunswick past the Territories 12-3, and Newfoundland whipped Quebec 9-2 after holding Ness scoreless for six ends.

With four rounds remaining for most rinks—Nova Scotia and Quebec play three rounds today and five in all because travel difficulties kept the Maritimers from reaching here in time for the opening draw Sunday night.—Nova Scotia is alone in fifth place with a 4-2 record, followed by Saskatchewan's 4-3

Ontario, which won its first three games, is 3-4, followed by Quebec at 2-4 and Prince Edward Island at 2-5. Newfoundland and New Brunswick each have one win and six losses while the Territories is winless in seven starts.

Quinn made his vital shot after missing an open takeout in the fifth end that would have given Manitoba a decisive three.

Alberta scored five in the first end and three in the third end of the night draw, after which Ontario was not a factor.

Nova Scotia blanked the ninth end intentionally to keep the hammer coming home against Saskatchewan, then got its tying marker on Saunders' last shot. The Maritimers buried one in the extra end to win.

New Brunswick ended its losing streak with six in the first three ends against the Territories crew, which has a winless record.

Newfoundland blanked the first end intentionally against Quebec and had a pair on the second. The score was 8-0 before Quebec scored its first point.

Red Sox Lose Fisk

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit's Willie Horton and Boston's Carlton Fisk continued their comebacks Wednesday Horton made it around the bases twice on a pair of home runs and Fisk made it back to the hospital.

While Horton drove in four runs with his two homers and led the Tigers to a 6-2 exhibition baseball victory over Boston. The Red Sox lost catcher Fisk for a couple of months when he was struck by a first-inning pitch from Fred Holdsworth and suffered a broken right forearm.

Ironically, Fisk was a late addition to manager Darrell Johnson's starting lineup. He appeared behind the plate Tuesday for the first time since he suffered a serious knee injury last June 28 in a home plate collision at Cleveland.

It was Fisk's third serious injury in a year. Last March 17 he suffered a groin injury and missed the first 17 games of the American League season. He came back to play 52 games, hitting .299 with 11 homers, before cartilage in his right knee was torn as he tried to block a runner.

Horton's also hurting. He'd like to remain the Tigers' left fielder, but concedes that if his ailing knee keeps hurting he'll be the team's designated hitter.

HUNTER A LOSER

Tom Seaver and New York Mets won their heralded duel with Jim (Catfish) Hunter and the New York Yankees 3-0 as Dave Kingman hit a pair of solo home runs off Hunter and Seaver hurled four scoreless innings.

Elsewhere. Joe Ferguson's three-run homer paced Los Angeles Dodgers over Baltimore Orioles 9-7.

Philadelphia's six-game winning streak came to an end when Hal Breeden 's three-run homer off Steve Carlton and a two-run shot by Bombo Rivera off Jim Lonborg led Montreal Expos to a 10-1 rout.

Kansas City Royals beat a split Chicago White Sox squad 8-7 with a four-run rally in the ninth inning, capped by Amos Otis' RBI double.

Dave Goltz, Bert Blyleven and Tom Johnson scattered four hits and Craig Kusick homered, leading Minnesota Twins past the other White Sox squad 8-1.

Atlanta Braves scored a 2-1 victory over Texas Rangers and Houston Astros edged Cincinnati Reds 12-11.

Weightlifting Won't Be Made April Fool

To schedule their next council meeting for Tuesday, April 1 (April Fool's Day) could be the single most appropriate thing that Belleville Minor Sports (BMSA) does all year. That meeting may very well be the resurrection of, or a eulogy to the Apollo Weightlifting Club.

"We decided at the meeting Thursday (the first of the year for the new executive) that we would send Ken (Carr-Braint) a letter asking him to supply us with more information about the club," said BMSA president, Floyd Armstrong.

The letter also invites Carr-Braint, president of the club, to an executive council meeting to iron out the existing problems between the city — represented by Belleville Minor Sports — and the Apollo Weightlifting Club.

To schedule what could be the deciding meeting for the future of the local club for April 1 was truly ironic. Carr-Braint himself feels he, and his club has been made a fool of for too long.

Carr-Braint has been requesting a city-built facility from which to operat his club. Every year the city shrugs off his request.

"I think it's become a standing joke," said BMSA president, Armstrong, personally, it leaves me with a bad gut feeling."

For years Carr-Braint has overcome the denial of a city-built facility through his own resourcefulness and pocketbook. He allows the Apollo Club, free of charge, to use space in his own building on Gordon Street. All he asks for in return is that minor sports cover the cost of heat and light for the area.

When minor sports submitted there budget for the 1974-75 fiscal year the city decided to chop Carr-Braint's requested monies to a pittance.

On that note the president of the club informed BMSA that his sport was through being a "burden" to the city and that it would withdraw from the organization.

Fortunately there were enough people within the organization to realize that it would be a grave loss to the city if Carr-Braint's club pulled out.

"As for me," said Armstrong. "I think Ken got shafted."

"Once again I use the argument that no other sport has better represented the city at the provincial, national and international level," he added.

Unlike Armstrong, the city has quickly forgotten the years when the Apollo Club sent weightlifters to the World Championships, the Commonwealth Games and the Olympics.

They've also forgotten that at times when Canadian athletes couldn't bring home a brass paper clip from the world paper folding championships, the Apollo Club was bringing gold, silver and bronze medals to Belleville from international competitions.

April Fools Day should tell the tale. One thing though. If there's a fool to be made on that appropriate date it won't be Ken Carr-Braint.

SLICES — Tickets for the Fiori Goegan Memorial Night are available at the following locations: MUurray's Food Market, McKnight's Variety, The Red Barn and the Reading 'n Greeting Shop.

Any former McFarland players will also be able to supply you with tickets for the April 12 benefit game.

Trenton Birt's Handy Stand opens its Ontario Minor Hockey Association Juvenile AA semi-final series at home Sunday with Richmond Hill supplying the opposition.

Game time for the opener of the best-of-seven set is 4 p.m.

The teams are scheduled for action in Richmond Hill, Tuesday March 18, return to Trenton for a Thursday, March 20 match and go at it again in Richmond Hill, March 23.

No times have been confirmed for second, third and fourth games.

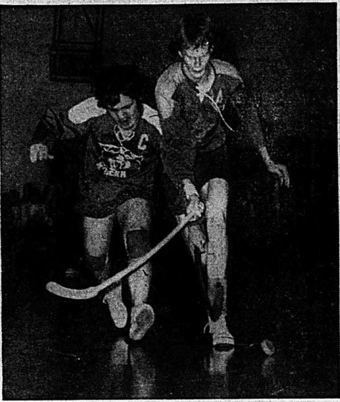
When early attempts to elect an executive for the Trenton Minor Baseball Association (TMBA) failed, a campaign to promote interest in the program was launched and Thursday night, another meeting was held.

Once again, attendance was slim. But this time, something was accomplished.

Gordon Webb is back as TMBA commissioner. Don Cole is the assistant commissioner. Mrs. Lois Defosse accepted the position of secretary and Ray Discrescenzo returns as treasurer.

Chris Verheyen, Bernard Chiasson and Paul Wilkinson have volunteered to assist. Mrs. Verheyen will handle publicity while Chaisson and Wilkinson will be in charge of umpires.

Registrations for baseball and the girls' softball program will be held April 18-19.



Follow the Leader?

South's alternate captain, Steve Benn, is hot after the puck, but North's captain, Rod Sheppard, is right behind Benn. Benn was given second star rating for his efforts in the game, but they weren't enough as the North won 3-2 in overtime. It was the second time in the three year history of the annual event that North has won.

North Needs Overtime Period to Edge South

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Writer

Perseverance paid off for North in the third annual North-South floor hockey game at Sir James Whitney Wednesday night, as they came back twice from single goal deficits to edge South 3-2.

Donald Lapointe, from Kirkland Lake, Ontario, scored the winning goal at 6:30 of first sudden death overtime period to hand North the victory. It was Lapointe's second of the game. He also opened his team's scoring with a marker in the second period after South had taken a 1-0 lead.

"It's a friendly sort of rivalry in this game," said Sir James Whitney's Recreation director, Keith Schauer, "but when the teams get out on the floor they go out to win."

The game originally started as a means of raising money for a project by the senior advisory committee.

"The rivalry has just spread through the entire school," said Schauer.

The teams are comprised of senior boys in the school and divided on a geographic basis.

"What it amounts to is the boys from the south, mostly those who can go home on weekends, against the boys from the north that only go home once in a blue moon," said Schauer.

"They all know each other and they're all friends, but they really go all out to win this game," he added.

This year the build-up to the event included a school dance, the sale of North and South buttons (depending on the students patriatudes) and the sale of North and South T-Shirts.

When game time rolled around, the gymnasium was filled with students, teachers, guests and a few parents — nearly 400 in all. None of the fans hesitated to show just which team they favored. Minutes after the game began, the gym resounded with cheers, and applause. And the room never stopped vibrating until it was all over.

South took the lead early in the second period after the two clubs had battled through a scoreless opening 20 minutes. Captain Gord Jackson, from Toronto, tallied that one. A few minutes later Lapointe had tied things back up with his first of the night.

South took a 2-1 lead shortly after on a marker from Kingston's Gerard Kennedy.

North wasn't about to give up however, and with less than four minutes to go Derek Masters, from Winnipeg, Manitoba, evened the score again.

That set the stage for Lapointe's sudden death winner. It was the second time in the three year history of the event that North had won.

Steve Benn, an alternate South captain from Kingston, was given second star status and South's goalie, Ken Corbett, from Edmonton, Alberta was selected third star.

Members of Army, Navy and Air Force Association of Belleville were on hand to present the North with the Duke of Edinburgh trophy.

Four Teams Win In Two Straight

All four Gas House Hockey League quarter-final playoff series were wrapped up Wednesday night at Memorial Arena when Stanley Structures, Belleville Generals, Rollins Lumber and Chuckwagon Foods completed sweeps of best of three sets.

Stanley's and Rollins got stiff arguments before disposing of Constellation Carpets and Jim's Pizzeria respectively.

The Structures' team nosed out Constellation 3-2 while Rollins nipped Jim's 2-1.

There was little doubt about the outcome of the other two matches. Generals whipped Art's Esso 7-2 and Chuckwagon stopped Yardmen 10-6.

Mike Goegan's goal with one second remaining enabled Stanley's to slip past Constellation. Rob Harrington and Wayne Storms had the other goals for the winners.

Counting for the Carpetmen were Dale Kiley and Ken Vos.

In Rollins' squeaker over Jim's, Don Bowry and Carl Haines looked after the scoring for the Lumbermen. Jim Kincaid was the Pizzeria marksman.

Hyalie Bryant and Gary Goyer each earned four points for Generals. Bryant notched three goals and drew an assist while Goyer said it with a playmaking effort, picking up four helpers. Peter Delanty was a two-goal shooter with singles for Ken Bertrand and Hugh Holmes.

Art's got one goal each from Paul Genereaux and Eric Maher.

A six-goal outburst by Mark Acquafreddo sparked Chuckwagon's offensive. Al Walker drew five assists and Wayne Brown had three helpers. Grant Sage potted a pair of markers with one apiece for Steve Moore and Gary Sero.

Tops for Yardmen was Jack Short with a pair of goals. Pat Mullins, Dennis Flesch, Steve Broadman and Harold Isonberg had one each.

Loyalist Wins Challenge Match

Loyalist College took both the men's and the mixed event at Loyalist, Wednesday in the first Loyalist-Belleville Archery Club Challenge Match.

The men's event was based on the top three scores for respective competitors. Greg Jessup shot a 494, George Poon Ying, 480, and Perry Givens, a 470, for Loyalist to secure a three-man-total of 1444.

The Belleville Club had a three-man total of 1262. Mike Webster, Danny Morrison, and Harold Thompson were the three best shooters for the Belleville Club.

In the mixed event, Loyalist came out on top 1782-1352. Eleanor Kinnear scored 508 of a possible 534 points to lead the Loyalist shooters. Floyd Armstrong was next with 506, Gwen Johnson shot 396 and Phil Downes had a 359.

For the Belleville Club, Jim Fitzhenry shot an incredible 534, but it wasn't enough to lift the rest of his team. Jean Mainland had a 500, Shirley Snarr, 330 and Jim Quncey, 288.

Each competitor shot 12 rounds of five arrows each at 20 yards. A perfect score for the day was 540 and a perfect team score for a four man team was 2160.

Calgary Oil Man Liberal Chieftain

EDMONTON (CP) — Nick Taylor's friends can't understand why the 47-year-old Calgary oil man would prefer the uncertainties of provincial politics to the prestige and mobility of international business.

"It drves them nuts because we used to holiday in Fiji and have a flat in Geneva to ski in Switzerland—the type of life everybody dreams about," said the Alberta Liberal party leader.

"They wonder why I'd want to confine myself to Alberta, and chances are—let's face it—get beat around the ears.

Then, sounding slightly ironic coming from a man who has been defeated twice in federal elections and whose party has not had a seat in the provincial legislature in five years, he quoted: "A man's reach should exceed his grasp.

"In other words, you have to be trying or you're not living. I have nothing but contempt for many people who have done well in society or business who either take no part in politics or run over to kiss the hand of the winner—chumps, I call them."

Mr. Taylor, who said he hopes his party can win six seats in the March 26 provincial election, is not too modest to suggest that he has an ideal background to be an eventual premier of Alberta, where agriculture and energy form the basis of the economy.

He was born in 1927 on a farm near Bow Island, in southern Alberta, graduating from University of Alberta 22 years later with a degree in mining geology and engineering.

He became interested in provincial politics when, after talking with business associates in Tokyo and Frankfurt about urban problems in those areas, "the industrial thing got me off."

"Albertans do not want wall-to-wall factories and smokestacks, they do not want the Calgary-Edmonton corridor to look like Hamilton, Pittsburgh or the Ruhr Valley."

Agriculture should be a chief economic pillar in the province, followed by service industries and tourism. Money should be spent in Third World projects that would "supply research, design and administrative jobs back in Alberta."

Mr. Taylor, who became party leader in March, 1974, said he hopes to appeal to "people who aren't obsessed with an increase in the gross national product as the only measure of wealth" but who also value human qualities.

"So often liberals—with a small 'l'—aren't kind, you know, they're addicted to an idea but quite often they're not very nice. They talk and sound right but lack a little humanity.

IN MEMORIAM

BURKE — In loving memory of a dear niece Arlene Burke who passed away March 13, 1974.

No stain was on her little heart,
Sin had not entered there,
And innocence slept sweetly on.
That pale white brow so fair,
She was too pure for this cold earth.
Too beautiful to stay.
And so God's holy angel bore.
Our darling one away.

—Ever remembered by uncle Bob and aunt Cathy.

KNOTT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Andrew H. Knott who passed away March 13, 1970.

Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.

—Always remembered by wife Jennie and sons Andrew Jr., John, Leonard, daughters Olive, Marion and all the grandchildren.

BURKE — In loving memory of my friend Arlene who passed away March 13th, 1974.

As time unfolds another year,
Memories keep you ever near,
Silent thoughts of times together,
Hold memories that will last forever.

—Ever remembered by friend Trudy.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A lawyer for Linda McCartney, wife of former Beatle Paul McCartney, waived arraignment for his client on misdemeanor and marijuana possessions charges Monday.

Mrs. McCartney, 33, a singer and photographer, was arrested March 3 when she and her husband were stopped by police after their car allegedly failed to stop at a red light.

She had been ordered to appear in court April 7, when a trial date will be set.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. (AP) — Emogene Slayden, who lost her welfare payments last month because of a legal technicality, has received a cheque for $1,000. The signature on the cheque reads Frank Sinatra

Miss Slayden, 53, a fan of Sinatra since her high school days, received the cheque during the weekend.

"I just wanted to run out and buy the biggest color television I could find," she said. "I thought, oh, he might be on (television). And then I could say Frankie bought me a television. But I didn't dare."

Meanwhile, state authorities say a change in regulations will permit them to restore welfare rights to Miss Slayden, who was born without arms and only one leg.

Play Continues

The Belleville Theatre Guild's production of The Knight of The Burning Pestle continues until Saturday this week at the Pinnacle Playhouse each night at 8 p.m. Tickets for this two-act comedy based on 17th century England are available at the door or by phoning 967-1442. The play is being entered in the Eastern Ontario Drama League Festival held in Peterborough in April. Shown making her entrance is Lesley Forrester.

Music Hall Still in Business

NEW YORK (AP) — "We are preparing schedules for the next several years," said a spokesman for Radio City Music Hall.

In other words, the last showcase of an almost vanished era of opulent showbiz is not about to be turned into chic shops, branch banks, discotheques or an exotic aquarium.

Those are just some of the fates recurrently rumored for the entertainment shrine that occupies a choice chunk of Rockefeller Centre.

Scotching the rumors has been a regular management chore since rising prices and changing public tastes began to turn all its rococo rivals into rubble 15 years ago.

The Music Hall is 43 years old, a longevity already far greater than such vanished competitors as the Roxy, Paramount and Capitol. As they went, so did ornate palaces in other cities that combined lavish stage spectacles with the latest Hollywood epics.

Programming flexibility is a key factor in keeping the 6,200-seat theatre alive.

"We never set out to be a motion-picture theatre exclusively," said public relations director Patricia Robert. "We go with the times, to provide entertainment for all segments of the populace."

Art shows, rock concerts and closed-circuit television championship boxing are current additions to the steadfast cycle of film-plus-stage shows that prevailed for many years.

Programming change set in with decline of general New York tourism in 1969. Family fare remained the dominant staple but an occasional movie geared to more sophisticated taste was booked.

From a peak annual pace of five million people, the audience for several years has hovered at about 3½ million.

A midnight benefit in 1971 attracted enough spectators to make management consider other diversions to pep up attendance during traditional dips, after Labor Day and after the midwinter holidays.

For 1975, the alternate-fare schedule has been increased to two seven-week spans. One started in mid-January with Sly and the Family Stone and continued into March with the second Art Deco Exposition, a melange of mid-1920s modes. Then came the Jackson Five.

Next are the Easter Show, a perennial staple, followed by the standard film-stage format through the summer. A second series of "special presentations" fills the calendar from September until the crowds start swarming in early November for the Christmas show, an unfailing jackpot. Last Dec. 7, a record one-day attendance of 24,000, paying $78,932, clicked through the turnstiles.

The all-time jackpot was achieved last fall by vocalist Marvin Gaye, grossing $410,000 for a week's run.

The best take for a regular attraction was last year's Easter Week, which grossed $402,000 with Mame on the screen. Tickets for the show scaled to an $8 top, almost double the regular Music Hall price.

In addition to Gaye, such younger-generation favorites as Joni Mitchell, David Bowie, Aretha Franklin and Jefferson Star Ship have recently made the gilt ceiling ring. For such visits, the Music Hall collects rental on what is known as a "four walls" contract.

That means all production costs are the responsibility of the concert promoters.

Although the audiences attracted to such events are different from usual Hall crowds, they seemingly succumb to the auditorium's awesome ambience. Though pot-smoking is reported often at such affairs, there has been no disruptive behavior.

"They don't leave any more litter than a normal matinee of youngsters eating candy and popcorn," said a member of the cleanup crew.

The traditional format of organ music, symphony orchestra, specialty acts and dance was not altered without anguished disputes between management and craft unions.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, March 14

ARIES (March 21-Apr. 19) You're going to be disappointed when you learn others are not as sold on an idea you have as you are. Don't bully them into it.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20) A person you're depending on for something you need isn't influential enough to pull it off. Find another source.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have a project in the mill where friends are involved, be sure all financial responsibilities are split evenly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're not apt to put forth your best efforts today, yet you'll expect others to do that which you won't do for yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is one of those days when you're going to try to sweep things under the rug that you don't want to face.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Take care of a past-due obligation you have to a friend before you think of catering to one of your new, expensive, whims.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you expect others to co-operate with you, you must give them some visible indications you intend to do likewise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will be very difficult for those who work with you today to please you. Try not to be hypercritical, or their help will be withdrawn.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be on guard in social situations lest you say or do something to cause you and another needless embarrassment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A problem may arise today between a member of your family and an outsider that involves you. Stand up for your kin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 19) Some news you're expecting will not turn out to be all you desire. Keep your hopes within reasonable bounds.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar 20) Take it easy on your purse. You have a tendency to think funds that may be coming in are already in the bank.

Tubal Ligation Likely Permanent

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When my last child was born, we decided to have my tubes tied. Little did I know then that my husband and I would be divorced.

You can imagine the rest. I have since fallen in love with another man, and guess what I want to know now?—Miss G. S.

Let me see. You want to get married and you want to have a baby by your new husband, right?

You cannot be a regular reader of this column, for I have answered questions before from women about to have a tubal ligation. I have advised them that it is perfectly okay, but it should be done with the understanding that it is probably permanent. I tell the same thing to husbands wanting a vasectomy.

There is a chance, but a rather small one, that the tying of the tubes can be undone. No guarantee at all.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother is always telling me to get a haircut. Her excuse is that hair below my eyebrows will eventually make me cross-eyed. Is this just an excuse to have me get my hair cut?—B.

I would not care to speculate about your mother's motivations, but she could be genuinely concerned about crossed eyes. However, if she is, it is not justified.

A more reasonable concern would be over a potential skin problem, which seems to be a concern of yours also. If you are like most people who allow their hair to grow below the eyebrows, you will be constantly brushing it aside. When you do this your hand rubs the forehead, carrying with it bacteria and dirt from whatever you are handling at the time.

So, whatever your mother's intentions, it could be smart to have your locks shorn or restyled so that your forehead can be exposed to sunlight. The fact that it might make you look less like a sheepdog and your mother happy—well, what's so bad about that?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: As I write, I am still recuperating from a terrible eight-day siege of the flu. I had my shots. Wasn't I immune? I am terribly disillusioned over the entire matter, and I don't think I'll even have another shot.

Can you explain what happened?—Mrs. E. L.

I wish I could—to your satisfaction.

Each year I get letters from folks like yourself whose winter experience with flu vaccine has been unhappy.

Influenza shots cannot, and perhaps never will be able to, provide blanket immunity for everyone against every one of the many viruses involved. You must remember that within the three basic types, A, B, and C, there are sub-groups of viruses, each with a different structure. To make the matter worse, viruses, for some reason, have a hasty habit of changing themselves, thus presenting new enemies.

This phenomenon came to light in the early 1940s when a vaccine that was spectacularly successful against a flu virus was found to be useless only a few years later against the same virus. So the laboratory battle goes on year after year against new and constantly shifting opponents.

The only consolation you can take is that, while your experience was a sour one, millions of others fared somewhat better. And, incidentally, it is entirely possible that your siege of flu might have been even worse had you not diligently gone for your shots. Some vaccines can lessen the severity of the symptoms even if they do not prevent the infection.

Perhaps you should not give up on immunization so quickly. Try again next year and hope for a better result. The shots should be given, especially to the old or chronically ill, as a protection against a flu attack, which could otherwise be very damaging.

Souvenirs at Pole

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has opened a souvenir store at one of its South Pole stations to accommodate the influx of tourists, Tass said. The news agency said the Soviet export firm Vneshtors opened an affiliated branch at the insistence of tourists who stop at the Soviet research station Belligshausen on the Antarctic Peninsula.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Mary (Mrs. Emory) Clement was one of the best, if not the best woman bridge player of the early '30s.

She had a habit of making very good plays, then pretending they were the result of a fortunate accident.

Mary who sat West did not consider a bid of five hearts. She knew her partner's preempts were real trash. In any event she thought she might beat four spades. She opened the ace of hearts and continued the suit. South ruffled, led the queen of diamonds, played dummy's jack and watched East take his king.

East led a third heart and South ruffed with the eight of trumps. Mary discarded a diamond and now South went after trumps. Unfortunately for him, Mary now held the long trump. She waited until South played ace and one diamond. Then she ruffed in, led the king of clubs and watched the hand collapse.

"Brilliant play, partner," chortled East. "If you had overruffed South's eight of spades when I led the third heart he would have made his contract."

"Thank you partner," replied Mary. "I had the nine of spades in with my clubs."

Genetic Abnormalities May Indicate Cancer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cancer researchers at University of British Columbia think the time may come when all babies will be screened to determine whether they are likely to have cancer in later life.

The researchers have been studying a possible connection between genetic abnormalities and high cancer risk.

"We hope to have something sufficiently definite within a year to present a report to the (federal) health protection branch," said Dr. H. D. Stitch, a member of UBC's cancer research centre.

He said it appears that people with genetic abnormalities are less able, on the level of their cells, to ward off the effects of cancer. Therefore, by proper screening it should be possible to determine those of high or low risk.

The research was started four years ago with studies on mice and the first study with human tissue began about two years ago.

Dr. Stitch explained that human tissue from patients with known genetic abnormalities is placed in an environment as close as possible to conditions existing in urban society.

If a mass screening project were instituted for newborn children, parents would be aware of their children's risk factors and which substances the children should avoid to lessen the risk.

Cheaper Than Gasoline

Australian inventor John Coulthard fills gas bottles in his car with bio-gas he produces from pig fowl manure. He claims the car's range on unpurified bio-gas is about 100 miles and can be increased to 210 miles with purified bio-gas under increased pressure. He estimates the cost at about 4 cents a gallon. Bombay's Slum Residents Agitate for Rest Rooms

BOMBAY (CP) — Slum residents in Bombay have threatened to dump garbage in front of government offices if a network of public rest rooms is not built all over the city.

"We will make the city stink," said an official of the Slum Dwellers League.

"For a population of over five million there are hardly 50 public rest rooms."

The Socialists say the city government is being run for the benefit of "a few thousand rich families" and that there is hardly one urinal or latrine for every 25,000 people living in the city's slums.

The Communists allege that more water is diverted to districts and apartments occupied by wealthy people than to working-class areas.

"When we come to power, we will change all this," said Keshav Dhonde, a Communist party worker.

Municipal and government officials denied the charge of discrimination against the poor. But they agreed that a city of Bombay's sizes and population needs at least 500 public rest rooms.

Meanwhile, a hoarding put up by Air-India has led to noisy protests by slum residents, women's organizations and opposition left-wing parties.

The hoarding, displayed at many vantage points in the city, reads:

To our countrymen:
When nature calls, do answer;
But please;
Must you have an audience?

Air-India officials said the idea is only to poke "gentle fun" at those who relieve themselves in streets, playgrounds and other public places.

The officials explained that they put up the boardings after complaints from Western tourists.

The Slum Residents Association of the city's Dharavi district described the Air-India hoarding as "a calculated insult to poor people."

Mrs. Sushila Patel, president of the Indian Women's Association, has also charged the government-owned airline with "ridiculing poor and helpless citizens."

Japanese Students Find Jobs Are Scarce

TOKYO (AP) — Thousands of students hired by big Japanese companies for future jobs are being laid off or fired even before they start working.

They are victims of mounting recession, which is striking at Japan's tradition of—lifetime employment.

The students originally were expected to join companies in April, but only if the economy were in good shape. Now they have been told to "wait at home," a Japanese euphemism which means they get an average monthly payment of about 60 per cent of their starting salary while waiting. Those discharged outright before they start to work get nothing except a small compensation settlement.

Although the number of such cases is believed relatively low compared with other industrial countries, such layoffs or terminations are a drastic change in Japanese business practice. The established policy is that once an employee is hired he remains with that employer until retirement.

During boom times Japanese businesses conducted hard-sell campaigns on school campuses and at student lodging places to lure employees, but not now.

The Japan Federation of Private Colleges reported recently that 314 of an estimated 110,000 graduates of its 61 member schools so far have been told they will be laid off or fired before starting work.

The Nichiro Fishery Co., a major fishing and processing company, announced it would fire all 49 college graduates it had said it would hire.

Hitachi, one of Japan's biggest electronics manufacturers, announced it would postpone for one month employing 2,050 new workers "for the first time in the company's history." Eight hundred of them are college graduates, officials said.

"We have already laid off about 70,000 workers with payment. Our assembly lines are partly closed down. We cannot train these young people under such a gloomy situation."

Japan Air Lines, one of the most popular companies among students, announced that 297 newly hired women graduates would wait until November to start working.

Snow Cave

Vancouver Children Sleep in Snow Caves

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — After a night in snow caves carved into the slopes of Mount Seymour, 19 Vancouver school children will probably wait until spring for their next lesson in outdoor living.

The students, teacher Brian Herrin, two student teachers and two outdoors recreation experts, spent most of one day digging out the caves in the snow drifts under trees as part of a lesson in outdoor life.

They spent the night in the hard-packed snow, with just enough room for four Grade 5 and 6 students to lie down alongside each other.

Some of the caves allowed light to come through the ceiling, but most required candles to see.

"We weren't scared," said Elaine Taulu, 10, after the students had been brought back to the school for a hot breakfast of pancakes, bacon and eggs.

"We had lots of candles to light the caves, but it was pretty cool."

Al Whitney, an outdoors education professor at Simon Fraser University who helped build the camp, said body heat in the snow caves generally keeps the temperature inside considerably higher than outside.

"Even when it's very cold outside, you can usually get it up to the freeing point inside," he said.

Mr. Herrin said the expedition was "not a survival course—it's pretty plush."

"But it helps introduce them to healthy outdoor recreation. Anything that will encourage teachers to take their students out, whether it's in the city or the country, is worth while."

He said the students familiarized themselves with the terrain on an earlier snowshoe hike.

Last fall, the class camped out for three days at the foot of Mount Seymour.

Mr. Herrin, by his own admission, was the most fitful sleeper on the mountain. He spent the night outside under a three-inch snowfall so he could see or hear children in adjacent snow caves.

He said it was an experience they'll all enjoy more in retrospect.

Hailey Predictable But Instructional

By ED SIMON
The Canadian Press

If the characters and plot of an Arthur Hailey novel are as predictable as the adventures of Dick and Jane, its purpose is no less instructional.

A faithful Hailey reader may not expand his understanding of the humane condition in general but he is offered a wealth of information about specific human activities.

With the appropriate volume at his side, he is virtually capable of flying an airliner, masterminding a government, practising medicine, running a hotel or manufacturing automobiles. With The Moneychangers, he has his credentials to enter the world of big-time banking.

As always, Hailey's research is thorough, extending from the teller's cage to the board room through loan procedures, security precautions, investment policies, public relations, forgery and embezzlement.

Everyday operations are laid out in presumably authentic detail and plausible accounts are given of how a run on a bank branch and a demonstration by aggrieved tenents of a housing project would be handled by its management.

The story moves along briskly and readably to a cops-and-robbers climax, good triumphs over evil and negotiations for screen rights presumably are well under way.

If the credibility of The Moneychangers falters, it is in the relationship of the book's cardboard characters to its realistic background.

Would the bank's ruthlessly ambitious, rigidly puritanical comptroller really be swayed by a hedonistic weekend in a tycoon's West Indian hideaway into promoting a huge loan of dubious legality to his fellow-directors? And would the directors allow themselves to be taken in by the transaction.

Would an executive vice-president permit himself a liaison with an activist female lawyer who built her career around the defence of demonstrators against the Vietnam war?

The Moneychangers, by Arthur Hailey; $10.95; 472 pages; Doubleday Canada.

First Tax Refunds Go in Mail Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — Millions of dollars in income tax refunds will be in the mail early next week now that Parliament has approved the government's hotly-debated income tax bill.

The 287 pages of amendments to the Income Tax Act were given royal assent Thursday, and Revenue Minister Ron Basford said the cheques will start pouring into the mails "proobebly on Monday."

The bill, and amalgam of proposals from the Nov. 18 budget, was introduced in the Commons nearly three months ago and went to the Senate 10 days ago.

The latest revenue department statistics show more than $60 million in refund cheques have been prepared. They could not be mailed until the tax changes were approved.

Mail Disrupted By PSAC Strikes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As PSAC strikes continued Thursday, postal service was disrupted in Quebec City, Toronto and Vancouver, airports were closed at Fredericton and Saint John, N.B. and some Western railway workers and Saint John airport firemen were laid off because of the strikes.

In Toronto, Michael Punshon, PSAC representatives, said Thursday the new round of strikes is for an indefinite period.

Pickets went up Thursday at the airmail facility at Toronto International Airport, Terminal A of the Toronto post office and the borough of Scarborough post office. About 200 casual workers hired to clear the backlog of mail from Terminal A were notified not turn to up for work by postal officials.

Pickets at the airport cut off movement of mail destined for outside Ontario because truck drivers refused to cross picket lines.

Good Signs Seen In Strike Talks

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Negotiators for the government and striking blue-collar workers expressed hope for a settlement to the four-week old dispute as mediation talked resumed this morning.

"There are some good signs, though nothing significant," said Don Kritsch, chief union negotiator.

"There are some signs of movement on both sides. Both sides are here to get an agreement."

Alex Church, chief negotiator for the treasury board, said that he is "reasonably optimistic."

Mr. Kritsch said Thursday night that his union, the Public Service Alliance of Canada, made a new wage offer to the government but he gave no details.

Mr. Church said there are a number of proposals being discussed but would not elaborate.

The new round of talks between government and union representatives began at noon Thursday in a downtown Ottawa hotel. Mediator Tom O'Connor is required to report on the discussions by mid-day Saturday to Jacob Finkelman, chairman of the Public Service Staff Relations Board.

After talks adjourned about midnight Thursday night, Mr. O'Connor would not comment on discussions except to say they "had been amicable."

He was mediator at talks which collapsed Feb. 21, four days after the general labor and trades group of the PSAC began strikes which have halted grain shipments and disrupted mail and air service across the country.

Quinte VD Cases Declined Last Year

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Venereal disease appears to be on the decrease in Hastings and Prince Edward counties, according to figures released this week by Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health.

"We are pretty well down in numbers," he told health unit board members.

Dr. Lenk said there were 40 cases of gonorrhea reported in 1974, compared with 55 cases in 1973.

Last year's figure represents 33 cases per 100,000 population, well below provincial statistics, he pointed out.

There was one syphilis case reported in each of the last two years, he added.

Dr. Lenk noted the number of reported cases is indicative of conditions in the two counties.

"We are informed pretty well by the practitioners in the area," he commented. "In the majority of cases, they do report."

When asked about case followups, Dr. Lenk explained there are no legal grounds to force people to name contacts but the health unit can resort to legal means to get people to visit a physician.

In delicate situations involving married couples, he said, family physicians are usually asked to handle the cases.

71 Per Cent Pay Boost Demanded

OTTAWA (CP) — A 71-percent pay increase in a one-year contract is the demand the Canadian Union of Postal Workers expects to make in coming negotiations with the federal government.

Joe Davidson, union president, confirmed that figure today, saying he expects his 22,000 members to approve that demand in referendums during the next few days.

The present maximum hourly pay for most postal clerks and sorters is $4.59. The union wants an increase of $3.26 to bring the rate to $7.85 an hour.

In addition the GUPW seeks special premiums for night work, higher overtime pay and a reduction in the work week.

Trudeau Pleads For Poor

LONDON (CP) — An impassioned call for action to redress the imbalance of wealth between industrial and developing nations was made Thursday by Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau before the upper crust of London society.

"We know in our hearts what has to be done even if we have not yet found in our minds the way it can be done," he said following a luncheon given in his honor by the city's Lord Mayor.

About 300 formally-clad people, mainly local political and business figures, listened as Trudeau called for global co-operation in reaching an ethic "that abhors the present imbalance in the basic human condition."

Northern Electric Cuts Staff by Another 61

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Northern Electric of Belleville announced Thursday another 61 employees have been laid off indefinitely as business for the local plant continues to fall.

The total laid off includes 51 hourly-paid employees and 10 salaried employees. They were notified of the action Thursday afternoon with the lay-off to take affect March 20.

Since Nov. 22, Northern Electric has trimmed approximately 400 people from its Belleville staff.

In the closing days of January, the plant announced some 200 employees would laid off. Of this number, 77 would lose their jobs "temporarily", as opposed to the 'indefinite lay-off' of the remainder".

A company spokesman today recealed these 77 originally were to be laid off for 12 weeks. "This group has now been converted to indefinite status," said the spokesman. "No one is on temporary lay-off . . . all are on indefinite lay-off."

The spokesman said it is difficult to forecast what business will be like in the coming months but added "we think we have the plant trimmed to the right size for the forseeable future".

The company spokesman said "there is no justification or substance to any rumor that Northern is closing down its Belleville operation".

Following a major expansion project in 1973, the Belleville plant employed in excess of 1,350 workers.

"Sales for our products (switchboard and telephone equipment) have not improved as anticipated," the spokesman said.

He could make no suggestion when workers might return to their jobs. "You can get an order cancelled tomorrow or you can get a windfall."

Northern Electric employs approximately 24,000 workers across Canada, the bulk of them producing equipment for United States markets.

Company releases, accompanying layoff notices, have continually pointed to "a softening of the U.S. market" as the reason for the cut-backs.

Allmand Informs Committee About Dredging Investigation

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand gave answers about the Hamilton harbor dredging scandal Thursday night but was left with some questions from opposition MPs.

Mr. Allmand testified before the Commons justice and legal affairs committee that his predecessor, Jean-Pierre Goyer, told him he hadn't heard of the Hamilton harbor affair while in office in 1972.

However Allen Lawrence told him that Hamilton Controller Lawrence Campbell had given Mr Goyer documents on the affair in September, 1972.

Mr. Allmand had come to the committee armed with a chronology compiled by the RCMP. He said earlier that it would show there had been no political interference to delay the investigation.

RCMP Commissioner Maurice Nadon at his side, Mr. Allmand said the first official record came Sept. 18, 1972, when the ministry of transport called the RCMP to ask whether it was investigating allegations of corruption in Hamilton. Five months later, on Feb. 22, 1973, the RCMP began an investigation which Mr. Allmand described as the most successful in Canadian history.

Mr. Allmand maintained that the five-month delay in starting the investigation was attributable to jurisdictional problems. The RCMP initially had considered the case a matter for Hamilton city police or Ontario provincial police, which have jurisdiction in criminal investigations.

The opposition continued Thursday to press for a judicial inquiry to get into possible political obstruction of justice. The Oct. 30, 1972, federal election was announced Sept. 1, 1972, just as Hamilton was boiling with allegations of corruption in harbor contracts.

Mr. Allmand said Thursday night that scrap dealer Kenneth Barfknecht and Hamilton alderman Herman Turkstra had brought allegations to Hamilton RCMP in September, 1972, and were advised to take them to city or provincial police.

City police had detailed one man to investigate the possibility of Criminal Code violations but had said they would not get involved in political issues. This was roughly at the mid-way point in the 1972 election campaign.

The RCMP reported in December that nothing was happening in the investigation. In January Transport Minister Jean Marchand asked Mr. Allmand to have an RCMP investigation carried out and it began Feb. 22, 1973.

Mr Lawrence suggested that Ellen Reinke, wife of a former Liberal member of Parliament, had gone to Labor Minister John Munro, who represents a Hamilton riding, as early as 1969 with allegations of corruption.

Mr. Lawrence, Ontario attorney-general until he ran federally in 1972, asked why the investigation had not started at that time, or during the summer of 1972 when Hamilton was boiling with allegations of corruption.

Gerard Filion, former president of Marine Industries Ltd. waves no comment to reporters as he departs court in Ottawa Wednesday after being charged with conspiracy to defraud the federal and Ontario governments and the Hamilton Harbor Commission. Filion and 13 others were charged in connection with the Hamilton dredging scandal. (CP Photo)

Hot Time in Body-rub Parlor

A mattress fire in the Pleasure Palace Body Rub Parlor and Peep Show Tuesday night in Toronto, sent three of the employees out into the street wrapped in bedsheets to keep warm. Standing in front of a sign for the movie next door are Ann, Chris and Sharon, who say last names aren't used in the body-rub trade. A customer's cigarette is believed to have started the fire. A Great Idea

ServiceMaster told me about a new service they are offering and it has me enthused on two counts. First, it's a new house cleaning service whereby someone will come and clean your house on a regular basis — someone who is reliable and competent. The second good point about this service is from the employee aspect. Having a housecleaner from ServiceMaster can be more expensive than our traditional methods of hiring. But such employees are now covered by Workman's Compensation and other employee benefits. I think we'll all have to admit more working women need more good cleaning help. But we should pay for such a service with the same attitude from which we benefit in our own jobs. If you're interested in working or using such a service, just call Mr. Teed at 967-1672.

Like Gangbusters

Murray Atkinson of Murray's Food Market on Front St. can't find enough suitable adjectives to describe how his first anniversary sale is going over. "Terrific" and "fantastic" just aren't adequate. He told me the buggies are all in use by 8:10 a.m. and lunch hours for his cashiers have been but fond memories this past week. The good news, is, however, that there are still today and tomorrow left for you to participate in this great Murray's 'thank you for your patronage', which Murray is giving you in real dollars and cents savings. Don't miss it. You'll really be sorry if you do.

What a Weekend

A number of area residents took the lovely, yet crisp, weekends in hand and used the bright sunshine and good roads to visit the Cameron Gallery, 1½ miles west of Rednersville, on the Rednersville Road. Mrs. Cameron reports she met many new faces and fans. But you really don't need any kind of excuse such as the weather to visit the gallery. Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays (10 a.m. - 9 p.m.) no matter what it's doing outside, it's sunny, bright, and interesting inside the gallery surrounded by oils, water colors, pen and ink sketches and pottery of the three talented Camerons. Rain or shine — or snow or hail — this weekend visit the Cameron Gallery and see some great art at some very reasonable prices.

A Special Special

Gibbs and Sons, the vacuum cleaner specialists at 37 Albion St. have a special offer on that very special vacuum they're now selling and servicing — the Great Air-Way. The vacuum cleaner sells at $279.50. If you purchase now you get a Rug Master Power Brush, which sells at $79.50, absolutely free. You can also get a home demonstration of this remarkable cleaning device too by simply calling a special Air-Way number, 968-9197. And your relationship with Gibbs and Sons doesn't end with your purchase either. You have the reassurance of a supply of bags, parts, and excellent servicing right along with your ownership of a vacuum which does the job.

Out On The Job

Reports from Highland Construction's Home Improvement Centre, 257 North Front St. indicate that many readers are taking the advantages of vinyl siding — one of Highland Construction's quality workmanship — to get their siding measured, and on right now. Crews are working on siding at the moment. I've told you of the great merits of vinyl siding over aluminum siding before. But you can easily see for yourself and discuss it, by visiting Highland Construction's Home Improvement Centre. Go through the laundromat at the above-mentioned address and down the stairs at the rear. Then you can really see what I've been talking about.

Now Is The Time

I'm going to be nasty today and take a crack at my favorite victims including the one in the mirror. And of course those victims, whose names shall be withheld in the interest of privacy and self-dillusionment are known by the code name: Procrastinators. These people are known for their good intentions and their negligible results. You've all heard them speak at parties and service clubs — or even around the dinner table. Moira Schuster has studied this problem at considerable time and expense. And for those who intend to do something about installing an air conditioning system with the furnace, they have provided a simple phone number: 962-4504. No one need ever know of your once enthusiastic membership in the Procrastinators.

Separate, But Co-ordinate

These two words, "separates" and "co-ordinates" are common words in our wardrobe vocabularies. They really mean the same thing. But I think the rule of thumb might best be expressed by saying "Co-ordinate your separates". And the place to start — and finish — is Jean Smith's West Wind Boutique at Highway 7 at Actinolite. Jean has the best separate — and ensembles — from many fashion centres of the world. Take a basic knit or suede-trimmed suit. Team it with blouses and sweaters and it will take you all through the season. Co-ordination is the trick and the clothes are Jean Smith's. Get organized and visit the West Wind, open seven days a week.

More About Specializing

You hear a lot today about specializing. Everybody seems to be or want to be a specialist of some description! Holiday Car and Truck Rentals, 11 West Moira St. are specialists too — transportation specialists. If you have to get yourself or something some place, Holiday can help with vehicles, heavy equipment, mileage estimates, routing advice and good old-fashioned know-how. Owner Hud Marcotte has been on the road for many years of his life, so he knows roads — and cars. If you have a transportation problem where leasing can help, try Holiday first. Call 962-9114.

De Ja Vu

That interesting adaptation of a French phrase is the name of the group entertaining at the Mad Mechanic this weekend. This group has been at the Mad Mechanic before and received an enthusiastic response. So you "De Ja Vu" enthusiasts, come on back for more. And bring some friends too. You'll have plenty of time to enjoy the show — all the sets or just a few, plus see old acquaintances and make some new ones. The Mad Mechanic is our live entertainment showplace. So go where the good music is — The Four Seasons' Mad Mechanic.

What's New At Ruddy

If it's beautiful and innovative lighting you need at your house or office, the Ruddy Electric's Consumer Division, 291 Coleman St. is just the place to visit right now. One of the recent trends in bathroom decor is a bathroom swag lamp. And Ruddy have a new selection in stock at the moment. They also have in stock one of the finest lines of Tiffany lamps made — the line of The House of Tiffany. Another quality line carried by Ruddy Electric is the Schonbek Schandeliers. (Yes, that's spelled correctly . . . a company eccentricity). And they are certainly lovely, as the window of Ruddy Electric will attest. There are also new desk lamps and commercial floor lamps suitable for office or home work areas. There's lots to see, and buy at Ruddy Electric.

In for Change

Traffic lights at Dundas St. West and Division St. in Trenton will soon be linked with the CNR railway crossing warning lights to safeguard driver using the intersection. Once changed, the traffic lights will automatically turn red to prohibit a motorist from crossing the railway tracks, thus risking a collision with a train.
